'You Can't Gull Me,' Says Pussy

"You take care of the mice, Bub, and I'll handle the fishing," Grey Gull, the new straw boss and mascot of the Grey Gull coffee shop, tells his feline friend Dinghy at the Oak Bay boathouse. Dake and Betty Scott of the coffee shop have adopted the two-month-old gull. Both its legs are banded in case it gives way to wanderlust.

Ninth Traffic Fatality

Car Kills Victoria Girl, 8, On Road in Front of Home

Driver Identified As U.S. Tourist

An eight-year-old girl was killed in front of her home at 646 Gorge road east shortly before 8 last night when she ran into the path of a car in an attempt to cross the busy street.

The victim, Annette Perry, was the ninth traffic fatality of the year in Greater Victoria.

The accident occurred near the intersection of David and Gorge.

The girl was taken by police to Royal Jubilee hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival.

Police identified the driver of the car as James E. Carpenter of Van Nuys, Calif., who is staying at Craigflower motor court.

According to police and witnesses, the girl ran from the driveway of her home into the street and was nearly struck by a car driven east on Gorge road by Darrel Pringle, 640 Gorge road east, who was proceeding just ahead of Carpenter.

One witness said that a driver of another car that had to swerve to miss the child yelled at her to "get off the street before you get hit." Seconds later she was thrown about 15 feet by the impact of the Carpenter car.

Members of the naval patrol who were having a cup of [illegible] were first on the accident scene [illegible].

Police took the child's parents to the hospital where they were informed of the death.

The body was transferred to Hayward's Funeral Home after police notified coroner E. C. Hart.

The accident car, damaged only slightly on the left front fender, is being held by police until the coroner's inquest, probably Monday or Tuesday, and then will be impounded.

The child is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, and [illegible] brothers, John [illegible] 9.

Ninety-Seven on Monday

Koreans Stone Koreans

SEOUL (AP)—Koreans demonstrating against the continued presence of truce inspectors from Communist countries stoned their own countrymen Saturday while President Syngman Rhee was issuing a new warning against violence.

A crowd of 300 at the West Coast port of Kunsan hurled rocks at truckloads of Koreans employees leaving the American air base compound.

The shrieking mob, chanting threats against truce inspectors housed at the base, gave way quickly before a U.S. Army tear gas barrage.

In Seoul President Rhee issued a statement, urging demonstrators to try to meet quietly with the inspectors and "tell them to leave." He said U.S. authorities "certainly should be willing to co-operate in such a peaceful and orderly process and I trust they will do so."

Rhee again warned against violence which already has resulted in injury of more than two score U.S. soldiers and many more Koreans. He said he was investigating the possibility that "subversive elements" mingling with the demonstrators may have caused some of the trouble.

Vancouver Man Slain

VANCOUVER (CP)—An unidentified man was savagely beaten to death here Saturday night, police reported.

The man was found in the Kitsilano area shortly before 10 p.m. with severe wounds to the head and body. He was reported dead on arrival at hospital.

Six States Declared Disaster Areas

Savage Floods Keep East in Turmoil; 143 Killed; Cost Counted in Billions

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Northeast, staggered by the most savage floods in the history of the region, counted the cost in billions Saturday and at least 143 persons were killed by the roaring fury that swirled across eight states.

Scores of communities still were in turmoil, their communications virtually cut off, utility services dead, roads destroyed and undermined, drinking water polluted.

President Eisenhower Saturday designated six states—Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Rhode Island and South Carolina as major disaster areas. North Carolina was designated as such earlier in the week because of hurricane Diane's damage.

High waters still threatened in many places, especially downstream areas along major rivers. Generally, though, the swollen streams began to recede Saturday.

Ironically, a hot August sun made the gigantic clean-up task even more arduous.

The wasteland left behind by the dwindling waters was "as devastating as the human mind can imagine," said a Woonsocket, R.I., official.

The Red Cross set aside two million dollars for preliminary flood relief in the area.

Pennsylvania had the most dead—at least 74 and many more missing.

One summer camp near Stroudsburg was literally swept off the face of the earth, taking 37 women and children to presumed death in the raging waters of a normally placid creek.

Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut, after a personal tour of the worst-hit areas, said "It will take a superhuman effort to restore this state to the condition it was in before the torrential rains struck.

"It has been absolutely heartbreaking to see the devastation."

Evans Clinchy of The Hartford Times, the first newsman to reach tiny Winsted, Conn., said people were "wandering the streets, dazed."

Every store front along the main street was smashed in and the street itself, normally a hard blacktop road, is now nothing but a mass of twisted asphalt, concrete and broken pipe from the city's water system.

The flood cut off the manufacturing city of Waterbury, Conn., and killed 15 persons.

At Putnam in Northern Connecticut a burning magnesium plant added new fear to the horror of the raging Quinebaug and French rivers.

All night the plant burned fiercely and blazing barrels of magnesium were swept through the flooded streets, exploding continually like bombs.

For each known victim of the flood there were more missing and unaccounted for. Most of the deaths were from drownings. A few were from storm-caused traffic accidents or electrocutions from downed power lines.

'Sins-of-Fathers' Cases Reviewed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The civil service commission said yesterday it will "re-examine" the guilt-by-kinship case of a Cleveland government research scientist who was discharged because his parents once bought insurance policies from an alleged communist front.

The commission acted under pressure from the senate civil rights sub-committee, which pointed out that the commission's own board of appeals has credited the Cleveland scientist, Fred Karpoff, with "an entirely clear record" in his own right.

It was the third guilt-by-kinship case to come to light recently. Military commissions were denied to seamen Eugene W. Landy and Norton Pierre Gaston because of security questions raised about their mothers.

Lon Hocker, counsel for the senate constitutional rights subcommittee, said the only charge against Karpoff was that he had a "close relationship" to his mother and father.

Teen-Age Gang Arrested In Fracas with Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten teen-age youths Saturday were each required to post a $200 bond and were placed on six months' probation following a disturbance outside a suburban Ville Lasalle police station.

Police arrested 21 teen-agers—including four girls—when they demanded that a motorcyclist friend be released from custody. The 19-year-old unidentified youth was arrested for driving without a headlight.

Drug Traffic Suspect

Love Laughs at Locksmiths

VANCOUVER (CP)—Love finds a way, and for Ed Scosky, it found the way to get him out of jail.

Scosky, 28, Vancouver upholsterer, was arrested Aug. 9 in the mass RCMP raid on drug traffickers, and placed on $15,000 bail.

But he wanted to get married and he couldn't raise the money. So his lawyer, Larry Hill, appealed to Magistrate Oscar Orr to reduce the bail to $10,000.

The magistrate and special prosecutor R. R. Harvey opposed counsel's request because of Scosky's record — of all traffickers charged he had the most charges laid against him—eight single and four joint.

But iron bars couldn't hold back Scosky's love and Friday he walked out on bail en route to the altar—after getting the full bail of $15,000.

SEATTLE (AP)—Charles S. [illegible] 100 years old Saturday, said the reason he has lived so long is because he ate so many cigars.

"I've chewed them since I can remember. I think I started when I was two or three years old," he said.

One who was born in Beloit, Wis., and has lived in Washington State more than 50 years, had a big birthday cake Saturday and gifts of more cigars.

Arabs Inflamed

Riots Blaze Across Africa, Battles, Bombings Kill 430

PARIS (AP)—Nationalist rioting blazed across North Africa Saturday and resulted in the killing of more than 430 Arabs and Europeans. The violent deaths were in battles, bombings and various armed encounters in Algeria and Morocco.

Inflamed Arabs demanding an end to French rule took the second anniversary of the exile of Morocco's deposed Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef to set off the worst wave of disorders since independence became an issue in North Africa.

White-cloaked Berber tribesmen fought a bitter engagement with parachute troops in Morocco's Atlas Mountains, and other nationalists clashed with troops and tanks in the shanty towns surrounding Casablanca.

Later in the day, apparently in sympathy with the Moroccans, Algerian rebels went into action some 800 miles away in Constantine province of Eastern Algeria.

Large groups of nationalists attacked police stations and barracks at Philippeville and set off a series of bombs in Constantine, a city of 119,000.

In quick succession reports came of attacks against police stations, post office and railroad depots in towns all over the area.

The French news agency described the Algerian outbreak as "an attempted insurrection" but said the situation was in hand as the result of quick action by police and security forces.

A report from the fighting in the Atlas Mountains of Morocco described it as "more like a [illegible] war than a police operation."

'Yard' Holds IRA Suspect

LONDON (UP)—Police announced Saturday they have captured a fourth man suspected of participating in the Irish Republican Army raid on the British army barracks and arsenal.

Sudan Mutiny Spreads

KHARTOUM (AP)—The Sudan government said Saturday [illegible] the rebellion of army troops [illegible] is spreading [illegible] the Far Upper Nile.

Loyal troops from the north were being flown to the area throughout the day. It is in the Central African lands of the most primitive African tribes, 1,200 miles south of Khartoum.

The exact reasons for the rebellion were unknown but there has been ill feeling on the part of the Southern Sudanese soldiers who long have been commanded by British officers, for the new officers who are mainly Northern Sudanese.

Government officials claim Egyptian agents have been agitating against them in the south.

Flying Enterprise Epic Recalled by Marine Rescue

LONDON (AP)—A daring sea captain and his first mate alone on a battered ship rode out a gale in the North Atlantic Saturday night, inching closer to victory in a life or death gamble to save their fire-ravaged craft.

The Swedish passenger liner Kungsholm took 29 other crewmen off the 7,133-ton British freighter Argobeam during a fire Friday, but Capt. George Watson and Chief Officer Kenneth Seaman stayed aboard to fasten tow lines when salvage tugs arrived.

Saturday night the gale lessened and the British weather ship Weather Record, standing by 300 miles off the Scottish Hebrides, radioed:

"Captain and mate on board and quite cheerful. Two tugs should arrive Sunday afternoon. Argobeam has 20-degree list to port and standing up to conditions very well. There does not seem to be any immediate danger of the Argobeam collapsing.

"We have put a rubber dinghy aboard for the captain and the mate to use if the situation worsens."

London newspapers hailed the Argobeam skipper as "Carlsen No. 2."

Britain has never forgotten the saga of Captain Kurt Carlsen, the Danish-American master who made his crew abandon ship and then struggled on alone for five days to save the U.S. freighter Flying Enterprise which finally sank off Falmouth, England, Jan. 10, 1952.

Earlier reports from the weather ship said the drifting ship was being pounded by 14-foot waves whipped by 30-knot winds. But calmer weather was forecast for Sunday.

ALL ABOARD

With G. E. Mortimore

RACCOONS don't write letters to the paper, or hold meetings. If they did, we would now hear protests against the slaughter of innocent coons. Furry delegations would be scratching on doors at the Legislative buildings.

However, these silent and non-voting residents do have a few human friends. One of them is inspector George C. Stevenson of the provincial game department, who recently spoke against the wanton killing of every raccoon that appears.

He said he could understand farmers shooting coons if they threatened poultry. There was an open season on coons. But it was pointless to kill them in town. They carry no bounty, and their skins are worth very little.

"There is no reason for shooting them, and it just seems like an urge to kill," he said.

Such bloodthirsty sadism can be excused in a child or a savage, but surely it is to be frowned upon in a grown human being of a civilized race.

* * *

People should have some feeling for coons, which are very human in their ways. They are intelligent and cleanly, and they are also rogues and thieves.

They come of an ancient mammal family. The generations of coons have lived by their wits for many thousands of years while more massive kinds of life died from stupidity and became extinct.

They have a bushy coat, a ring tail and a black mask. Their paws are like little hands. Sometimes they wash their food before they eat it.

Like human beings, they will eat almost anything: birds, eggs, turtles, fish, molluscs, crayfish, nuts, fruit, grain or poultry.

They are good at raiding orchards and henhouses—both fairly popular pastimes in the human set.

But when there are no henhouses or orchards in the district, and you notice a family of coons up a tree—why shoot?

It isn't necessary, and it isn't sporting. Arm the coon with a pistol, or climb the tree and go after him with your teeth, and it would be more like an equal contest. In fact, the coon might have the better of it. He is only the size of a large cat, but he is reputed to be a brave fighter. So you would have to be ready to lose an ear or two.

* * *

It is a common response, motivated by fear, to attack any strange creature.

"What's that?"

"I don't know. Let's kill it."

This response, while useful in the jungle of old times, is needless and somewhat repulsive now. We should know better. The fear that causes this state of mind is closely allied to the fear that brings about wars and racial hatred.

* * *

Hunting for its own sake—as distinct from hunting for food—has always struck me as faintly repulsive too.

Some fellows go shooting because they genuinely like the outdoors and need the meat. Many more go because they want to kill. They resemble a butcher I once knew, who said he was in the trade because "I like the killing." At least he was honest about it. A great deal of humbug is talked by hunters. They talk about the fresh air and the wilderness, and the thrill of the chase.

Under certain conditions, the hunter may be matching wits with his quarry, and the thrill of the chase may be authentic. But when the woods swarm with hunters, all carrying elaborate and costly weapons of death, sport turns into legalised butchery.

Perhaps it would be more like a contest if a hunter strapped a pair of antlers on his head and went after a deer with the intention of getting the best of him in a butting match.

Improper Site Fatal to Cherry

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Sick Cherry — (R.D.T., Victoria). Your Vanguard cherry, planted last fall, would leaf out and blossom from nutrients stored in the tissues of the wood, bark and roots. The reason the young tree failed thereafter was because, after the stored nutrients were exhausted, there were no root hairs formed to take in a fresh supply of food and water.

There must have been something uncongenial about the soil or site where it was planted, or possibly it was given too much water, which inhibits the formation of hair roots. If you try it again, select a site with good drainage, and use plenty of peat moss in the fill-in soil, as this material creates a soil mixture most favorable to the formation of fine roots.

Currant Maggots — (R.H.H., Victoria) Treating the soil around your currant bushes with borax won't prevent maggoty currants. In fact, if you apply just a fraction too much borax, you will kill your bushes. Plants need only the tiniest bit of boron in their diet, and an overdose of borax is a first-class weedkiller, killing off all plant life for many years to come. Hence its use on gravel paths and driveways, to keep them clear of grass and weeds.

The maggots in your currants are the offspring of the currant fruit fly, and there isn't very much you can do about them at this late date except to scratch a little chlordane dust into the soil around your bushes to catch the worms which have dropped to the ground.

The female currant fly lays her eggs in the currant blossoms, and the correct protection is to spray or dust the bushes with DDT or malathion towards the end of the blossoming period with another squirt ten days later.

Lawn Weed — (J.D., Vancouver) The weed in your lawn is not crab grass, but a European millet known as barnyard grass. Actually, you would be better off if it HAD turned out to be crab grass, as there is a chemical, potassium cyanate, which eliminates crab grass without damaging the lawn grasses. I don't know of anything for sure which will control your barnyard grass.

However, there is a long-shot gamble you might care to try out. Get a package of MH-40 the chemical used ordinarily for slowing up the growth of lawn grass. Mix it with water according to the directions on the package and spray it on the barnyard grass. It won't have any effect at all on the growth of your weeds, but if the gamble comes off, the seeds will be sterile and won't sprout next spring.

I must emphasize that this is pure theorizing on my part, as I have never had occasion to combat millet in my lawn, but the MH-40 stunt is quite effective on wild oats, and it seems to me that it should work equally well on millet.

Marcelled Iris Leaves — (F.J.Y., Victoria) I have noticed many times the peculiar crinkling of iris and gladiolus leaves, and while I don't know for sure what causes it, I am quite sure that it isn't the result of pests or disease. The plants always grow out of it without harm, and I think it occurs only when the leaves are in very active growth and putting on length and weight faster than normal. The crinkle in the leaves will disappear when growth slows down a bit.

Picnic Slated

Picnic for the city's retarded children will be held at Happyland beach today under the sponsorship of Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children.

All parents and retarded children, whether members of the association or not, are welcome to attend the picnic which will be held between 2 and 6 p.m.

Moving Picture Drops Anchor

BY JAMES K. NESBITT

The watercolor of Esquimalt village and shoreline, painted in 1877 by Capt. Frederick Bedford, and presented in recent days to Provincial Archives by F. H. Whatley, has hung in today places far-flung from Victoria.

Capt. Bedford was commanding officer of HMS Shah on the Esquimalt station when he did the picture from his cabin porthole.

He took it back to England with him, and always thereafter, it was in his possession, not because he thought it had artistic merit, but because it reminded him of Esquimalt, which he dearly loved.

HUNG IN CABIN

When he was an Admiral it hung in his cabin on many flagships in far away British naval stations. When he was a knight, and governor of Western Australia it hung in his Government House, and he had it with him when he died in 1911 in England.

It then became the property of his sister, who carried it with her to New Zealand and to California, and when she died her daughter, Mrs. Whatley, guarded it as a family treasure, bringing it to Victoria a few years ago.

Last year Mrs. Whatley died, and now Mr. Whatley is packing for more world travels and decided to leave the picture here.

"I feel it properly belongs in British Columbia," he said.

SHOWS VILLAGE

The picture shows Esquimalt village, with several buildings, Fisguard Light, at the entrance to the harbor, and the Olympic Mountains as a lowering blue and white background.

HMS Shah, which Capt. Bedford commanded, was the flagship on this station of Rear-Admiral A. G. R. de Horsey. When she first reached Esquimalt in August of 1877, The Colonist noted: "The Shah is an iron screw frigate cased with wood, 6,040 tons, 7,577 horsepower, carrying 26 guns. Her highest speed is 17 knots an hour, 15 knots, however, being considered quite fast enough.

The Shah is beyond doubt the finest vessel we have yet had in Esquimalt. The five ships at present in Esquimalt are lying close together and present a very fine sight. Only once before have we had as many in the harbor at one time, and that was on the occasion of the visit of the Flying Squadron."

The admiral, the captain and the officers were immediately bidden to dinners and dances, croquet and tennis and boating parties by the elite of Victoria, always on the lookout for suitable young men as husbands for beautiful daughters.

RETURNED FAVORS

The invitations came so fast that soon the admiral and the captain and the officers returned the favors: "An afternoon party on board HMS Shah—in response to invitations issued by Rear-Admiral de Horsey, a large and brilliant party assembled ... The main deck of that magnificent specimen of naval architecture was covered with flags and awnings arranged in the form of a canopy. The visitors ... passed a very delightful time examining the elegant appointments of the noble ship or in dancing to music discoursed by the fine band of the Shah. A bountiful lunch was set in the admiral's cabin."

And so the merry round went, and when Capt. Bedford was not busy with his duties or attending social affairs he sketched from his cabin porthole enchanted with the scenery of Esquimalt and it is now one of these pictures that, after so many years has become a British Columbia historical treasure.

The Car Corner

New Oxford Added to Morris Line

The Morris line will soon be joined by a powerful six-cylinder version of the Oxford, to be known as the Isis. It will have 86 horsepower and will be about six inches longer than the Oxford, and somewhat more luxurious.

The only major difference other than the engine is cam-and-roller steering rather than rack and pinion. Torsion bar front suspension is retained. The steering change is most likely due to the heavier engine.

In performance, the Isis promises to be outstanding. Top speed should approach 90 miles an hour at least, which, with the fine Morris suspension, could make this car a strong contender in some forms of competition, although the value of such a speed to the average driver is debatable. Acceleration should be formidable.

British Automobile Centre expects the Isis to arrive in a couple of months at the earliest, and its price to be in the neighborhood of $2,300.

* * *

English motorists turn out to be a power-mad lot, with their Morris Minors, Austin A-30s, Anglias and whatnot. The range of speed equipment available for these little firecrackers is startling.

There are dual manifolds, special valve springs, special cylinder heads, special camshafts, special axle ratios—all in the small economy size.

English manufacturers, a canny lot, have long since noticed this, and are offering basically identical chassis with different engines. Thus we have Ford's Consul and Zephyr, Austin's A-40 and A-50, Vauxhall's Wyvern and Velox, and now Morris' Oxford and Isis, to mention the most common pairs.

The big ones are sort of Fordillac versions of the small ones.

This is not to say that a mass-produced engine can't be improved on. Mass production techniques just can't give an engine the finish that individual work will.

For example, intake and exhaust ports rarely match perfectly with the openings of the manifolds. The differences are slight, but enough to tangle up fast moving gases.

Polished combustion chambers are more efficient.

There is room for improvement in the balancing of most engines. When a crankshaft is spinning at 3,000 rpm the slightest imbalance can be hard on bearings and waste a lot of power.

Generally, the more costly the car the better its finish will be in this respect.

But the owner of the cheapest car can have this balancing and general cleanup done and have the smoothness and long life of a more expensive car, and noticeably more power as well.

Latest picture of Princess Margaret shows her with Princess Anne and Prince Charles as they alight from Royal yacht Britannia en route to Balmoral Castle.

Princess Glimpses Love Through 'Door of Grace'

LONDON (AP) — Princess Margaret will be 25 years old Sunday, and it could be a very important date for the little sister of the Queen.

For the first time in her young life the blue-eyed, elfin princess stands squarely before the "Door of Grace." It could open, and she might step through to new happiness.

The "door of grace" is a quaint legal and ecclesiastical term meaning that, by settling a few formalities which are regarded minor, she may now marry any man of her choice.

The approach of her 25th birthday brought a new flood of speculation as to whether she may become the wife of 39 year old Group Captain Peter Townsend. Their names have been associated in romantic guesswork, but an obstacle has been that he has divorced his wife.

"A FAMILY AFFAIR"

On her birthday, which Buckingham Palace spokesmen say will be observed as "a family affair," Princess Margaret is freed at last from the hardest provisions of the royal marriage act which was forced through Parliament in 1770 by old King George III, the mad and stubborn monarch who lost the American colonies.

His hand, reaching down through the centuries, has been a firm control on the princess' heart.

The royal marriage act prohibits the marriage of persons in the British royal family without the sanction of the sovereign.

As sovereign, Queen Elizabeth would find it embarrassing to approve the marriage of her sister and the gallant air force captain because the queen is also temporal head of the Church of England, which disapproves of the remarriage of divorced persons while discarded spouses are still living.

But now, on this birthday, the Queen steps out of the picture, and avoids any embarrassment.

ESCAPE CLAUSE

A way out could be the "Door of Grace," an escape clause of the old law which provides that after the age of 25 a royal person need not get the sovereign's consent to marry.

It is necessary only to give a year's notice to the Privy Council and both houses of Parliament. If all of these bodies do not expressly disapprove, a marriage may take place.

In the present mood of the country, say close observers, it is almost inconceivable that the Council and both houses of Parliament would stand in the way of Margaret's happiness.

It was even suggested that inasmuch as communications and the tempo of life are swifter than in the days of George III, means might be discovered to shorten or even eliminate the period of notice technically required.

Meanwhile Margaret's heart is her own tightly guarded secret, and the royal family never takes part in speculation. But there is every evidence that Margaret remains the darling of the royal family, surrounded by sympathy and love.

LIVING TO THE FULL

She is living zestfully and fully, and is taking on an evergrowing share of the royal responsibilities. There is some thought, after her successful tour of the West Indies, of sending her to Ceylon next year to open a trade fair.

She lives with her mother in Clarence House, a 22-room mansion close to Buckingham Palace, and within the house the princess has her own apartment.

No one knows what is next because she is still "Margaret unpredictable." And the biggest question of all is whether some time soon she may send notices to the Privy Council and both houses of Parliament.

Racial Tensions Smolder in U.S.

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Racial tensions are mounting in Mississippi like a sullen summer haze over a parched cotton field.

Negro leaders are hammering at the state's old and rigid segregation with the public school systems in Jackson, Vicksburg and Natchez.

Dr. A. H. McCoy, Jackson dentist and state president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said of the demands for ending segregation in public schools: "We just gave them the courtesy title of petitions. They were more in the nature of ultimatums."

McCoy maintains that if race tensions should explode into violence "some white blood will flow too."

Aroused white men—60,000 of them—have banded together in semi-secret organizations known as citizens' councils to halt Negro inroads into the "southern way of life."

However, in Texas, Arkansas, Kentucky, North Carolina, Tennessee, Missouri, Delaware, Maryland, Oklahoma and West Virginia, various public school districts have moved or plan moves toward integration.

Georgia, South Carolina, Louisiana [illegible] are ranging themselves in the anti-integration columns. But nowhere have race tensions reached the same peak as in Mississippi.

In Mississippi the Negroes are leaning heavily on the May 17, 1954, ruling by the United States Supreme Court that school segregation is unconstitutional and on the same court's order last May 31 requiring school districts to proceed with "reasonable" speed toward integration.

The federal courts are the Negroes' only bulwark. Pitted against them is the entire legislative and administrative machinery of the state.

Besides passing special legislation designed to keep Negroes out of now white schools and away from the ballot box, the Mississippi legislature set up a legal educational advisory committee to devise ways and means of evading the high court decision.

Girl Seized, Beaten

TORONTO (CP)—Police said today they arrested a youth they found asleep under a viaduct bridge with a seven-year-old girl who had been severely beaten and held captive for more than 12 hours.

They said they have charged Neil Couche, 17, with abduction and attempted rape.

They said the girl, Margaret [illegible], had been severely beaten with a stick and belt. Her eyes were blackened and she had bruises all over her body.

Assistant coroner Dr. Morton Shulman said it appeared an attempt was made to rape the girl and she had superficial knife wounds on both legs. He said they were the result of a "maniacal attack."

Police found the girl about 2 a.m. after a search since early evening.

Margaret said she became separated around noon Friday from her brothers and her girl friend while visiting the zoo. As she was looking for them a man came up to her and asked her what she was doing. When she told him, he said he would help her find them. Instead he led her to a wooded section of the Don valley.

So Little for the Public

SOME home truths about the rate at which Canada's development is shrinking lands available for recreation were given to the Rotary Club last week by Major S. E. Park of the B.C. lands department. By comparison with the far-sighted recreational planning practised in the United States while there was yet time, he said, Canada's efforts in that direction in the past were timid and indecisive. Major Park was speaking of the broad picture, and so far as this province is concerned he had a heartening report to make about what is being done to preserve beauty spots owned by the Crown.

Unhappily, however, the municipal picture is altogether different, and what is happening in this region sharply illustrates neglect of present and future requirements. In proportion to the total area and population of these organized territories the pieces of land, seashore and lakeside which the people can call their own are pitifully few and small.

Whenever a former resident returns to Victoria his first remarks almost invariably are about the way the suburban and rural areas have been built over in his absence. Most of those who go on living here are only vaguely conscious of the rapidity with which commercial and housing developments, chiefly the latter, have spread over the few remaining tracts of vacant land not only in Greater Victoria but far beyond. Districts that only a short time ago were farm or wild land spoken of as "the country" have become bustling suburbs as subdivision after subdivision is approved by tax-hungry municipalities.

In the rare instances where some thought is given to recreational needs there is a peculiar tendency to regard land reserved for the public as something which has to be "developed," whereupon there is much boggling at the expense. Few in authority appear to appreciate the beauty and appeal of land and shoreline left in their natural state. There are not many places of this sort left within reach of Victoria where people may go without being guilty of trespass. Soon there will be almost none if the chance to reserve them is not taken.

For Safety in Small Boats

JUDGING from conditions found during recent inspections by the RCMP there is urgent need for strict enforcements of safety regulations governing the operation of pleasure craft and the equipment they must carry. It is equally obvious that many if not most owners of small boats have been unaware of their legal obligations under the Canada Shipping Act, and also of the extreme risks they have been taking in these rock-strewn, tide-ripped and wind-tossed waters.

All the rules under the Canada Shipping Act relating to privately owned vessels, large or small, were framed for the purpose of safety, and are as necessary as regulations for traffic on land. It is astonishing how little attention has been paid to them in the past, despite the number of tragedies and unpleasant mishaps that have overtaken the occupants of ill-found boats. People have drowned within reach of rescue simply because of lack of any means to signal for help or keep themselves afloat until aid arrived.

Until recently little if any official effort has been made to enforce compliance, but all that has been changed now that administration of the regulations has been turned over to the RCMP. In the last few weeks the RCMP has shown that it means business. Officers have been visiting boat harbors and yacht clubs examining boats and giving instructions as to what the law demands. Follow-up inspections will be made, and if the initial warnings have not been heeded prosecutions may result.

Indian Welfare in B.C.

ONE appreciates that the welfare of Indians in B.C. is primarily a federal responsibility and that provincial efforts in this direction must of necessity be limited. Much can be done on their behalf nevertheless and if as Labor Minister Wicks says "a terrific job" is being accomplished it would be in the public interest to disclose the tempo and details of such work. Otherwise an adverse conclusion might be drawn.

The resignation of Mr Reginald Kelly, a native Indian and the only one of his kind in the civil service, from the post of secretary to the provincial Indian Advisory Committee naturally arouses some concern. Mr. Wicks denies any "disagreement" with Mr. Kelly but obviously there must have been some divergence of opinion in relation to Indian affairs. It was the latter's stated view on resigning that not enough was being done for the people of his race.

Mr. Kelly may have resigned to dramatize whatever difficulties were his and bring them to public notice, but on the other hand in removing himself from office he deprived the Indians of a representative of their own in the committee's councils. Even if as secretary his influence could not be paramount he would scarcely take such a step without considerable deliberation.

The matter will cause a certain disquiet among those anxious to promote the welfare of B.C.'s Indians along every possible line, until it has been clarified by more specific information from Mr. Wicks. One does not doubt that something is being done by provincial authorities but it would be interesting to know the nature and extent of such activity.

Island Editors Say

We Like the CBC

It may be that the CBC costs more than it should. It may be that the supervisory powers which the CBC organization has over private radio in Canada are wrong in principle. It is our belief, however, that notwithstanding the noisy attacks which are being made upon this institution the great majority of Canadians will judge it by what they hear and what they see on CBC radio and television programs. Judged on this basis we think Canadians can take considerable pride in the CBC.

We like the CBC because it is adult at a time when private radio and TV in Canada and the United States seems to plan its programs to appeal to a 12-year-old. We like it because it has the courage to venture into controversial subjects in the apparent belief that the members of its audience are mature enough to tolerate the expression of opinions with which they differ. We like it even when it fails, and it does fail dismally at times, because its failures are usually the result of striving too greatly, a quality which can only lead to still better things.

We hope that the people inquiring into the affairs of the CBC will seek out and heed the views of the quiet people who have no axe to grind.

—LADYSMITH CHRONICLE

Unwise and Unnecessary

The publicity given the formality of the "graduation" is in strange contrast with the secrecy surrounding the actual results of the government tests.

We are informed that this is now the policy of the Department of Education. We feel that it is unwise and unnecessary for the public to be denied the results of the annual educational stock-taking. The taxpayers are entitled, surely, to have some knowledge of what they are getting for their money, and are entitled to make whatever comparisons they wish between schools and districts from these results.

It is recognized that examinations do not tell the whole story. But it cannot be denied that they do indicate something. And the record should be available to the press and public.

The names of failures have always been omitted from the press reports but the young men and women who graduate from our schools are surely old enough to take success or failure in an examination without any dire psychological results.

If they can't at their age, they are in for a rough time from now on.

—COMOX FREE PRESS

Ugly Superfluities

Since the end of the recent war we have watched without enthusiasm the gradual disintegration of the hutments and barrack blocks at Patricia Bay airport.

These buildings were erected during the war to house personnel of the British Commonwealth Air Training Plan. We feel that they have fulfilled their purpose and that consideration should be given to their salvage while the material is still usable. If they are permitted to stand indefinitely they will be useful only for burning.

The approach to the airport is unimpressive enough without the addition of a row of unsightly, half-rotten barrack blocks.

—SIDNEY REVIEW

A Call for Action

A total of 250 elementary school children, normally considered part of the Duncan attendance area, will be travelling outside for their education in September.

This fact should serve to jolt ratepayers into the seriousness of the educational accommodation problem of Cowichan School District No. 65, in this one area alone.

The fact that the 250 children will be going to the Fairbridge school at Cowichan Station does not detract from the truth that if accommodation for them were available, they would be attending school nearer to their homes. How much longer are we to rely on Fairbridge?

A new school building by-law in District 65 is slated for October. It is not too early at this date, less than six weeks from October, to examine the situation. The above fact alone calls for definite action.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings."

By TOM TAYLOR

I WAS reading about an 80-year-old man who has sold his brain for $6,000 to two American physicians after he is dead of course. He needs it in the meantime.

It is an unusual brain, one of the kind that denies the Jeffersonian thesis that all men are born equal, as most certainly they are not. Hence the tall and the short, the fat and the lean, the clever boys and the dull boys.

Hence, too, the verity that man did not develop accidentally but was specially chosen and endowed with varying gifts. If he were an accident he'd be more like his fellows. Especially in brain capacity.

The octogenarian in question has one of those minds that apparently absorb information without trying. During a theatrical career of 50 years as "Datas, the Memory Man," he was never stumped for the correct answer. Either some alchemy kept him posted or he put in a powerful lot of reading.

* * *

Even now, in the twilight of such things, he can recite the names of all Derby winners from 1780 onwards. That means he followed the sports pages.

One should never question the quirks of another's mind; they must be accepted. Doubtless the average mind could be boosted by more diligent brain exercise but every mind has its limit. And the limits are different. Compare yours and mine with, say, Einstein's and Churchill's.

Or even, with that of the 12-year-old who won $8,000 the other night in a television quiz show—for spelling. This little girl is most assuredly unique, the mere fact she chose spelling as her subject proves that. No brain in its ordinary senses would make that selection.

Incidentally, those TV quiz answerers must have a preview of the subject board; otherwise they are all astonishingly quick at making their choice.

Anyway I was intrigued when I read that the little lass had spelled antidisestablishmentarianism without a blink. It is sheer coincidence but this happens to be a word that is right down yours truly's alley as it were. Many other much shorter words floor him alas, as you would note daily were it not for the vigilance of our proof room staff but this one is embedded in his brain for ever.

* * *

It was the fashion, you see, in a certain long ago when he played with signalling flags, to flip out, or rather dip down and up, antidisestablishmentarianism as the supreme test of wrist and memory. And the 28 letters have stayed put ever since.

That is not to say of course that shut in a TV quiz box, his knees shaking with nervousness, he could do what the little girl did. By no means.

Quite obviously this little miss has what we call a flair—for spelling. This is just a handier way of saying that her brain specializes in that art. All brains specialize in something: the difficulty with the ordinary mortal is that he seldom knows what. Insofar as his own is concerned, I mean. There is no trouble spotting the top-notch quality of someone else's, awe settles that quickly.

Even one's own brain is a mystery, however, especially when you forget your house key. Although it must be nice to have one worth $6,000 to a couple of doctors or able to spell, without flag-waving practice, antidisestablishmentarianism.

Letter from London

BBC Monopoly Nears End

By RICHARD L. THOMAS, Daily Colonist Correspondent

BRITAIN is on the eve of a big adventure. In a month commercial television will be on the air and the sheltered monopoly of the British Broadcasting Corporation will be at an end.

Most Britons regard the change with mixed feelings. The post-war dose of aggravated socialism has intensified a natural dislike for monopoly; overseas listeners especially preserve the war-time halo which surround the BBC in tribute of its efficiency and undoubted integrity. Home listeners, on the other hand, have regarded the BBC with growing suspicion. It has tended to become too much of a family party.

The main criticism of the BBC is its lack of originality. Many on the inside have complained of frustration. Those on the outside know that inside contacts are more important than ability or originality. The press has been merciless in its criticism. We had to take it or lump it and now all that is about to be ended. We are to have alternative programs. We can switch from the BBC if we do not like it—and switch back again if we do not like our entertainment sandwiched amongst the breakfast cereals and detergents.

There is, however, one surprising aspect of the new commercial television era which opens on September 22. The men and women who are offering us something new in the way of television programs are almost without exception the people whom a little while ago we were criticizing on the BBC for their lack of originality, for their fear of innovation, and strangely enough they are being backed by the newspapers which were loudest in their criticism. So far there is very little indication of new talent—only the old hands sailing under a new flag, and it would seem that the surest passport to entrance into commercial television is an old BBC school tie. At least we will be able to see soon how true is this story of frustration.

Many people believe that commercial television will be a blessing in disguise for the BBC because they have lost so many of their old hands that they will be compelled to find new talent, to take risks and dare even to become original. The idea that we will all suddenly become endeared to a program we loathed because it is now supported by margarine is not as popular as it once was even in commercial television circles. There are even indications that the general public is not being as widely enthusiastic about the alternative programs as was expected.

The sad thing about television is that no one seems to regard it as a medium in its own right. People experienced in sound radio, in films and in the theatre all have their say, but so far no one seems to have emerged who has been allowed to develop a new technique. Television is not sound radio, it is not a film, nor is it a theatre. It is something unique and deserves to be treated with respect for its personality, and the first organization to recognize this will reap good dividends.

Because there are possibly 12,000,000 potential televiewers each evening producers seem unable to realize that it is not a medium of mass entertainment. They persist in regarding those potential 12,000,000 as one vast audience. Actually television is surely the most intimate form of entertainment ever devised by man. Its real effectiveness lies in becoming a visitor to a family of three or four and never an intruder. As far as it has gone in this country television has tried to be all things to all men and largely failed in consequence.

No doubt I am a heretic. Although I love symphony orchestras I loathe the thought of entertaining them in my sitting room. Television cannot create the illusion of the concert hall but it can detract from the music by irritating close-ups of hard-blowing musicians. If I want the sound of a symphony orchestra it is infinitely better on sound radio.

Again I have a passion for opera but not on a stage 12 inches by eight inches. Opera is inevitably fantastic but it becomes ludicrous under those conditions. Again the sounds of opera come with infinitely more sweetness by sound radio.

* * *

But the day television gives me real people doing real things and explaining ordinary and extraordinary events—as they would if they were a visitor to my home—I am sure I would become a TV addict.

But that sort of idea is much too simple for the average television producer. He prefers actors to real people, panel games to humanity and learned discourses to simple explanations. Britain has never had commercial airwaves before—our hope is that demand for talent will create something new from sheer exhaustion of the conventional.

Victory in the Rain

A RAIN-SOAKED crowd of 20,000 sat through the finals of the British Empire Games at Hamilton and saw four Canadian records tumble, 25 years ago last week.

Percy Williams, Olympic wonder sprinter, captured the 100 yards for Canada when he dashed home in a "slow" 9.9 seconds despite a pulled leg tendon that gave him agonizing pain for the last 50 yards. He was three yards ahead of England's E. L. Page.

Canadian victories went to Williams; the relay team; Leonard Hutton, Montreal, running broad jump; Alexander Wilson, Montreal, 440.

His Honor Lieutenant-Governor R. R. Bruce officially opened the 58th annual exhibition of the British Columbia Agricultural Association.

Hon. W. C. Shelly, B.C. minister of finance, had completed the sale of $2,500,000 of British Columbia one-year 3.50 per cent bonds at a rate of 3.85, highest in the history of the province.

RESIDENTS of Ross Bay were angry, 50 years ago, because the city was removing gravel from the beach.

"They have had a fence put up and a sign forbidding anyone from taking gravel away from there, and yet, for the last two months, the council has had teams hauling gravel from that beach, cutting up the roads and raising such a dust that people living along there cannot raise their windows . . ."

So wrote J. W. Ross in a letter to the Colonist. The city was using the gravel in building its new sidewalks.

Senator David Wark died at his home in Fredericton, N.B., aged 101. He was the oldest legislator in the world.

"The largest totem pole ever brought to Victoria was placed in front of H. Stadthagen's residence, 168 Yates Street, yesterday. The totem is 69 feet high and six feet in the ground."

As a result of representations by the Fish and Game Society, both the E & N and the Victoria & Sidney railways agreed to carry dogs free of charge during the hunting season.

VICTORIA'S first Masonic lodge, Victoria Lodge, No. 1085, was organized 95 years ago.

"The prisoners awaiting trial at the Court of Assizes were yesterday without a morsel to eat from seven o'clock in the morning until six at night, they being caged in the old barracks near the court-room, until the court adjourned. A few pounds of bread or crackers should be served out to them as a lunch . . ."

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

IT has always seemed a pity to me that we Canadians have little more than Hudson's Bay blankets and birch bark canoes 12 inches long to sell our American tourists as souvenirs of their tireless visits to Canada. It is true Quebec offers some handicrafts like hooked rugs, and British Columbia has some totem poles (the last of which I bought being made in Japan). But it is pretty pretty nerve-wracking to think of those hundreds of thousands of Americans going back over the border each with at least 167 good American dollars still in their wallets!

One thing each province should have done long ago was underwrite the publication of $5 or $7 books illustrated with color plates and prepared by our top-flight biologists, and professionally published for the regular book market, on such subjects as the game fish of the province, the birds, the mammals, trees or other such separate subjects, which would be bought and treasured by tourists. This, of course, is a project you would not entrust to the boys in the provincial bureaus that get out the tourist folders.

Deane Russell who operates the knife shop in Ottawa, and is a virtuoso of fine steel, has just launched a most interesting project. He is contacting Canadian outdoor writers, sportsmen, and professional trappers, guides and hunters for a concensus on what the perfect Canadian hunting knife should be. And then he is going to have a Sheffield manufacturer produce the knife.

Now this shows promise of being the kind of thing that not only the Canadian sportsman would gobble up, but also the tourist. Belt knives have a curious and compelling fascination for grown men. Of course, to the trapper and woodsman they are an essential, like the axe. So far, Canadians have been dependent for their belt knives on American, English, German and other sources, and some pretty weird and wonderful daggers are being worn: far too thick in the blade, wrong shape, brittle.

It is to be hoped Deane Russell of Ottawa succeeds in gaining the support of the outdoor writers and sportsmen of Canada in his project, because it is time Canada started putting on the dog in certain respects. And the production of a knife as authoritatively Canadian as the skean dhu is Scottish would be a step in the right direction.

Letters to the Editor

Spare Time

We seldom apply laws of nature in our life when dealing in all sorts of problems.

As far as children's delinquency is concerned, we have to consider the law (discovered by Torricelli) that "nature abhors a vacuum." If a child's spare time is not filled up by art, crafts, sports, natural [illegible] etc., the vacuum in a child's life is filled by the child itself and often with disastrous result.

Another physical law is the transfer of one energy into another. If no outlet is given for the overflowing energy of a child, the child has to find something itself. The children with the greatest amount of energy (usually the most talented) are the victims of their energetic nature.

The prevention of delinquency is the cure.

As concerning already delinquent children, probably the same idea of participation in all sorts of activities will take them from the pranks they play.

Why Kill Them?

A city policeman killed six raccoons, after they had been sighted by Alderman Mooney as they tried to cross the street.

I am no sentimentalist, but why, oh why, did these poor wild creatures have to be killed?

I believe these raccoons do some damage to poultry; but where are the large poultry farms near Chester and Fairfield? Or was the alderman scared of being attacked by these "ferocious" creatures?

Must every creature labelled "wild" have to be shot on sight? Perhaps the SPCA may have some comment?

Lillooet Contest

There is a noticeable feature in the present campaign—or propaganda—for the forthcoming by-election in Lillooet from the extreme right wing of political thought. It is to blame the Liberals alone for the present political conditions in British Columbia, and elsewhere, and making use of the now effete transferable vote to prove that without that the Liberals would not have been elected in the Lillooet riding at all.

They astutely steer clear of the fact that by the same reckoning Mr. Bennett and his league only gained their power in the first place in British Columbia through—and by—the grace of the lieutenant-governor, for in very truth the CCF party because of the transferable vote stood as fair, or unfair, a chance of governing as did the "new order."

It is Gilbertian for the Progressive Conservatives to claim that they were deluded into joining the coalition for there was great opposition at the time by the rank and file of their following. They did it for what advantage they thought they—the heads—could get out of it by way of power.

It is quite obvious that by a multiplicity of parties one is bound to have minority rule, as any record of the popular vote will show. The transferable vote is an insult to the intelligent mind that is desirous of rescuing that fragment of democracy that is dangling on the jaws of a potential dictatorship.

The Lillooet by-election will carry the torch for either social justice versus privilege—therein lies its importance.

Erudite Caddy Enjoyed Work

The headmaster of a two-room school in Castles, Alta., goes back home tomorrow, his own education enriched by a two-week caddying stint at Oak Bay golf course.

William Leonard, 45-year-old graduate of Liverpool University, answered an advertisement for caddies shortly after he arrived in Victoria.

He said he had made about $15, enjoyed himself and lost seven pounds, and he "hiked more in the past two weeks than I did in the previous two years."

Tour Topic At Meeting

German workers, both east and west, have an earnest desire for peace, Harold Pritchett, former president of the International Woodworkers of America told a meeting at Williams hall Friday night.

He returned recently to Canada following a three-month tour of Europe during which he attended as an observer an international conference of wood, building and building materials workers in East Berlin.

Meeting was sponsored by "Timber-r-r," official organ of the Labor Progressive Party's woodworkers' committee.

Underwater Tests Planned

Pacific Naval Laboratory scientists will undertake underwater sound tests in Juan de Fuca strait, Strait of Georgia, and Queen Charlotte Sound, during the next two weeks.

They leave Esquimalt Sunday in HMCS Cedarwood, the gate vessel HMCS Porte de la Reine, and research vessel Ecole.

Senior scientist will be Dr. W. N. English.

A PADRE IN PRINT

By REV. WILLIAM HILLS

I suppose I would be misunderstood if I said that the grim years of the last war constituted some of the happiest days of my life. But [illegible] on reflection, it is so.

Not that I would want you to infer that I am glorifying the battlefield.

No-one quite summed up the indictment against that as did the Rev. G. A. Studdert Kennedy—the "Woodbine Willie" of the First World War.

"Waste of Muscle, waste of Brain,
Waste of Patience, waste of Pain,
Waste of Manhood, waste of Health,
Waste of Beauty, waste of Wealth,
Waste of Blood, and waste of Tears,
Waste of Youth's most precious years,
Waste of ways the Saints have trod,
Waste of Glory, waste of God—
War!"

* * *

No, it is not war itself but the things which prevail despite the horror and, indeed, are made more precious by reason of it.

I think, for example, of the comradeship of men (and women) in uniform. There is nothing in civilian life to equal it.

To be sure we have our clubs, our fraternities and our lodges but the badge of membership in these associations is often more discreetly hidden than openly worn.

Membership Is Discreet

It is not so with a uniform, and during a period of international travail, it is the talisman which charms away the hostility of strangeness and opens the door of hospitality.

Methinks that any parson who has served as a chaplain to HM Forces during hostilities will agree with that statement.

* * *

How then are we going to receive a remark made to me on Navy Day by a young mateint that he never wore his uniform on the streets of Victoria if he could help it?

Did he mean by that, that Victorians have no use for the navy? Surely, the crowds of citizens who took advantage of the navy's "open house" cancel out such a proposition.

Then, if it is not what the uniform represents, it must be the man inside it that counts. Is he worthy of the uniform he wears?

This is a question which is answered in only one way—by the public behavior of the man who wears the bell bottom blues.

I think and believe that the people of Victoria are eager to be proud of all the service men stationed hereabouts be they of the army, air force or navy.

But they don't like getting stung.

Vice-President Shocked By Dr. Sammy Lee Story

WASHINGTON (UP)—Vice-President Richard M. Nixon said Saturday he was shocked to learn that Dr. Sammy Lee, former Olympic diving champion and now a U.S. army major, had twice been denied a chance to [illegible] Calif. because of his Korean ancestry.

"After reading the reports in the papers this morning, I made several calls to California," Nixon said in a statement.

He added that he was "happy to learn that the people of my native state are rallying" to Dr. Lee's support "and that he and his family will now find several suitable homes available for purchase in the area in which he desires to live."

"As a native Californian, and as one who knows Dr. Lee personally, I believe that I reflect the views of the overwhelming majority of the residents of my state when I say that I would be proud to have Sammy Lee as my neighbor," said Nixon. "He is a man who represents American citizenship at its best."

Meanwhile, in Honolulu, a former resident of Long Beach, Calif., who is "damned sick and tired" of residential restrictions, said Saturday he would sell Dr. Sammy Lee, who is of Korean ancestry, "a fine home" within 12 miles of Garden Grove.

James F. Collins, a sewing machine company executive, [illegible] home in an exclusive neighborhood" of Long Beach's Los Cerritos district which he would "be proud" to sell to Lee.

"I'll spend up to a thousand dollars in addition to force the issue," the executive said. "I'm damned sick and tired of seeing such bigotry praised."

He said he moved to Honolulu five years ago "and I'm staying here because I'm so ashamed of such goings on on the mainland."

Collins said his property is in a restricted area "but it's not in a tract and its sale should be upheld by the courts."

"I think it's a shame that tracts and real estate people still go for that malarkey," Collins said. "It's time somebody called them on it."

What's news at Inco?

Fleet experience suggests that savings in battery inspection, and maintenance costs are as important as the long life, temperature and power output characteristics of this new Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery. Because this battery does not fume it can be located inside the truck cab or in the back of the bus. Once a year water is added. Holds its charge in storage. No damage if discharged. The full story is below, and should interest every fleet operator.

NEW BATTERY LASTS 15 YEARS!
INCO NICKEL PLAYS IMPORTANT PART

Designed for tough conditions, the new Nickel-Cadmium Battery is capable of successful service at 65° below zero and at 135° above. It has extra starting power and low maintenance costs. Inco aided in development of the special materials that made this remarkable battery possible.

Here are Facts About the Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery

Ques. Will it operate in extreme cold and heat?
Ans. Types are available which will start an engine at 65° below zero F. Can be charged at 65° below zero F. These batteries will not freeze until the temperatures drop below 75° below zero F., and will not be damaged even if they are frozen. At the other extreme these batteries will operate successfully at temperatures as high as 135° F. without damage to the battery.
Batteries are compact because thin, flexible nylon and plastic separators are used.

Ques. What type of battery is it?
Ans. The new Nickel-Cadmium Battery is an alkaline battery, employing potassium hydroxide, rather than acid, as the electrolytic compound.

Ques. What is the Nickel-Cadmium Battery suitable for?
Ans. The Nickel-Cadmium Battery can be used in any type of service where the conventional type of storage battery is employed. No modification of the charging system or of the electrical system is required.

Ques. How about storage?
Ans. The Nickel-Cadmium Battery can be stored either charged or uncharged without damage. If stored charged, it will hold its charge for a very long time. At low temperatures there is practically no loss of charge. This means that the battery can be left out all winter and it will be ready for work in the spring. With this battery, fleet operators need no "battery room". Cycling of batteries in stock is eliminated.

Ques. How does it compare in size and weight with other batteries?
Ans. In a truck or bus a Nickel-Cadmium Battery half the size of a conventional battery will give twice the starting power at low temperatures and is much lighter.

Ques. Does it give off fumes?
Ans. The Sintered Plate Nickel-Cadmium Battery does not give off noxious or corrosive fumes. It can safely be installed under the rear seat of a bus, away from the damaging effect of salt and gravel.

Ques. Can heavy-duty types be obtained?
Ans. They are giving good service starting railway diesels and operating railway signal systems and in many tough jobs.

Ques. Will they soon be available in Canada?
Ans. Canadian-made batteries are already available and in use in limited quantities in Canada.

That's What He Says

There's Nobody Quite Like Mickey

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Pint-sized Mickey Rooney is a bigshot again. His comeback is almost as surprising and sensational as Frank Sinatra's. Frank was counted out three years ago but is now wanted for every picture, it seems.

Mickey has more irons in the fire right now than one can count.

At the [illegible] 000 a week at The Dunes in Las Vegas, as a replacement for Wally Cox. Also in September, the Mick collects a trust fund of more than $100,000 — from childhood earnings. That's jam — the rest is all work.

"I made a pilot of 'Daniel Boone' for television. I just finished a picture, 'The Bold and the Brave' for which I wrote the musical score. I have my own distributing company, my own television show, my own picture company. Of course I'm also doing night-club work. I just can't stand not working. Consequently, people can't stand me when I'm that busy.

"Recently I finished a picture called 'Twinkle in God's Eye.' It's about a minister — me. I'm going to England next month to make a movie, 'The Salesman' for my own company and we may use Alec Guinness for this.

"Next year I'll have a TV series called 'Lucky the Lonesome Leprechaun.' It takes place in a mythical glen in Ireland with a 200-year-old leprechaun orphan who desperately wants someone to adopt him." Mickey is the leprechaun, of course.

"After I do the picture in England, I have three more for my company."

Mickey paused for breath. Then, "I also own 33 Mulligan shows and was recently offered $800,000 just to run them for this next year.

"But I turned the $800,000 down. The reason — I don't want to saturate the market with Mickey Rooney stuff. Every time you'd turn on the set you'd see my puss."

And read this. Mickey, a good golfer, said he was playing golf the other day and happened to notice a caddy taking some shots. "And the little fellow was pretty good, but his clubs were all bad." So Mickey walked up to him, talked to him, took him to the sports store and bought him a set of clubs. "And the kid just didn't know what to say. It sure made me feel good."

Mickey was asked what he thinks of TV. "It's the same as motion pictures. There's no difference — you're still shooting on film. But I love the exposure it gives you. You can be seen by more people in half an hour than [illegible] pictures."

About the future? "I have enough work for five years lined up in Hollywood. I don't work for anyone else now — just for myself. I don't owe anyone a cent — if anything, people owe me money. I don't spend any money foolishly as I used to. I know I should be a millionaire, but people who represented me in the past didn't do as well for me as I am doing now.

"My first wife, Ava Gardner, didn't cost me much money, but my second, Betty Jane Rase, cost me $150,000. My third, Martha Vickers, was fairly expensive. I have been married for three years now to my present wife Elaine, and she is really a great gal. I think three years is quite a record for me. I think it will last — touch wood."

Boy Scout Jamboree Given Feature Play

By ROY PARRETT

Television cameras of three major networks will be on the eighth world Boy Scout jamboree at Niagara-on-the-Lake this week.

A special hour-long telecast from the jamboree will be seen on channel 11 at 1.30 p.m. today.

NBC-TV's program "Today" will visit the jamboree Tuesday at 8 a.m.

Yesterday's opening ceremonies, attended by Canada's governor-general, will be seen as a delayed telecast on CBUT next Saturday at 4 p.m.

On the spot news coverage of the important Scout jamboree will be seen periodically throughout the week on the regular newscasts from all TV stations.

* * *

CBC television cameras will be on hand Wednesday when the Pacific National Exhibition opens in Vancouver. They will follow the big parade in downtown Vancouver and the entire event will be seen on channel 2 at 10 a.m.

For viewers who cannot see the PNE parade in the morning there will be a re-telecast of highlights of the parade at 9 p.m. Wednesday.

Visitors taking in the exhibition will have an opportunity to see the popular television program "Almanac" originate "live" from the auditorium in the B.C. building. The show, which features Bill Bellman, Allan Miller and Bob Fortune, will be a nightly feature from Thursday on.

* * *

The Davis Cup tennis matches will occupy the television spotlight this week too. A warm-up session of the tennis classic will be seen on KOMO-TV, Tuesday at 8 a.m.

The Davis Cup matches themselves will be seen on the channel 4 station next Friday, beginning at 11 a.m., and on Saturday, beginning at 11.30 a.m.

* * *

KING-TV has announced a schedule of 14 professional football games to be telecast "live" on the channel 5 station beginning next Sunday.

The opener will feature the San Francisco 49ers vs. the Cleveland Browns at San Francisco next Sunday at 2 p.m.

Successive games will see the San Francisco 49ers battling the Chicago Cardinals on Sept. 4, and the Los Angeles Rams on Friday, Sept. 9. The Los Angeles Rams meet the Philadelphia Eagles on Sept. 17.

Good news for Gene Autry and Roy Rogers fans is the announcement by KTNT-TV officials of the new week-night series "Engineer Walt's Autry-Rogers Theatre" beginning Sept. 26 from 6 to 7.15 p.m.

Recently purchased by KTNT-TV, this series will star Roy Rogers and Gene Autry, on alternating evenings, in their most famous Republic films. The Republic series represents an average cost of more than $250,000,000 per picture. In addition to Autry and Rogers, the films will feature such outstanding Hollywood stars as Jimmy Durante, Ann Rutherford, Dale Evans, John Carradine, Andy Devine, and Ann Miller.

Host for "Engineer Walt's Autry-Rogers Theatre" will be Warren Reed, well-known channel 11 personality, as Engineer Walt. Engineer Walt's elaborate model train layout is thought to be the largest in television, and as guests he will feature engineers, conductors, brakemen and others from the railroad fraternity.

* * *

Fifteen film features have been bought by KOMO-TV to be seen on the channel 4 station after Oct. 1.

Including in the new films are "The Browning Version," "Brief Encounter," "Christopher Columbus," and "The Seventh Veil."

RCAF Ambassadors

Personnel of the RCAF station at Grostenquin, France, have adopted an entire orphanage. They raised money, arranged picnics and spend much of their off-duty time with the children. After the ice-cream treatment, given to little Monique by Cpl. Marie Smith, the airmen and women are easily the most popular visitors France ever had. (Central Press Canadian.)

Dancing Shares Film Bill

Dances of many nations and two widely different motion pictures are features of the eighth and last show to be presented by Victoria Film Council this summer.

Kathleen Costain dancers begin the program at Cameron Bowl in Beacon Hill park at 7.45 p.m. Thursday with Scottish dances. Sons of Norway and members of the Canadian Ukrainian Society will also perform, and the Costain group will present a Mexican hat dance.

Movies are "Folk Song Fantasy," which employs animated puppets and birds, and "Long-house People," a visual description of the lives of Iroquois Indians.

The council will show film programs once a month in the music room of the public library, beginning in September.

Program Notes

Guild Finds Home In Langham Court

Continuing a series on theatrical groups in Victoria, H.B. Binny ends a two-part story of the Victoria Theatre Guild.

BY H. B. BINNY

The story of the Victoria Theatre Guild is best considered as from 1940, when the community theatre of Victoria came home to roost.

No longer flitting between the Shrine Auditorium, now Club Sirocco, the York Theatre and other less pretentious premises, theatrics settled into the Langham Court Theatre in 1940. There, for 15 years, the Little Theatre and latterly the Theatre Guild have operated continuously.

On Oct. 28, 1940, the Little Theatre had 15 active members and 42 associate members. By Nov. 15, the active roster had increased to 30 and the associate to 52. A women's committee, under chairmanship of Mrs. Thorpe Doubble, was constituted in Sept. 1940.

The annual general meeting of 1941 was a banner affair, "every seat in the theatre (there are 180) being taken." H. J. S. Reynolds, honorary treasurer, hoped for not less than 250 members in 1941-42, but apparently his hopes were not realized.

In 1942, he is found sighing wistfully for a membership of 200. Even with his sights thus somewhat lowered, he reported a "sharp reduction in membership" in 1943. However, the next year "beats all previous records" with more than 150 members, and for the next four years, the number is on the upswing, attaining 410 in 1948.

But in 1949 membership dropped to 250 when a major secession occurred with formation of a rival society. The factions reunited under the present name five years ago.

After reunification, presidents were Percy Richards, Percy George and the incumbent Dr. Samuel Janowsky. Membership in 1954-55 was 311, and for the past four years the Theatre Guild has enjoyed some quite fat years.

During the war years the Little Theatre did not appear to be immensely profitable from the financial standpoint, but from the standpoint of public service, it was the exact opposite. Stewart Clarke and H. J. Davis directed plays seen at the RCAF station at Patricia Bay and the naval barracks at Esquimalt.

In 1941-42 profit was only about $17.50 a play. Four years later total profits exceeded $1,000. In 1949-50, profit of about $250 per play was reported with Noel Coward's "The Marquise" leading the way with $119.10.

Two original debentures of $600 and $100 were redeemed and a mortgage of $3,500 was assumed Sept. 16, 1947. This mortgage is now completely paid off.

Photographs from many plays over the last 15 years still grace the theatre workshop. In 1945 Clare Boothe Luce's "The Women" was turned down as unsuitable but was performed some nine years later. How attitudes do change!

To demonstrate its value, a community theatre should concern itself with more than "major productions." If its activities are confined to these, it fails to make provision for the future.

Along with the Little Theatre and Theatre Guild, a studio group has come into being and still exists. It is not much heralded but from it sprang the three locally written plays presented this spring, of which Asia Walton's "The Bust of Margo Jones" was the most successful.

The studio group, designed for the learning of backstage work and even for acting novitiates, is headed this year by Bert Williams. The future of the Theatre Guild, which already has a long and highly creditable past, depends in very large measure on the success of this unsung department.

Yearly Feature Cancelled

Public Apathy Dooms Regatta

The annual Labor Day regatta of the Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association has been cancelled and indications are the event, which has been a regular yearly feature since before the war, will not be held in years to come.

Lack of finances, inadequate public support, likelihood of adverse weather, difficulties of ferry crossing, and dislike of salt water by many boatmen, were listed as the major reasons.

Harry Adams, secretary of the association, said boatmen are reluctant to attend any race which is not sanctioned by the Canadian Boating Federation, which has insurance coverage in case of accidents. To have the regatta sanctioned would further increase the costs which have already become prohibitive.

Mr. Adams said the race may possibly be held earlier next summer when weather is usually better than the September date, possibly at Shawnigan lake or Elk lake.

Fast Progress Predicted

Accordionist's Boast:

What Liberace Does He Can Do Better

By JAMES BACON

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Handsome Dick Contino wants to take on Liberace—no holds barred.

The challenge he hurls is a mus

Contino is to the accordion what Liberace is to the piano—except for one thing. The accordion right now can't play in the same musical league with the piano. Symphony orchestras, for instance, do not use accordions.

"The reason for this," explains Contino, "is because of accordionists themselves. They're content to let the public go on thinking it's merely an instrument for playing the polkas at a Polish wedding."

LIKE FINE ORGANS

"Modern accordions are like fine organs. We can make them sound like flutes, piccolos or any other instrument. I can sit in the sax section of any orchestra and make my accordion sound like a saxophone.

"Even Liberace can't do that with a piano. I can play higher than a piano—one note of my accordion will drive a dog mad, it is so shrill."

Contino claims that he can finger the accordion faster than Liberace can the piano. Reminded that longhair critics often have rapped Liberace for playing the minute waltz in 30 seconds, Contino replied:

"I did it once in 16 seconds."

The accordionist thinks he could do his field a lot of good by taking on Liberace.

LET PUBLIC VOTE

He wants the pianist to select three or four compositions from the classics to boogie-woogie. Each would play the same pieces on their respective instruments—and let the public vote.

"I realize I'm not as big or famous as Liberace. You might say I'm the Archie Moore of the accordion taking on the Rocky Marciano of the keyboard, but even if I lose I win.

"Such a contest can't help but get good publicity for the accordion—and thus for me, too. And it can't hurt Liberace."

The challenge is more than a press agent's dream. The same company that syndicated Liberace's television films throughout the country now is planning the same thing with Contino a local television show.

Gallery Shows New Additions

Some recent additions will be on view when the Art Gallery displays its permanent collection each day this week except Monday.

Colin Graham, curator, said a highlight of the new paintings is a large 19th century French landscape presented by Hon. Mark Kearly, originator of the gallery at 1040 Moss street.

The collection will be open to the public from 1 p.m. to 5.30 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m. next Sunday, and from 7.30 to 9.30 Friday evening.

Heidt at Arena Wednesday

BY BRUCE LOWTHER

Big entertainment news of the week is the appearance of the Horace Heidt show at the Arena Wednesday, with half of the net proceeds going to the Solarium building fund.

Aside from local contest- Janik and the Islanders, there are Johnny Standley, the Four Knights, Dick Kerr, Ralph Sigwald, Reita Green, two talented young drummers and many, many more good acts.

The drive for $750 to pay for full rewiring of the Langham Court Theatre is off to a slow start, according to Victoria Theatre Guild.

Faced with closure if wiring was not revamped, the Guild went ahead, even though it had only $50 from Lieutenant-Governor Clarence Wallace and $150 in rentals from the Jerry Gosley Smile Show.

Donations can be sent to Box 1061, Victoria.

It doesn't matter what type of movie you like; it's available this coming week in Victoria.

Most unusual billing is at Martin Cave's Dominion, where "Eternal Sea" will be followed Tuesday by the controversial French "Children of Love" and the Italian "Hell Raiders of the Deep," both with English dialogue.

At the Dominion Friday are Rex Harrison and Margaret Leighton in "The Constant Husband," a 14-weeker in Toronto.

Mr. Cave's Atlas features a return of the excellent "Violent Saturday" with "The Bob Matthias Story" tomorrow, followed by "Untamed" and "Pirates of Tripoli" Thursday. A. Larson, 1528 Elford, claimed $325 at Foto-Nite last Monday.

Ronald Wilson, 25-year-old Victorian, will be seen in "The Dam Busters," which starts at the Capitol Friday, and stars Richard Todd and Michael Redgrave. Jimmy Stewart is "The Man from Laramie" until Friday.

this Howard Hughes production is ex-strip teaser Lili St. Cyr. Bill tomorrow and Tuesday is "Sands of Iwo Jima" and "Finders Keepers."

Laughs will fill the Odeon all week. As of tomorrow, Alec Guinness returns with "Kind Hearts and Coronets" and "The Promoter." Even better is "The Private War of Major Benson," starting Thursday, which captivated a preview audience 10 days ago.

At the Royal, "Land of the Pharaohs" gives way to Dean Martin and Jerry Lewis, who insist "You're Never Too Young," starting Thursday.

Elsewhere around town, the Plaza has "Apache" and "Deadly Game" tomorrow, and "Five Against the House" and "Men from Colorado" Thursday.

Judy Holliday sparkles in "It Should Happen to You" at the Oak Bay tomorrow. Walt Disney's "Vanishing Prairie" completes the week.

Musicals all week at the Fox. "The Last Time I Saw Paris" tomorrow and "Athena" Thursday.

Beauty Queen To Wed in Fall

NORTH BAY, Ont. (CP)—Cathy Diggles, Miss Toronto of 1954, is engaged, her parents announced here Thursday. Miss Diggles, Canada's entry in the recent Miss Universe competitions at Long Beach, Calif., will be married "sometime in the fall" to Gordon Richardson, a Toronto real estate broker, her mother said. The North Bay girl now works for a Toronto model agency.

Stars Down to Earth

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Richard Widmark has three horses now at his Mandeville canyon estate and is looking for a ranch that's not too far away from the studios . . . Rocky Marciano, the heavyweight champ, is teaching Marlon Brando the finer jabs of the game . . . Rudy Vallee swears he will divorce himself from the entertainment field in two years and will live in California.

Jean Pierre Aumont writes he will be in America in September. To re-woo Grace Kelly? . . . And Raymond Burr's favorite American city is Chicago—because of iron heiress Margaret Clarke . . . Gary Cooper wears so many medals in his "Court Martial of Billy Mitchell" picture that he's getting one drooping shoulder . . . Bob Middleton will be Gary's buddy in "Mr. Birdwell Goes to Battle." Bob is closing his New York apartment to live in Hollywood . . . from Jack Lemmon: "Not all wives are suspicious—some know."

Bill Holden and Dewey Martin went skin-diving in the Virgin islands, and Bill cut his leg on some coral. The baracuda, tasting the blood, started after Bill, but Dewey apeared the leader.

Flash from Roger Moore, Hollywood's latest British film discovery now playing opposite Lana Turner in "Diane" at Metro, to a London reporter: "They're not trying to make me become an American style actor—just giving me lessons to loosen my jaw and talk with a mid-Atlantic accent. Englishmen in Hollywood stay English—only the women lose their identity. All women do—except the French."

Victor Mature on Clark Gable's fifth marriage: "It will be good for him. He will be exposed for the first time to children this bride, Kay, has two children by a former marriage. And at his age 54—Clark needs to have children around."

Jean Peters is wanted for a starring role in "The Bottom of the Bottle" on her home lot, 20th Century-Fox. She hasn't made a picture there since "A Man Called Peter." "Bottle" is the Georges Simenon story that was bought with Gregory Peck and Montgomery Cliff in mind as brothers. But Peck turned it down recently. Now all 20th has to do is find Jean.

Brod Crawford joins the ranks of the Screen Directors' Guild. He has finished "The Swindlers" in Rome, and is on his way back. And what's all this I read in European papers of dates with this and that charmer?

Robert Taylor will do "32nd Day" next and told me, "I feel like a serviceman when he first gets into mufti, because in this picture I get to wear plain American clothes for a change. I hope someone will recognize me without a sword or frontier pants."

Jeff Hunter's long hair for his role in John Ford's "The Searchers," has already gotten him into two fights and two near-misses. Jeff is six feet one, weighs 180, was captain of his football team, very handy with his dukes and hates fights. But he bopped the two gents who insisted on proclaiming him a paintywaist.

Ruth Roman, back in Hollywood after two months in England filming "Joe Macbeth," dropped eight pounds, but added an inch and a half to her bust. "If I could figure out how I did it," she beams, "I would write a book and make a fortune."

In Show Business by Accident, Elliot Brown's an Expert Now

He took a job in a theatre because "in depression days, a job was a job," but Odeon Theatre manager Elliott Brown is an expert now.

Twenty years after becoming a doorman and assistant-manager in a theatre in Saskatoon, his home town, the 41-year-old Mr. Brown has thoroughly learned his business.

Witness his Odeon Canadian showmanship championship in 1952. And also his theatre's first place in a nation-wide competition involving the Coronation movie, "A Queen Is Crowned."

"In three weeks, 56,000 people saw that movie here," he says. "That was more than the professional baseball team had all season."

Mr. Brown came to Victoria in 1951, following managerial positions in several Ontario, Saskatchewan and B.C. cities and a tour of duty in the RCAF overseas.

MOVIE, NOT STAR

Some thoughts on motion pictures:

"People come to see the movie in most cases, rather than the star . . . English movies hold the audience better, you come in halfway through and you're lost.

"As a rule, in the English movie, character actors are much better than in American movies; even two-minute types.

"My favorite film right now is 'Barefoot Contessa,' but it can change any time.

"At a cowboy movie or an Indian one, the family comes along and buys plenty of candy and so on. It's different at the English movies."

AFRAID OF PHONE

And: "A few years ago, when we advertised 'Ruby Gentry' by sending postcards from Vancouver to hundreds of men here, well, I was afraid to answer the phone . . . but people came to see the movie."

Pot Cargo En Route To Kitimat

The second load of pots for the aluminum smelter at Kitimat left Portland, Ore., Thursday night under tow of Island Tug and Barge Ltd's tug Island Navigator.

The trip with the 1,300-ton cargo will take approximately four days.

The fabricated steel pots are 29 feet nine inches long, 14 feet five inches wide and three feet six inches deep.

Installation of the pots, in which refined bauxite from the West Indies is smelted by an electrolytical process into aluminum, is a major step in an over-all plan to increase Kitimat's present capacity of 91,500 tons to an expected 330,000 tons by 1959.

Benny Show To Be Cut

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — Comedian Jack Benny announced Friday he will curtail his Sunday evening radio show for the fall season because of pressure of television activities.

His regular time slot has been taken over by Edgar Bergen.

The TACKLE BOX

BY JIM TANG

PROSPECTS GOOD: A check of Saanich inlet boathouses yesterday disclosed that there is every chance that fishing will be good today, which is good news for the 462 anglers who will be competing in the ladder derby's main fishoff. At least that's qualified anglers failed to pick up their tickets before the deadline of 5.30 last night.

Fishing reports appeared particularly promising for those who will be fishing out of Brentwood. Size is what counts today and most of the larger salmon caught yesterday were in the areas usually covered by Brentwood-based boats.

However, the fishing has also been good at the Goldstream end and the boating of a 21¾-pounder in Misery bay by Jack Paterson indicated that there are some potential derby winners in that area.

Derby rules are the same as in previous years. Fishing starts at 6 a.m. and fish must be in at one of the three weighing-in stations—Hall's, Holder's or the Anchorage—not later than 4 p.m. Fish must be caught with rod and reel and rods must be at least six feet in length. Fishoff pennants must be displayed prominently and must correspond with the number of rods being used on each boat. Each finalist is permitted to use only one rod and only those qualified for the fishoff may fish from a boat used by a finalist.

Derby officials stress that the inlet will be well patrolled before and during derby hours and that any rules violations will mean immediate disqualification. Tight lines to all of you. And me, too.

* * *

DIET-CONSCIOUS? If you're in a quandary about what lure to use today, why not try trolling some fruit. It worked yesterday for a couple fishing at Deep Cove.

After catching 18 grilse, the two anglers found themselves out of worms, but they still had a few fresh apricots in the boat. A strip was cut out of one and placed on the hook behind the gang troll. It was soon grabbed by a six-pound coho, thought to be suffering from a vitamin deficiency.

* * *

OTHER REPORTS: The story was the same from all parts of the Island yesterday—fishing good.

From Cowichan bay, Stewart's Auto Marine reported that yesterday morning was excellent with almost every boat in the bay out and a little bit of bedlam between 5.15 and 6 a.m. Almost everyone, it seemed, got a fish on during a good strike and there was tale after tale of lost fish because of tangled lines.

Plenty, however, were boated and there was some good news for those who have an aversion to being out on the water at the crack of dawn usually necessary at Cowichan bay. At least two anglers did well during the day. About to come in at 12.30, one party hooked a fish and finally showed up several hours later with 20, 18 and 15-pounders in the boat. Another party boated three, largest about 35 pounds, although not leaving the wharf until 10. A tide change just before noon might have stirred up the action.

In the Parksville-Qualicum area good-sized cohoes are being taken in numbers on bucktail flys and there is some good spring salmon fishing. Cohoes are concentrated off French Creek and best spring fishing off the mouth of the Little Qualicum. Guide Mike Gorik was one who found springs, clicking with 38, 25 and 23-pounders.

Bob Ennis reports from the Elk hotel in Comox that the tyee season is just about ready for its peak in Comox harbor. Today, Seattle's KING-TV will take pictures for presentation next Thursday and should get some fine shots with the Rotary derby providing plenty of anglers. Tyees have been uncommonly big this year, most of them weighing more than 40 pounds, many topping 50 and two 60-pounders already weighed in.

The story is the same at Campbell River, according to Alan Maclean of Painters lodge. The Tyee Club reports that the average weight is more than last year and that there is an increase of 50 per cent in the number of tyees registered. Coho fishing is also excellent in this area.

* * *

BOTTOM COMPARTMENT: Biggest salmon reported this year by an angler was the 77-pounder taken at Rivers inlet by Margaret Waldo . . . biggest at Campbell River is a 64½-pounder and biggest at often-under-rated Comox is a 64-pounder . . . with one week left in which to qualify, a total of 42 of 50 rungs have been claimed in the Cowichan Salmon Club's ladder derby. Fishoff for the 50 finalists is scheduled for Sept. 4 . . . Victoria's Wallace McMillan has probably caught more large salmon than any angler alive. The ardent veteran has registered no less than 258 tyees with the Campbell River Tyee Club since 1936, an average of more than 13 a year. His biggest year, and what a time he must have had, was 1943, when he caught 41 out of the 103 tyees registered. He left for Campbell River Friday to start his 1955 salmon hunt . . . Deep Cove should be a good spot this evening for anglers who might want to get out for a few hours after the fishoff scramble is over . . . Holder's Boathouse reported yesterday that there was a fair showing of coho and, of course, plenty of grilse . . . no sign yet of any coho action at Arbutus Island, a hot spot a year ago . . . W. L. Cousins, Seattle, is credited with the nearly-impossible feat of boating a 130-pound halibut on a line with a 10-pound test leader while fishing at Neah bay . . . Bill Renfrew had another fine fishing holiday. Fishing out of Hall's Boathouse and using his trusty Macs Squid plugs, he boated 38 salmon in eight days averaging about five pounds . . . and that's it for three weeks. It's holiday time, and time to do some fishing.

More Records Smashed At Canadian Swim Meet

MONTREAL (CP)—The carnival of record-smashing continued as the Canadian swimming and diving championships entered the final stages here Saturday.

The junior men's 440-yard freestyle mark was broken twice in qualifying heats. Don Johnson of Camp Chikopi, Ont., broke the record set by J. Bain of Vancouver by swimming the distance in 5:08.5—one tenth of a second faster than Bain.

But this record also quickly fell when Vancouver's Bill Slater splashed home in 5:01.1.

Three out of 10 qualifiers broke the Canadian record in the senior women's 100-yard butterfly event. Mary Jane Sears of the Walter Reed Club, Washington, D.C., finished with the fastest time of 1:07—compared with the 1:08.7 mark of Shelley Mann, also of Washington, in the first heat. Miss Sears was 1.6 seconds short of the world record.

Susan Sangster of Vancouver swam the junior women's 440-yard freestyle in 5:34.1. This was nearly two seconds better than the old Canadian mark set by Gladys Priestly of Montreal.

A total of 24 records were eclipsed at the three-day meet.

Anglers Enjoy Good Fishing Off Oak Bay

Evidence that the coho runs have started could have been seen at the Oak Bay boathouse yesterday, which recorded its best day in at least the past five years.

Not counting grilse, 126 salmon were weighed in between dawn and dusk, and proprietors Mr. and Mrs. D. Scott didn't get all of the salmon caught on their scales.

A 15-pound spring was the largest salmon but the bulk of the catch were cohoes up to 10¼ pounds and averaging between five and six pounds.

Most of them were taken off Ten Mile Point, which had the heaviest concentration of boats, but Trial island, producing for the first time this year, yielded the larger salmon.

Dodger and minnow, Tom Mac spoons and plugs, particularly the Macs Squid, were the more successful lures.

Wins State Title

SPOKANE—Erv Parent of Seattle defended his Washington State amateur golf championship Saturday with a two under par final round that beat University of Idaho student Dick Sheppard, 3 and 2.

HEANEYS PRACTICE

Heaneys of the Victoria and District Football League will hold workouts at Hollywood park at 6.30 p.m. Monday and Thursday nights. All last year's players and others interested are invited to attend.

BAYS TO PRACTICE

Foul Bay, the city senior "B" lacrosse champions, will hold a workout tonight at Stevenson park at 6.45. All players are requested to attend.

GREAT RIVER

The Brahmaputra (Son of Heaven) river flows nearly 2,000 miles from the Himalaya mountains to the sea.

Timely Catch

Mrs. Rod McLeod, 1278 Basil, couldn't have picked a better time than yesterday to catch this 34½-pound salmon. It was her birthday and her 16th wedding anniversary and she was fishing in the IBEW derby in Saanich Inlet. It won her first prize of a complete fishing outfit—rod, reel, line, tackle box and tackle—as well as a silver button. She hooked it at about 12.30 p.m. off Bamberton fishing with a large Davis Cut Plug, a pound of weight and 450 feet of nylon line.

Susie Butt Captures Island Tennis Crown

DUNCAN — Susie Butt of Victoria won the ladies' singles championship of the 67th annual Vancouver Island Open tennis tournament which wound up at the South Cowichan Tennis Club Saturday.

Miss Butt, the Victoria city open and junior champion, edged Bridget O'Kell, also of Victoria, 6-1, 3-6, 6-3. The two ladies then teamed up to win the doubles title from Maureen Bray of Victoria and Joan Bardsley of Vancouver, 6-1, 6-1.

Phil Pearson took the men's singles title by beating Jack Milledge of Westview, 6-1, 4-6, 7-5. Pearson was presented the trophy by Frank L. Kingston who won the silverware for the first time in 1912.

Pearson and Paul Willey of Vancouver took the men's doubles crown with a 6-3, 9-7 victory over Ken Clegg and B. Page. Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lee of Portland took the mixed doubles competition while Ed Kemble won the senior veterans' title.

Kemble and Carl Brand of Victoria teamed up to win the senior veterans' doubles title and Bob Preskett of Victoria took the men's consolation event. Miss Bray won the ladies' consolation title with a 6-1, 6-1 victory over Clare Kinnis.

The tournament, the oldest continuous event in the Pacific northwest, was played under perfect weather conditions on the Cowichan courts.

Heinrich, Epps Spark Giants to 28-17 Win

SEATTLE (AP)—The New York Giants punched out a 28 to 17 football victory over the San Francisco 49ers Saturday in an exhibition game played before a sun-drenched crowd of 49,000.

The passing of quarterback Don Heinrich and the running of chunky Bobby Epps carried the Giants to scores in every quarter while the 49ers were blanked through the second half.

It was a great homecoming for Heinrich, who played his way to All-America rating in this same University of Washington Stadium in 1950 and 1952.

Hugh McElhenny of the 49er backfield, a teammate of Heinrich in college, was unable to play because of an injured ankle.

The Giants trailed only once when Gordy Soltau booted a field goal in the fading minutes of the first half to give the 49ers a 17-14 halftime edge.

Early in the third period Heinrich pitched a touchdown pass to Ken MacAfee good for 61 yards. In the last nine seconds of the game the Giants applied the clincher as Alex Webster, a rookie from North Carolina State, plunged over from the nine-yard line.

Timbermen in Final—Defeat Pils in Hurry

NANAIMO — Nanaimo Timbermen, champions of the Inter-City Lacrosse League, moved into the playoff finals here Saturday night by handing Vancouver Pilseners a 17-9 defeat to in straight games.

Timbermen will meet the winner of the other semi-final between Victoria Shamrocks and Mount Pleasant Indians for the right to represent the West in the Mann Cup final, scheduled to start on or about September 12 on the West Coast.

LONG REST

Shamrocks lead Indians, 2-1, with the fourth game set for Vancouver Wednesday night. If Victoria wins, the best-of-seven final will probably start at Nanaimo next Saturday. However, if Indians force a fifth game, scheduled for Victoria Friday if needed, it's unlikely that the final will open until a week from Tuesday.

Timbermen proved conclusively they were the better club although Pils put up a stiff fight and twice got within one goal during a second-quarter comeback. But the Nanaimo club pulled away and won handily without being threatened again.

Pilseners missed a great chance in the first quarter when Timbermen had to play two men short for about 65 seconds as Pat Patterson and Bogie Stewart got successive penalties. But they were unable to get a dangerous shot at Fred Fulla and before the period was over, it was 1-1 for Timbermen.

Pils' Bill Chisholm and Derry Davies exchanged goals at the start of the second period, then Fred Aspin scored two in a row to reduce the Nanaimo lead to 5-4.

STOP RALLY

Bob Raffle scored for Nanaimo but Pils stayed close as Bob Parry beat Fulla. Then coach Arnie Dugan and Davies came through for Timbermen and the Pilsener threat faded. Timbermen outscored their rivals, 8-5, in the last half to add to their half-time lead of 9-6.

Both Fulla and Pils Ron Delmonico turned in fine games in goal with Fulla blocking 23 of 26 shots in the second half

Delmonico were veteran Jack Byford, who checked league scoring champion Jim McNulty to a standstill, and Chisholm, a junior, who scored three goals and played a sound two-way game.

Nanaimo's scoring was distributed among 10 players with Don Ashbee getting three goals and Davies, Raffle, Don Sherry

Timbermen's homebrews handled themselves well and between them scored six goals.

Eskimos, Roughies Win Grid Openers

Edmonton Eskimos, Grey Cup champions, opened their 1955 WIFU season at Calgary last night with a victory, but only after an unexpected tussle from the lightly-regarded Stampeders.

In the other WIFU game, Saskatchewan Roughriders, who finished the schedule last season tied for the lead with Eskimos, had less trouble in disposing of Winnipeg Blue Bombers, 17-7.

A touchdown by Normie Kwong late in the fourth quarter gave the Eskimos a hard earned 13-10 verdict over the Stampeders, who had led all the way and appeared to be heading for a big upset.

Attendance at Calgary was 15,000 while 13,000 turned out at Regina as the WIFU opened its 40-game season. On Monday, Calgary plays at Vancouver and Edmonton goes to Vancouver.

Stampeders moved quickly to an 8-0 lead as quarterback Tom Dickerson went over for a touchdown converted by Tom Miner and Edmonton's Oscar Kreuger was tackled for a safety touch.

Quarterback Jackie Parker put Eskimos back in the game in the second quarter by scoring a touchdown, converted by Gino Fracas. Then the score went to 9-7 as both teams got single points on deadline kicks and to 10-7 as Calgary got another singleton.

With five minutes left to play, Eskimos intercepted a Calgary forward pass in Stampeder territory. A forward pass tossed by Rollie Miles advanced the ball to the 20-yard line. Normie Kwong carried to the 14, Parker to the eight and then Kwong rolled over for the game-winning touchdown. Fracas again converted.

Stampeders showed more strength than anticipated and they have reinforcements on the way. Don Klosterman, a forward-passing quarterback cut by Toronto Argos, is on his way to join the club and it's also reported that Bob Shemonski, former Chicago Bear half back who had been trying out with Ottawa Rough Riders, will receive a Calgary trial.

At Regina, the Roughriders struck for two touchdowns in the first three minutes and then were content to protect their lead the rest of the way.

Ken Carpenter plunged over from the four-yard line for the first Saskatchewan score. A minute later, end Gordie Sturtridge intercepted a lateral by Winnipeg quarterback Buddy Leeke and ran 25 yards unmolested for another major.

Guard Reggie Whitehouse converted each time as Riders grabbed a 12-0 lead.

Bombers struck back before the quarter was over. Leake threw a 55-yard pass to Leo Lewis, who was brought down on the 13-yard line. Bob McNamara, Winnipeg's running star from University of Minnesota, carried to the four-yard line and Leake bucked over two plays later. Leake converted and the score was brought to 12-7 before the end of the quarter when Riders conceded a rouge.

Carpenter sewed it up in the third quarter, going over for his second touchdown from four yards out.

Riders rolled to 187 yards along the ground as their passing attack fizzled. Quarterback Frank Tribucka had four of seven passes intercepted and completed only two. But Bombers, who haven't beaten Riders in league games since 1952, could make only 57 yards along the ground. Leake completed five of 15 passes for 115 yards.

Crazylegs Plans Return

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Elroy Crazylegs Hirsch, star end for Los Angeles Rams who announced his retirement after last season, said Friday he would come back "if the team really needs me."

The former University of Wisconsin and Michigan Star, who now devotes his time to acting and announcing, added: "It still seems awfully early in the season to tell if there is a need."

After the Rams lost 31-28 to Washington Redskins on Wednesday night, there were reports predicting Hirsch would return.

Asked about rejoining the Rams, Hirsch replied: "I always did say that if they ever needed me I'd sure be available and that I would stay in shape."

Dorohoy Disappointed Over Sale to Seattle; Wants To Stay Here

BY JIM TANG

Ed Dorohoy, a Victoria Cougar stalwart for the past six seasons, has been purchased by Seattle Americans of the Western Hockey League from Montreal Canadiens but the 26-year-old veteran centreman says there is little likelihood that he will report.

Announcement of his purchase was made in Seattle yesterday and when the information was relayed to Dorohoy, who knew nothing about the sale, he said, "I don't think I'll leave Victoria. It looks as if I'll play here this season or not at all."

Not surprised at his sale but disappointed, Dorohoy disclosed that he had asked Canadiens to sell his contract to Cougars—on at least three or four occasions and that he had refused to join Montreal Royals for the coming season "unless they were willing to pay me an NHL salary."

WANTS TO STAY

"I've played here for the past six seasons and I want to stay here unless I can play in the NHL. There's no reason why they (Canadiens) couldn't sell my contract to Victoria."

Dorohoy has a new home in the city and growing business interests and made it clear that he didn't think that the Seattle club would be willing, or able, to make it worth while to move.

"I doubt very much that they will be able to compensate me for having to keep up two homes. Of course, I'll just have to wait until I hear from the Seattle club but it certainly looks as if I'll play here or not at all this season."

Billy Reay, who coached Dorohoy for the past two seasons at Victoria and is now general manager and coach of the Americans, wasn't surprised at Dorohoy's reaction.

"Naturally Eddie would like to stay in Victoria and I can't blame him for that. I think that I can change his mind when I have a chance to talk it over with him."

Dorohoy made it clear he had no objection to playing for Reay: "I've enjoyed playing for him very much and he has always treated me fairly."

Dorohoy would be a fine acquisition for a Seattle club which has to be completely rebuilt after dropping out of the league for a season and his loss is a severe blow to the Cougars, who have been trying to purchase his contract ever since their working agreement with Canadiens came to an end.

In five full seasons and part of a sixth, Dorohoy has made 445 points—156 goals and 289 assists—in 375 scheduled games with the Cougars.

He joined the club after the 1949-50 season started, appearing in 31 games and getting 15 goals and 16 assists. In five complete seasons he has played 344 out of a possible 350 games and averaged 28 goals and 83 points a season.

At the moment there seems little hope that he will be able to play a seventh season here. There is, however, always the possibility of a Victoria-Seattle deal should the Americans fail to sign him.

Hank Neilson Injured In Main Event Accident

Hank Neilson of Nanaimo was taken to hospital last night after a spectacular crash in the main event at Western Speedway.

Neilson, in his No. 92 stock car, lost control after a brush with another car in the 23rd lap of the 25-lap race. He crashed into the inner wall of the track and his car turned end over end and landed on its left side with its top to the approaching cars.

Bill Temple, in No. 7, smashed into the top of Neilson's car, crushing the roll bar down and forward to pin the driver against the steering wheel.

Early reports indicated Neilson might have a broken arm, crushed ribs and internal injuries.

Ray Pottinger won the main race, after a heated challenge by Dave Cooper was broken up by the warning flags when Neilson crashed. Cooper worked his way up through the pack despite a broken rear radius rod that made his No. 66 car almost impossible to hold on the corners.

The win was Pottinger's third of the season.

One of the features of the program was the press-radio scramble, won by sports announcer Keith McKenzie.

Arnold Palmer Wins First Pro Golf Meet

WESTON, Ont. (CP)—Arnold Palmer, who deserted the simon-pure ranks a year ago after winning the 1954 U.S. amateur title, had his first big pay day as a professional Saturday as he won the Canadian open golf championship with a near record 265—the second lowest score in the 46-year history of the tournament.

The 25-year-old ex coast guardsman from Latrobe, Pa., shook off the challenge of Jack Burke, Jr., of Kiamesha Lake, N.Y., and Freddie Hawkins of St. Andrew's, Ill. Palmer, the 1954 U.S. national amateur champ, finished with a 72-hole total of 265—a four-stroke margin over Burke and five strokes better than Hawkins.

The top Canadian in the tournament was veteran Stan Leonard of Vancouver who finished fourth with 272. Leonard joined the touring pros in the United States this year.

Fifth place went to the 1955 U.S. PGA champion Doug Ford. He had 273.

Palmer had rounds of 64-67-64-70 for his 265. It was the second lowest total in the history of the Canadian open and was topped only by the 263 shot by Johnny Palmer to win the meet when it was held in Winnipeg in 1952.

Palmer quit the amateur ranks last year after winning the American amateur title. He had small pickings in prize money distribution but squeezed in for a third-place tie last month in the St. Paul open.

Scotty Fraser of Panama City, Fla., was low amateur with a medal 283. Moe Norman of Kitchener, Ont., had 286 and Eric Hanson of the Toronto Scarboro Club 291.

Leonard turned in one of the finest rounds he ever played in the Canadian open, a title that has always eluded him. His 65 Saturday was two strokes off the low 63 scored on opening day by Charles Sifford of Philadelphia, who finished far down in the final reckoning.

Happy with his victory, Palmer said he is "going fishing and enjoy it." Then he will head for Montreal for the $26,800 open which gets under way next Thursday.

In all, Palmer has won about $6,100 in prize money including Saturday's $2,400. He had a second early this year in the Panama open—a tournament in which he could collect prize money before his U.S. PGA okay became effective.

A hit by rookie Elston Howard ruined Baltimore manager Paul Richard's strategy Saturday and enabled the New York Yankees to retain their one-game lead in the close American League race with a 3-2 victory over the Orioles.

The Chicago White Sox rallied for two runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 8-7, in another afternoon game. The Cleveland Indians scored a 7-5 night triumph over the Kansas City Athletics when Vic Wertz doubled with two on and two out in the seventh inning. Chicago and Cleveland remain a game behind the Yankees.

The fourth place Boston Red Sox fell 4½ games behind New York by dropping a 6-2 night decision to the Washington Senators. Pedro Ramos, a 20-year-old rookie right-hander, held Boston to seven hits, including Ted Williams' 22nd homer of the season.

ANOTHER FOR ROBERTS

In the National League night action, the Philadelphia Phillies rallied for the second straight evening to edge the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers, 3-2. Stan Lopata's two-run homer climaxed a three-run eighth for the Phillies. Robin Roberts, who defeated Don Newcombe in a 3-2 pitching duel Friday night, came in and got pinch-hitter Newcombe to roll a ball to him for the final out in the last inning with two Dodgers on base.

Howard's hit erased some complicated strategy at Yankee Stadium.

Howard came through with the game-winning hit—a two-run double in the fourth inning—after Richards concocted an elaborate bit of strategy designed "to let him eat his cake and have it too." Howard, a right-handed batter, was due to face southpaw Bill Wight with runners on second and third, one out, and the Orioles leading, 2-1.

Richards didn't want Wight pitching to a right-handed batter in a situation where a fly would bring in the tying run and he couldn't get out of the spot by walking Howard because the Yankees had two right-handers following Elston in the batting order.

So he brought in sidearm right-hander George Zuverink [illegible] ferred Wight to first base. The idea was for Zuverink to retire Howard and Andy Carey, also a right-handed batter, get out of the inning and then return the pitching chore to Wight.

But Howard crossed things up when he dropped a double into left centre that put the Yankees in front, 3-2. They had scored their first run on a walk, Yogi Berra's single, a force out and Bill Skowron's double.

PERCENTAGE?

Howard's double proved especially embarrassing to Richards because Wight had struck out Elston the first time he faced him and the second time he induced him to hit into a double play.

Tommy Byrne received credit for his 12th victory for the Yankees although he needed help from Bob Grim and Rip Coleman. The Yankees have won nine of their last 10 games, including five straight over Baltimore.

George Kell knocked in five runs and Chico Carrasquel homered to lead the White Sox to their eighth win in 11 games. The White Sox had 18 hits including four each by Nelson Fox and Jim Rivera.

Two City Track Stars Named to B.C. Squad

VANCOUVER (CP) — Alice Whitty equalled the Canadian women's high jump record of 5 feet 2 inches at the B.C. senior open track meet held at UBC Stadium Saturday.

Sharon Cliffe of Vancouver added 1 foot 11 inches to the B.C. women's shot-put record for a total of 37 feet 10 inches.

In a testing six-mile run, Ian Davies toured the stadium track 24 times in 32:41.4. This was well off the record pace but the sun-drenched crowd roared and applauded as Davies staggered over the line.

Bernie Ingley of the Vancouver Olympic Club shaved one-tenth of a second off the B.C. 440-yard hurdles time. The previous record of 58.5 was set by Pete Stewart last year.

British Empire Games star Terry Tobacco took first place in the 440-yard dash. This was Tobacco's first win of the year in that event.

More than 95 athletes took part in the meet, 10 of whom were selected to travel to the Canadian Olympic Training Plan at Toronto. They will also compete in the interprovincial championships at the Canadian National Exhibition.

Named from among the winners to the B.C. team were Rafael Duke, Victoria; Sue Burnett, Victoria; Jerry Reimer, Enderby; Sharon Platt, Trail; Jerry Swann, New Westminster; Ann Reid, North Vancouver; Bernie Ingley, Vancouver; Alice Whitty, Vancouver; Bob Reid, Vancouver; Carole Griffiths, North Vancouver.

The squad, along with its coach Fred Roots of Vancouver's Western Sport Centre, will leave for Toronto by air next Saturday.

Yesterday's scores: Incogs defeated Cowichan by seven wickets; Oak Bay defeated Albions by eight wickets.

Next game today: Alcos vs Five C's, 2.30, Windsor park.

Incogs and Oak Bay posted easy victories in Victoria and District Cricket Association play yesterday.

Incogs sent league-leading Cowichan down to its second straight defeat with a seven-wicket victory at Duncan. Oak Bay maintained its third-place tie with Incogs by defeating last place Albions by eight wickets in a match at Beacon Hill park.

Cowichan started strongly at bat but Incogs steadied with the help of fine bowling by Malcolm Shanks, who dismissed five Cowichan wickets for 22 runs. Reg Wenman and Ned Larsen led the Incog batsmen with 51 and 45 runs respectively.

COIN OPERATED "JUKE BOXES" ARE BY NO MEANS A RECENT INVENTION. BEFORE THE TURN OF THE CENTURY MANY INGENIOUS IDEAS WERE IN OPERATION READY TO PLAY A TUNE SIMPLY BY DROPPING A COIN IN THE SLOT. THE PLAYER PIANO TYPE WAS ONE OF THE FIRST BUT SOON THERE WERE COMBINATIONS OF INSTRUMENTS ARRANGED IN ONE CABINET SO THAT A MECHANICAL 5 PIECE BAND COULD BE OPERATED FOR A NICKEL. A LARGE WINDOW ADDED TO THE FASCINATION OF THE MACHINE BY EXPOSING TO VIEW SUCH INSTRUMENTS AS A VIOLIN, DRUM, CYMBOLS ETC. A PIONEER MANUFACTURER AND A FAMILIAR NAME IN THE GAY NINETIES WAS WURLITZER A NAME THAT IS STILL SYNONYMOUS WITH THE JUKE BOX.

For Canadian Supremacy

Shown above are the three new Gooderham & Worts trophies, which will be up for competition for the first time on Aug. 29, 30 and 31 at Hamilton in the first annual Canadian Lawn Bowling Championships. The new competition is patterned after curling's Macdonald Brier playdowns and is expected to give lawn bowling in Canada a great boost. Provincial champions will compete in singles, doubles and rinks for Dominion championships. Trophies, from left to right, are for singles, rinks and doubles champions. Sponsoring company will pay expenses of competing bowlers and play will be round-robin in each event.

Clarkson Top Hitter In 'A' Softball Loop

Bernie Clarkson, speedy third-baseman of Cec Fletchers, won the Senior "A" Men's Softball League title for the second time in three years according to statistics released by league scorer Ken Lloyd.

Clarkson made the 60 at bats necessary to be eligible for the batting crown. He pounded out 24 hits for a .400 average, 38 points above runner-up Archie Sluggett of Arrow Furniture. Dave Lowe, last year's champion, finished seventh with a .284 mark.

Sluggett also had the best pitching percentage with an 11-1 mark but Fletchers Barry Jackson racked up the most victories with 13, followed by Victoria City's Bud Ross with 12.

Wes Santee Fails Again In Four-Minute Mile Bid

TORONTO (BUP) — An unheralded assault on the four minute mile fizzled in a late August heat wave Saturday when Wes Santee whipped Gordon Pirie of England and Fred Dwyer of the U.S. army in a slow 4:11.1 mile before 2,000 persons at the Canadian Senior Relay Championships.

In 90 degree temperatures Santee, who has been close to the four-minute barrier more than half a dozen times, was content to lag in third place until the final 220 yards. Then he opened up like a Kansas tornado, whirled past Dwyer and Pirie and sprinted to the tape 2½ seconds in front.

EASES OFF

Pirie, who made a vain attempt to match Santee's closing kick, eased off when the Quantico marine crossed the tape and was in turn nipped at the wire by Dwyer for second place.

Both Pirie and Santee had hoped to crack four minutes Saturday.

Santee's time for the final quarter was 56.3 seconds. Santee was bothered less by the heat than any of his opponents Saturday but seemed content to run a tactical race. The sharp narrow bends at Varsity stadium are not suitable for a four minute mile attempt.

He ran his fastest previous mile, 4:00.5, in 90 degree temperature in Texas last year. Dwyer's fastest mile was 4:01.8. Pirie, who beat Santee two years ago, has been clocked in 4:00.5.2

Swaps Pads Earnings With One-Length Win

CHICAGO (AP) — Sensational Swaps, leading all the way but never by more than 2½ lengths, Saturday spurted to a one length victory over the fast-closing Traffic Judge to win the $146,425 American Derby.

Rex C. Ellsworth's chestnut colt [illegible] course, covered the mile and three-sixteenths in a record-matching time of 1:54 [illegible] equalled the American turf mark recently set by Platan in the Arlington Handicap.

But possibly such a time would not have been accomplished had not jockey Willie Shoemaker, coming nonchalantly up to the one-sixteenth pole, glanced over his shoulder and seen Traffic Judge bearing down upon him.

Shoemaker then went to the whip and Swaps responded to score his eighth successive triumph as a 3-year-old.

Traffic Judge, owned by Clifford Mooers and ridden by a substitute jockey, Peter Anderson, ran the same race as he did against Nashau in the Arlington Classic.

In that race last month, Traffic Judge, in a great stretch drive, nearly caught Nashua and failed by only one-half a length.

Swaps' triumph set up his $100,000 winner-take-all match race at Washington Park on Aug. 31 against Nashua, whose only defeat was by the Khaled-Iron Reward colt in the Kentucky Derby.

Swaps paid $2.40 and $2.20 to those who backed him in a crowd of 25,178 as a 1-to-5 choice on the board. Traffic Judge returned $3.20 to place. There was no show betting and there was a minus place pool of $1,933.

The victory swelled Swaps' winnings by $89,600 giving him a total of $418,530 as a sophomore and $439,500 in two years of campaigning. His two-year record now stands at 11 victories and two shows in 14 starts. He won his last race as a 2-year-old, so now has a streak going of nine victories.

Pollard Gets Draft Notice

VANCOUVER (CP)—Al Pollard, star import fullback with British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, has received a U.S. military draft notice to report for physical examination in Los Angeles.

Pollard said he has asked army authorities in Los Angeles if he can be examined in Seattle.

Coach Annis Stukus said Friday night Pollard will still be in Monday's lineup against Calgary Stampeders when the Lions open their WIFU season.

It was reported Pollard would apply for three months deferment if he was pronounced fit for service.

Ties Record

CHARLES SIFFORD

Playing in his first Canadian tournament, 33-year-old Negro professional Charles Sifford fired a record-equaling 63 in the first round of the Canadian Open golf championships at Toronto. Sifford, U.S. Negro national golf champion for the past two years, needed only 25 putts in his brilliant nine-under-par round.

Saanich Holds Lead By Edging Esquimalt

BANTAM LEAGUE

	W	L	T	Pts
Saanich	12	4	0	24
Esquimalt	11	4	1	23
Fernwood	5	11	1	11

Yesterday's score: Fernwood 12, Esquimalt 11.

Next game Tuesday: Fernwood vs Saanich, 11 a.m., Stevenson park.

Esquimalt blew a chance to overtake front-running Saanich in the Greater Victoria Minor Lacrosse Association's bantam division standings yesterday when it droped a 12-11 decision to Fernwood at Stevenson park.

Esquimalt still trails Saanich by one point as a result of yesterday's loss. The losers trailed Fernwood, 6-3, at half time and, although they outscored the winners, 5-4, and 3-2 in the last two quarters, the rally fell short of pulling the game out of the fire.

John McDonald sparkled for Esquimalt with a six-goal scoring spree. Four of McDonald's markers came in the loser's five-goal, third-quarter rally.

In yesterday's peewee division play, Saanich trounced Fairoaks, 19-5. Bill Munroe, who leads the league in scoring with 106 points, scored seven goals and collected five assists for Saanich.

Scorers and this week's schedule follow:

Esquimalt: John McDonald 6, Dennis Cea 1, Garry Millard 1, Bob Muse 2, Garry Woodward 1. Total 11.

Fernwood: Bill Wilson 3, Garry Martin 1, Rob Jones 3, Jerry Muse 2, Bill Mile 1, Danny Young 1. Total 12.

Saanich: Ricky Hodgkinson 3, Bill Munroe 7, Bill Heser 2, John Ransom 5, Ted Farley 2. Total 19.

Fairoaks—Neil Banger 3, Jack Truman 1, John Searle 1, Barry Lewis 1. Total 6.

MONDAY

10 a.m. — Diaper league: Tigers vs Blue Bombers, Stevenson park.

11 a.m. Diaper league: Fairoaks vs Greens, Stevenson park.

TUESDAY

10 a.m.—Peewee league: Fairoaks vs Fernwood, Stevenson park.

11 a.m. Bantam league: Fernwood vs Saanich, Stevenson park.

THURSDAY

10 a.m. Exhibition game: Girls vs Boys, Stevenson park.

SATURDAY

VANCOUVER (CP) — This west coast metropolis has been chosen as the site for the 1956 Canadian Olympic basketball trials and the Canadian championships, it was announced here today.

The trials, in the form of a four-day, double-knock-out tournament, are scheduled for March 23-27, said Joe Polley, western representative of the Canadian Amateur Basketball Association.

It will be the first time the Olympic trials have been held here. Toronto was host in 1948 and four years later they moved to Tilsonburg, Ont.

The 1955 Canadian championship in amateur basketball was decided between here and Port Alberni, B.C. when the Alberni Athletics beat Edmonton Townhallers.

"This is the Grey Cup of basketball," said Polley. "Actually, the four top teams from the newly created four major zones in Canada will be participating. This is another first for Vancouver and B.C. sports' fans."

He said selection of Vancouver was the result of a year of hard work by Vancouver basketball officials and the newly-formed B.C. Coaches' Association.

He said the high attendance recorded during last season's championships here had influenced the choice considerably.

WELLINGTON, N.Z. (Reuters) — New Zealand beat Australia 16-8 Saturday in the first Rugby Union test of the Bledisloe cup series.

Heavy Scoring, Upsets Feature British Soccer Season Opening

LONDON (Reuters) — The British soccer season opened Saturday in sweltering heat, with heavy scoring and the usual early upsets.

One of the most colorful inaugural games was the tussle between [illegible] League first division teams. The London squad marched onto their home field before a crowd of 50,000, parading the championship cup they won last season. Then Chelsea proceeded to go down to a 2-0 defeat at the hands of the northerners, who finished near the cellar in the 1954-55 season.

The first goal of the season went to Preston's Tommy Thompson. His was one of three Preston goals scored in the first half against Everton. Preston clicked again the second half to win 4-0.

PLAY 1-1 TIE

Wolverhampton Wanderers, still smarting from two defeats during their recent Russian tour, held West Bromwich Albion to a 1-1 draw away from home.

Sheffield Wednesday and Leicester, relegated to the second division, both made good starts in their bid to return to the first division. Sheffield trounced Plymouth Argyle 5-2 and Leicester whipped Hull City 4-2.

Jackie Sewell, Britain's most expensive soccer player when he was transferred from Notts County four years ago for nearly £35,000, was one of the day's big scorers. He connected three times for Sheffield.

Bristol City and Barnsley, elevated from third to second division status this season, also began well by defeating teams which finished in the top half of the second division last season. Bristol City edged Swansea Town 2-1 and Barnsley defeated Leeds United 2-1.

2 ♠	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 ◇	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	All Pass

There is some dispute as to whether the optimist or the pessimist loses more in the bidding, but there's no question that the pessimist gains a great deal in the play. The gloomy expert properly conjures up all sorts of disastrous distributions he may run into, with the result that he does what he can to safeguard against them. Often, he can do a great deal.

West led the ten of hearts, overtaken by East's jack and won by South. A trump was led to dummy's ace and South got the staggering news that all the trumps were banked against him. Declarer trumped a heart, cashed three rounds of diamonds ending in dummy and ruffed another heart. Next declarer went to dummy's club ace and made the "optional illusion" play. He discarded a losing club on the fourth diamond. Apparently, this was getting rid of a loser while forcing West to use one of his long trumps, but actually it was most helpful in getting West out of an end play. After trumping the diamond, West put his partner in with a club lead, and on the lead of a third club from East, West sat behind South's king-ten-seven with the queen-jack-eight of trumps. There was no way for South to avoid losing two more trump tricks.

If declarer had never tried to cash dummy's good diamond, but had simply continued leading clubs, after the second club lead West would remain with nothing left in his hand but four trumps. East could do no better than continue the clubs, letting West trump with his five-spot. But West would now be on lead and when he led the queen of spades South could make him a present of the trick, getting the gift back with interest when, on the next lead, West had to surrender two tricks to South's remaining king-ten of trumps.

There were various other ways for South to play the hand to make his contract, but the simplest was to visualize in advance the one possibility that might menace the contract—the possibility that West held all the missing trumps. To guard against this, declarer makes the safety play of putting dummy's nine of spades on the first spade lead. If East can win the trick, South will lose but one more spade at most. As the cards lie, he surely limits West to two trump tricks and this time, with the aid of a discard on the fourth diamond, he is able to bring home his contract.

SUNDAY, AUGUST 21, 1955

Today's quotation: "He never wasted a leaf or a tree. Do you think He would squander souls?"
—Rudyard Kipling.

Sunday for everyone: Make this largely a day of rest and spiritual renewal. Catch up on sleep and minor little tasks that may have accumulated. Keep clear of inharmony. Don't invite or listen to gossip.

Look for your birthdate and birthsign below.

March 21 to April 19 (Aries)—Put off co-operative activities. Encourage self-reliance without giving offence.

April 20 to May 20 (Taurus)—Keep your perspective. Maintain cordial relationships with those close to you.

May 21 to June 20 (Gemini)—Restore vigor and good-nature by getting added repose. Participate in some minor conviviality this evening.

June 21 to July 22 (Cancer)—Keep things on an even keel at home or with family. Stay close to familiar quarters in evening.

July 23 to Aug 22 (Leo)—Secure needed relaxation during daytime. Catch up with reading in the evening.

Aug 23 to Sept. 22 (Virgo)—Ask little from others. Rely on congenial, gracious behavior to keep the picture clear of difficulty.

Sept 23 to Oct 22 (Libra)—Draw sagacious conclusions from the insight you have gained. Be cautious, diplomatic.

Oct 23 to Nov 21 (Scorpio)—Complete tasks, overcome handicaps; catch up with rest and sleep. Avoid creating enmity.

Nov 21 to Dec 21 (Sagittarius)—Stay in the background and maintain cordial ties with friends, higher-ups.

Dec 22 to Jan. 19 (Capricorn)—Be mindful of the need for proper attention to responsibilities. Get out a bit during the day.

Jan. 20 to Feb 18 (Aquarius)—Catch up on rest. Be careful en route. Recheck plans; avoid controversial subjects.

Feb. 19 to March 20 (Pisces)—Take the path of least resistance. Look after and protect private interests, money matters.

Planning ahead—Good for entertainment, sociability, etc.: Aug 22, 23, 25, 27, 28.

MONDAY, AUGUST 22

Today's quotation: "Culture is simply the hospitality of the intellect."—Tom Kettle.

Homathko River Site Boost for Island Power

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

The surveys presently being conducted by the B.C. Power Commission in the Homathko river watershed may have important effects on the power future of Vancouver Island.

The Homathko river, for those who may be doubtful of its whereabouts, is one of the fast-flowing mainland rivers that tumbles into the sea at the head of Bute inlet.

It originates in Tatlayoko lake, and drops rapidly under the shadow of 13,260-feet-high Mount Waddington to the sea.

At tidewater the Homathko is about 65 miles as the crow flies north of Campbell River.

SEA CROSSINGS

This comparatively short distance, so far as power transmission is concerned, is complicated only by the fact that a number of sea crossings would have to be made.

Even this problem, however, has been largely solved by a recently discovered method of converting alternating current into direct current, and then converting it back at the far end of the transmission line.

The system, which I am told has undergone considerable test elsewhere, is regarded by electrical authorities as remarkably suited to the B.C. coast.

When the A/C is converted into D/C the electricity is carried by a single insulated cable. It may be laid in water by an ordinary barge, with the salt water itself being the conductor of the return current. With alternating current two cables are required.

Transmission losses with D/C are negligible, and the current is converted back into A/C where it is needed.

POWER FOR YEARS

If the Homathko river proves a suitable spot for hydro-electro development, it might easily provide all the power Vancouver Island requires for many years to come.

The direct current system of under-water transmission is also understood to be considerably cheaper than the heavy [illegible] Electric is proposing to string along the floor of the Gulf of Georgia to bring power to southern Vancouver Island from the Vancouver area.

The news that Trans-Canada Pipe Lines has made a contract to sell the Tennessee Gas Company 200,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas, for use in the United States, is another hopeful sign that eventually the interavailability of natural gas in the two countries will become an established practice.

Up to now Canada has shown no willingness to accept U.S. natural gas but the general principle has not yet been accepted by the Federal Power Commission.

This august and not-to-be pushed Washington body is still delaying its permission to give the Pacific Northwest Pipeline Company the right to purchase Canadian natural gas for sale in the Pacific Northwest.

Needs May Force Action

It has also to give its sanction to the deal just signed between Trans-Canada and Tennessee, but it seems that eventually the needs of the occasion will force the FPC to take action.

The deal being sought by Trans-Canada to sell gas to Tennessee at the international border to supply a gas line being constructed from Minnesota to Tennessee, is not fundamentally unlike the one in which Westcoast Transmission is involved.

In both cases the gas would be sold at the international border, one at Emerson, Man., and the other near Vancouver.

RAINMAKERS SPREAD

British Columbia power and forest product companies who have been "rain-making" for the last two summers in the coastal area of British Columbia will be interested to note that they are being copied in the east by Abitibi Power and Paper Company.

Abitibi is using the now well-known silver-iodide method of cloud penetration in the hope that it will cause precipitation to refill the rapidly dwindling water storage which supplies the company's hydro plants.

Abitibi calls it the "weather modification" system; on the coast the tourist industry calls it something less complimentary.

Learners Receive Badges

Half the persons enrolled in the Langford lake swimming classes received their badges last week at the end of the two-month course sponsored by the Langford Lions Club and the Red Cross.

Youngest winner of a beginner's badge was five-year-old Susan Dale of Leigh road.

Instructor Innes Cooper said yesterday that the enrollment was three times as large as in 1954. He was assisted by Red Cross instructors Eugenie Hird and Bob Muir, brother of strait challenger Bill Muir, from the start of the course, June 18.

ADULTS, TOO

Twelve adults were among the 144 swimming aspirants enrolled.

Beginners' badges were awarded to 53 persons, six years and older.

Badges for juniors were presented to Barbara Dyer, Marcia Mathias, Jo-Ann Smith, Beverley Whipps, Bernard Whipps, Ian Muir, Alex Muir, David Sherman, Lucille Merriman, Margaret Kay, Sharon Reece and Janice Jirardau.

In the intermediate section, badges were awarded to Arthur Zarft, Sandra Dale, Trevor Mathias, Vernon Spence, Jaye Knight and Alan Reece.

Single senior badge was presented to Larry Jirardeau.

In the Swim

Size of Class Big Surprise

By MARGE NAYSMITH

Last week's expedition to Salt Spring Island turned out to be quite an event.

We agreed to extend the Colonist swim classes, (now approaching the final week at Elk lake) to a group of 8 to 14 year old Salt Spring Island children, some 35 or so—we thought [illegible] were 72 children. They came from all over the island and with them were 72 sets of parents. I was met at the ferry like a visiting VIP and whisked off to the Harbor House pool where the 72 eager youngsters were waiting.

Well, it was a job. The pool is lovely but not suitable for 72 children to learn to swim in. The first day I put them through in shifts and then sank into a corner to confer with the PTA people who had so speedily organized the classes in four days.

CHOSE VESUVIUS

We decided to look elsewhere and finally chose Vesuvius bay, where the water is as warm as most lakes, though it is a fair distance from the communities. The PTA soon settled that problem by calling school buses into service.

So the following day, Saturday, I took the second lesson at Vesuvius bay. The tide was out and we had to walk half a mile to get to knee-deep water but it came off very well.

The children were eager and interested. One boy, 14-year-older, considered some of my teaching "baby stuff" but when I stopped the class and offered to let him take over as teacher, he didn't say any more. Though the class was supposed to be confined to children from 8 to 14 years, I took 10 six-year-olds as well when one little girl pleaded with me because she didn't "want to drown, either."

One of the reasons for the request to the Colonist was that PTA members on Salt Spring had had a couple of drowning scares during the summer.)

The whole two days was full of activity and enthusiasm and I admire the industry of the people who organized it.

The Elk lake classes will be in the final week this coming week. Last week we started testing and the weather, of course, has been ideal. (What do I mean "of course"?)

I've already put about 350 children through their tests but I'll wait until next week to tell you about the results. We have three classifications, swimmers' certificates, beginners' certificates, and certificates to show the child has attended classes.

Edinburgh Festival Opens Big Season

BY DAVID BROWN

The big season is beginning in the Highlands today with the start of the ninth annual Edinburgh Festival of Music and Drama.

Dramatic high spot of the [illegible] 10 is the world premiere of Thornton Wilder's "A Life in the Sun" on the apron stage of Assembly hall. The Old Vic company offers a new version of Shakespeare's "Othello," and the French actress, Edwige Feuillere, presents Dumas' "The Lady of the Camelias."

DANCE GROUPS

Royal Danish Ballet will be on hand for a modern production of "Romeo and Juliet" with music by Prokofiev. And, from Tokyo, come the traditional dance-dramas of Japan as performed by the Azuma Kabuki dancers and musicians.

Classical music is the highlight of the festival with concerts by six major symphony orchestras, including both the New York and Berlin philharmonics.

Conductors include Eugene Ormandy, Paul Hindemith, Josef Keilberth and Dmitri Mitropoulos. Among the scores of world famous artists booked for the occasion are Andres Segovia, Solomon, Zino Francescatti and Pierre Fournier.

Although hotels in Edinburgh have been solidly booked for months, last-minute visitors are guaranteed lodging by the festival society. A room with breakfast in a private residence will cost only about $1.80 a person.

Tickets for the various performances average 15 shillings or $2.10. A balcony seat runs as low as 42 cents, but a box at the opera goes as high as $16.80.

MUCH TO SEE

Edinburgh, located on the famous Firth of Forth, offers the visitor a good deal of variety in the way of sightseeing. Dominating the city from a rock 270 feet high is Edinburgh Castle, steeped in tradition. Here lived tragic Mary, Queen of Scots, who lost her head.

Here are the crowns, treasures and ancient regalia of Scotland. Each day from the battlements the "one o'clock gun" is fired, and the citizens of the city set their watches.

Nightly during the festival a full-scale military tattoo will be staged on the floodlit esplanade of the castle. Massed pipe and drum bands of the Scottish regiments will march in the white beams of searchlights and set the pace for the kilted, white-coated Highland dancers.

From the castle, the Royal Mile leads down to the Palace of Holyroodhouse where Elizabeth II holds Scottish court. The palace, which recalls many a colorful legend of the past, includes the apartments of Mary, Queen of Scots, connected by an inner stairway to the quarters of Lord Darnley. And below is the ballroom where Prince Charlie held his historic ball, while his castle was under fire.

At every turn are reminders of famous residents. Set in the gardens near the National Gallery is a memorial to David Livingstone, the Scottish missionary who greeted Stanley in the wilds of Africa.

Residents point with pride to the home of John Knox and the old coffee houses frequented by such literary customers as Sir Walter Scott, Robert Burns, Samuel Johnson and Robert Louis Stevenson.

Big social event in early September occurs at Braemar, the setting for the famous gathering of the clans and Highland games. Since the Royal Family is in residence at nearby Balmoral castle Braemar has had the patronage of reigning sovereigns since the time of Victoria.

UNIQUE SPORTS

The games offer first rate piping and dancing as well as some unique field events such as tossing the caber and "Scottish wrestling" in which the Highlanders take turns throwing each other.

Fall is the big outdoor season in Scotland, and both fishing and shooting are excellent. Hotels operate stocked salmon and trout streams for guests and hunters can hire a moor to overnight from Canada's east coast to Prestwick airport by any of half a dozen trans Atlantic airliners, and many are offering reduced fares, family plans and installment fares.

Information on sporting facilities can be obtained from the Scottish Tourist Information Board at Rutland place, West End in Edinburgh.

Tip Expected

Theatre-goers are expected to tip the usher who takes them to their seats at plays and concerts in most European countries. The customary fee is 15 or 20 cents, according to Pan American Airways' travel booklet, "Tips on Tipping Abroad."

Russia Returning to God?

NEW YORK (AP)—The Rev. Dr. Theodore Adams, of Richmond, Va., president of the Baptist World Alliance, returned Saturday from a two-week visit to Russia and reported a great "upsurge of religion" since his last visit there 21 years ago.

Dr. Adams, pastor of the First Baptist church in Richmond, arrived at Idlewild Airport aboard a Scandinavian Air Liner from Paris.

He told newsmen there was no general freedom of religion in the Soviet Union, but rather, a "freedom to worship."

Dr. Adams, accompanied by three other Baptist clergymen, travelled 3,500 miles in Russia and preached 18 times in 15 Baptist churches there.

"I was very much impressed by the sincerity of our Baptists, and there are 500,000 of them attending 54 registered churches," he said.

CASE OF THE Talking Corpse

[illegible] she said, but her [illegible] were in vain.

Police knew, of course, that a dead man could not answer a phone but the evidence seemed to belie this fact

By FRED DICKENSON

EERILY in that house of death, the telephone began ringing again even as the sheriff surveyed the body of Charles Mleynek. The 51-year-old farmer was slumped in a chair next to the instrument and two bullet wounds showed how he had died.

The sheriff picked up the phone. "Who's calling? Oh, it's you, Mrs. Clark. You'd better come back here as soon as possible."

It was 2:30 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 19, 1947. Mleynek's signal on the party line had been going unanswered all day and a farm neighbor had stopped by to see what was wrong. What he saw caused an alarm which brought Sheriff Charles Neidt of Madison County, Ia., to the farm outside Earlham. With him now were a physician and County Attorney Robert Frederick.

"That was Celeste Clark, the housekeeper here," the sheriff explained to Frederick. "Said she'd been trying to call here all day."

The physician completed his preliminary examination and turned to the investigators. "He's been dead almost twenty-four hours," he said. "A bullet hit this watch in his pocket, stopping it at 6:30. That must have been 6:30 last night."

The men followed a trail of blood to the back door where two more bullets were found in the wood at one side. Frederick said: "As I see it, Mleynek answered a knock at the back door and was shot there. He staggered back to the living room chair and died."

Who had seen the farmer? The investigators soon thought they had the answer. Mleynek had been feuding bitterly with Chester Duke, a Council Bluffs cattleman, over a business deal. Suit had been threatened. And Duke had made a date to come to the Mleynek farm at about 6:30 p.m. Saturday "to settle the matter once and for all."

The setting of the business date was corroborated by Mrs. Clark, the 39-year-old housekeeper, when she returned. Mrs. Clark had been taking care of the house for Mleynek for several months after separating from her husband, Leonard. But she had left early on the fatal night to visit friends.

"Then Mleynek was alone here when he had a caller," Sheriff Neidt mused. "We know Duke was due and they had been quarreling. It looks like an open-and-shut case to me. Bring him in."

Duke was found in Council Bluffs and was taken, protesting, to the sheriff's office. Rather than acting the part of a trapped murderer, he was red-faced and indignant. "What's the idea of dragging me into this?" he demanded. "Sure I heard about Mleynek being murdered. I'm sorry, even if we had been fighting. But I had nothing to do with it.

"I took a cab at Dexter and got to Mleynek's farm early," he said. "Soon after 6. I talked at the back door with Mleynek. We couldn't come to terms but he certainly was alright then."

Duke said he had had the cab wait out on the highway. After leaving Mleynek he had been taken back to Dexter. On this point the cab driver corroborated Duke's story. "Sure, I drove him back." "How'd he act?" "Well, he looked kind of flustered and told me to drive fast."

The cab driver said that he had heard no shots but that he had been parked quite a distance from the house which was set well back from the road.

The investigators resumed questioning of Duke, who seemed to have a sudden inspiration. "Say," he exclaimed. "I can prove Mleynek was alright after I left him. I called him up and talked to him on the phone."

Sheriff Neidt looked at the man steadily. "What time was that?"

"It was after I got back to Dexter. I decided to make Mleynek a better offer. I remembered looking at my watch in the phone booth. It was 6:35."

Neidt, knowing that Mleynek was by then five minutes dead, smiled faintly. "What did he say?"

Duke shook his head. "He sounded funny. His voice was higher than usual. He just said 'That you sell . . .?' I told him who I was and he hung up."

Neidt immediately called the small-town operator. His puzzlement grew deeper when she confirmed the fact that a call had been made to the Mleynek home at 6:35 and had been completed—that is, someone had answered. Then the sheriff's brow cleared. "'That you sell' . . ." he repeated. "Suppose the question was 'That you, Cel . . .'"

"Celeste!" Frederick said. "Mrs. Clark!"

"Right! Someone who knew her very well and thought she might be phoning would ask 'That you Cel . . .' Where was that husband of hers while all this was going on?"

A quick trip into Earlham located Leonard Clark, estranged husband of Mleynek's housekeeper, at a bar. He had a .22 calibre revolver in his pocket. When he was forced to repeat the question and Duke identified his high-pitched tone, he confessed the farmer's murder.

"I drove out to the farm Saturday night to try and talk my wife into coming back to me," Clark said. "I got there about 6:30. Mleynek came to the back door. He said that my wife never wanted to see me again and that he couldn't tell me where she was. I got mad. I pulled out my gun and shot him."

Clark said that he had waited a few minutes and the telephone had rung. Thinking that it might be his wife he had answered and asked the question which eventually solved the murder. He was found guilty of murder on March 1, 1947, and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

SEE VANCOUVER ISLAND FIRST

A Vancouver Island beauty spot that is seldom seen is lovely Sooke Lake, above. There is a good reason for this. Almost 80 per cent of the water used through the year in Greater Victoria is drawn from this lake. The lake, and the territory around it, are controlled by the Greater Victoria Water District, which, to guard the purity of the water, has banned the public from the lake area. The road through, however, is a government road, and the district asks only that people driving through stay in their cars for the approximate four-mile length of the road through the district. Here (as of course everywhere) the public is reminded to be careful with smokes. As the signs along the highway say "Keep B.C. Green . . . . Use Your Ashtray."

Huge, Wild Wood Bison Branded By Helicopter

By FRANCIS DICKIE

THE most extraordinary experiment for the first time undertaken in Wildlife Service study has been successfully carried out in Canada's Northwest Territories. Enormous and extremely wild Wood Bison have been painlessly "branded" by a helicopter spraying these with vari-colored sheep dye shot from a trombone fire pump at five-foot range upon the shoulders of the animals.

This unique idea was worked out by the mammologists in order to gather wanted biological data on the Wood Bison, incorrectly called buffalo. These Wood Bison (Bos Athabascae) are the only survivors in the world. Today in North America they are the nearest to the prototype animal which came from Asia, via Alaska, about a million years ago. Some spread across the continent. In time evolved sub-species: plains and mountain. Only a few of the plains type remain in private parks in the U.S.A. Canada has about 8,000.

In the year 1900, Bos Athabascae in sub-Arctic Canada was down to the near extinction number of an estimated 300. Under vigorous government protection the herd increased to 1,500 by 1926. In that year the government laid out Wood Buffalo Park, largest in the world, 175 miles by 145 miles, 17,300 square miles in the Slave River area. This is patrolled by eight wardens. Here the Wood Bison are estimated to now number 8,000. To mingle with them the government transferred 7,000 plains buffalo from its southern herd.

The 15,000 are now spread over this enormous area in widely scattered herds. In size the Wood type is somewhat larger than the plains, darker in color, hardier, with slightly different tapering horns.

The now mingled herds travel across the park at different seasons and routes. At present a great deal of biological data about them remains unknown. This the scientists now seek.

One important need was to mark some of the animals in the different herds. Yet to brand these agile enormous creatures by the usual cruel hot iron method was not possible either physically or financially. Some bulls weigh up to 3,000 pounds, can pulp a man in a matter of seconds. To meet this situation the mammologists worked out the schema of painless "branding" from a helicopter. This only required an outlay of $75 an hour for machine, men and material.

One of the north's most experienced flyers, Don Landells, was hired. Yet the experiment was so utterly different from anything previously carried out in flight it offered difficulties and dangers, requiring to learn new methods by experience. Before ever setting out, Landells faced the necessity of adding to the flying hazard. This was because the spray gun had to be outside the cabin door. This necessitated taking off the cabin door. Until later he could not know what this would bring about.

The best time was in late August. Then Landells flew a CFGHS Bell helicopter, of the Associated Helicopter Company of Alberta, from Edmonton to Fort Smith. He was joined by R. C. Stewart of Canada Wildlife Service who operated the spray gun. The helicopter was specially equipped with metal skids which permit landing on any ground short of perpendicular. (See photo.)

Daily the machine flew at top speed until a herd was sighted and one animal cut out. Generally a bull was chosen, though a few cows and calves were branded. When the animal was cut out, the 'copter slowed over its terror-stricken quarry running its fastest. However, the animal soon tired to a walk. (See photo.)

Stewart, leaning far out of the cabin, sent home the spraying dye to the animal's shoulders. Usually two shots were given, each carrying a pint of dye. This was the way the work was done on windless days. Windy ones called for different procedure. However, the time factor and cost made it important that every possible moment should be used.

When strong wind blew it was impossible to spray even the slowest moving beast. On such days the buffalo was chased until it became motionless from exhaustion, when the machine could hover almost touching its back, making possible a perfect marking. During the two weeks' flying 85 animals were painlessly "branded," 35 red, 30 green, 20 yellow.

Though vast the park, the increase of the herds has to be checked by an annual thinning out. To date 1,200 have been shot. Part of the meat is sold in Canada and to restaurants in the U.S.A. The rest is given to church missions in sub-Arctic Canada and to Indians.

The animals thinned out this year were those "branded" last August. These were immediately examined by the mammologists. The biological information thus obtained is now being reviewed by them. Should the findings indicate that "branding" gives rewarding results, the spraying will again be done in 1956.

The action pictures of this remarkable achievement in painless "branding" have just come out of the far north. As only one helicopter was used it is impossible to show the entire machine at work, but the outline can be glimpsed.

Metal skids on [illegible] permit easy landing.

On windy days 'copter ran bison to exhausted standstill to permit painless "branding."

Webb Finds First "Romance" In Film Story of Jazz Age

BURBANK, Calif. Jack Webb is going to kick over the traces that kept him womanless on the screen and TV, and have a real giddy love affair in "Pete Kelly's Blues," his new Warner Bros.' picture.

One of the reasons for his big career detour is because of special requests by the ladies themselves. They want to see the romantic side of black-haired Jack.

"Women have been writing me," said Webb, "asking me to give Joe Friday a little romance occasionally in 'Dragnet.' I don't feel a love element would fit Friday or the story situations.

"But in 'Pete Kelly's Blues' I'm an entirely new character, a cornet-playing band leader in the carefree 1927 era. Pete Kelly has a love affair, just like the women wanted. I hope they won't be sorry."

RESISTANCE LOW

Webb might have added that he doesn't succumb to the charms of blonde Janet Leigh, his screen heartthrob, until after the end of a long dramatic day in his life, when his resistance is low.

Also, that it's Janet who runs after him, while he's mostly running after a couple of law-breaking hoodlums. But Jack does stop long enough to engage in some very warm love moments with the curvy Janet, a joy-seeking product of the jazz and gin set in prohibition day Kansas City.

The lady letter writers will see enough to know whether they like Webb's kissing a woman.

In "Pete Kelly's Blues" he appears for the first time in five years other than Sergeant Friday. Besides directing the picture in CinemaScope he stars in it with Miss Leigh, Edmond O'Brien, Peggy Lee, Andy Devine, Lee Marvin and singer Ella Fitzgerald.

JANET DUBIOUS

On her part Janet wonders if she's the kind of girl Jack ought to be engaged to in a motion picture.

"I'm actually his first girl on the screen," said Janet, "and I'm not the kind of girl he can take home and introduce to his mother.

"I drink too much, throw all-night parties, run after him without shame and get angry when he won't pay attention to me. I also dance the Charleston like crazy and nearly mess up his career as a cornet player.

"Jack told me that many women viewers of 'Dragnet' have written him suggesting he have a romance in one of his pictures. When a woman says that, it means she's got some particular type of girl in mind for him.

"I hope I'm the answer to what they want for Jack."

Janet Leigh listens to the playback of one of her songs in the film "Pete Kelly's Blues."

Jack Webb natty attired for his jazz age role in the same film—first with romance for him.

SIMPLE QUESTION

"I'm not as handsome as Apollo, nor as rich as Croesus," he said. "But I love you. Will you marry me?"

"Mm . . . that is . . . I also love you," the maiden replied. "But where do your friends live?"

"Which friends, darling?"

"Apollo and Croesus, naturally."

(Pour Tous, Lausanne)

SHOULD YOU DRINK?

By CHARLES H. DURFEE

This is the last of a series of articles on the causes and treatment of problem drinking. The author, Charles H. Durfee, Ph.D., is an expert in the rehabilitation of problem drinkers.

CHAPTER XII

ZERO HOURS

WHILE it is rare to find a man whose compulsive drinking followed any set schedule, since most problem drinkers drink whenever and wherever they can, there are certain times and occasions when from long habit the drinker's hand reaches automatically for his bottle.

As every working man or woman knows who has enjoyed alcohol as a steady habit, even if held in moderation, one such "zero hour" is the period immediately after office closing.

In every city or town of substantial size when the hordes stream out of the tall buildings heading for bus, trolley or subway, a considerable segment pauses at the nearest tavern's neon-lighted summons; a smaller element seeks an uptown private club.

It is this hour particularly when the new ex-drinker may find himself strangely and unaccountably restless yet fatigued at the same time, even though his thoughts may not actually be concerned with liquor. It can often be successfully survived by walking home or by some more active exercise.

Many bowling leagues, for instance, sponsored by large business corporations attract the type of man who does not want to drink at this hour or the man who has given up drinking altogether. This may not be his primary motive for taking up bowling but it is frequently a subconscious method of "escape" from a [illegible] habit pattern which [illegible] increasing popularity is surely getting harder to resist each year.

COCKTAIL HOUR

If the first zero hour can be termed an occupational hazard the second zero hour can be termed a social one. It is cocktail time preceding dinner. And since it is observed with all the reverence of a ritual by contemporary civilization it is practically unavoidable on land, sea and in the air.

The only professional advice one can give the ex-problem drinker is either to time his arrival home close to the dinner hour or to fill in the gap before dinner with a brief nap. Lying down and relaxing, if only for a quarter of an hour, is an excellent habit to cultivate. Simple as these suggestions are and incredible as they may appear as substitutes for the glow engendered by a few cocktails, I have been advocating them for many years and can vouch for their practical success in many cases.

There is an exception to the above rule. Sometimes a man's particular haunt, his favorite bar or club will exert a compelling pressure on him at one of the "zero hours." Fighting to keep away will only exaggerate his problem.

My advice then runs along these lines: Don't burn yourself up struggling to change your habits all at once. Stand up to the rail with the men you're used to meeting. Only make one change. Instead of your usual drink try a tall glass of ginger ale and lime. Remember that just going through the motions will help and nine out of 10 ex-drinkers will substantiate this. But to fight it out and avoid the club and your friends will only intensify the issue in your mind.

FOR THE EVENING

The responsibility for the period between dinner and bedtime must rest with the wife and family in the first month or so of rehabilitation until the ex-drinker establishes his own work sheet of relaxation, hobbies and interests. Anything that will relax him or absorb his attention is to be recommended. Television, radio, going to the theatre, concerts or movies.

I know of one unique case in which a young business executive had an avid interest in the development of adult and intelligent motion pictures. It was a personal hobby which eventually gave him a keenly critical eye for the merits or shortcomings of each new screen production. Faced with the ex-drinker's inevitable rehabilitation problem of what to do with his evenings, he had an inspiration.

He applied for (and got) the job of movie critic for his local newspaper. It kept him busy several nights a week in a way that was congenial to him and added at the same time to his prestige in his community while in no way interfering with his regular job.

This, of course, is an ideal type of hobby or subsidiary activity, which strengthens an ex-drinker's convictions that he is on the right path, while adding to his "layers of confidence." Ideal because it is relaxing and because it is simultaneously an advancement of his own constructive influence upon his community.

HELPING OTHERS

For the man who finds his real peace of mind in helping his fellow man there is undoubtedly no finer or more satisfying dedication than that contained in the 12th step of the Alcoholics Anonymous program:

"Having had a spiritual experience as a result of these steps, we tried to carry this message to alcoholics, and to practice these principles in all our affairs."

This AA calls the practice of a "higher selfishness." That is to say, in helping other and more unfortunate addicts the ex-drinker fills his new life positively with good works, in which he can successfully apply the principles of medicine and religion both to himself and to others.

If it is possible, and the family doctor permits it, it is well to include some exercise during the evening between dinner and the sleeping hour, since exercise induces normal and healthy sleep without recourse to sedatives.

If the walk into town or around the next lot to air the dog has not brought on the desire for sleep, just note for yourself how unfailingly reading for pleasure in bed will relax the mind, ease the tensions and worries and prepare you for slumber.

But please note that I insist the reading be for pleasure. For therein lies its therapeutic value. It does not matter if it is Shakespeare or Ellery Queen, the Holy Bible or Hemingway.

HAVING A PARTY

"See here," one of my ex-patients telephoned me after I had not seen him for some months, "[illegible] and I are giving our first real party tonight since I got back. All the old crowd are coming. She feels safe and I feel safe. But brief me on how to act. Do I mix and serve the drinks, for instance, the way I used to?"

"If you would like to," I said. "You'll have to do it sometime. Why not begin now? If you can't face seeing or handling liquor without taking some, we might as well know it now."

To sum up, the ex-drinker must learn to call a halt at the first sign of strain, to relax before his inner tension gets the better of him at a "zero hour" or any other hour. He must know that to strive beyond his powers is to jeopardize the state of inner equilibrium he is slowly building within himself, leaving him no means of release except the old means, alcohol.

As for the cultivation of new activities and new interests, there can be no set formula, since these interests must vary with the individual. They could be anything ranging from painting to politics, rock gardening to real estate appraisal.

But no matter how trivial or serious, anything that will broaden his social and mental horizons, turn his thoughts from self-preoccupation to the wide world at large, expand his personality, will speed him unconsciously toward his goal.

From the book "SHOULD YOU DRINK" by Charles H. Durfee, [illegible] 1955 by The Macmillan Company. Distributed by The Register and Tribune Syndicate.

Even with the days of "Fill 'er up!" behind, every day still has such zero hours as the period just after office closing.

Men's Suits More Comfortable; Pink Shirt Not Only Change

NEW YORK (NANA) To refute the belief that men's fashions were dormant in the pre-pink shirt age (circa 1903 to 1953) Ephraem Witty, president of Witty Brothers clothing stores, has listed 10 important style revisions that came about before the "renaissance."

The fashion pace was hardly fast enough to outmode a blue serge suit before its shine reached top brilliance. But Witty's list of changes does serve to clear his predecessors of charges that there was nothing new in men's wear until pink shirts and charcoal suits arrived.

IN PRACTICE

The appearance of the dapper [illegible] executive testifies that he practices as well as preaches [illegible] fashion awareness. For example he plays up his silver hair with a slate-grey [illegible] silver tie and huge cuff links. He has been known to [illegible] one of his two sons an evening out because the teen-ager [illegible] started off to meet his high school pals wearing blue jeans and a T-shirt. Witty firmly believes proper clothes make a man of a flighty boy.

The Witty big 10 list, more in order of importance than chronologically, begins with the gradual change from heavyweight to lightweight suits. It goes on to include the cut of the suit, softer shirt styles, ties made for the season, soft hats that have replaced hard derbies and straw skimmers, socks with built-in garters, zippers instead of buttons, the switch from high-buttoned shoes to oxfords and loafers, belts instead of suspenders and, finally, elimination of the vest.

LIGHTER "BODY"

"The construction of a suit has been lightened through the use of interlinings blended from hair, wool and cotton in place of the old heavy canvas types once used to provide 'body' to a suit," Witty explained. "Padding has been minimized and suitings themselves have gone from 16-ounce weights down to [illegible] ounce without losing one ounce of durability.

"Suit salesmen have changed their entire approach as a result. They once grabbed a coat by the scruff of the neck, heaved it high and told a customer '[illegible] can hardly lift it. This suit [illegible] outlive you.'

"Now they hook a finger into the collar, swing the coat aloft and tell the prospect, 'It's light as a pyjama coat, and you can sleep in it without getting it wrinkled.'"

CHANGES IN CUT

Witty also enlarged on the change in cut. "No more high collars, tight sleeves or other restricting features. Designs are carefully engineered so the shape of the suit is the most comfortable and flattering possible."

As for men's shirts, he told of the emergence of the [illegible] soft collar in preference to the high hard collar, and noted that soft shirt fronts had almost completely replaced stiff ones for [illegible] wear. Men also have been freed from wearing the same fabric and shape in ties from season to season. They can now have wrinkle-shed cotton or lightweight silk for summer and loose woolens for winter.

Witty sums up the entire trend over the last 50 years thus: "All changes have been geared to more comfort."

Captain's Diary Tells of Gaiety In Old Victoria

By JAMES K. NESBITT

HENRY MAYNARD BALL was a handsome, dashing gentleman who frequently came to Victoria in the 1860's to attend social events.

He lived in New Westminster, and later in the Cariboo, and when he wanted a party or two it was to this place he came.

Capt Henry Maynard Ball handsome and tall, much sought after by Victoria hostesses; in middle life, and in old age in the Cariboo.

He had a wife in England, but what he wrote of her was not highly complimentary.

Hearing only his side of the story Victorians, especially the ladies, were very sorry for poor Capt Ball and invited him to their tables for elaborate dinner parties. Capt Ball was not only handsome, he was a good conversationalist.

The social life that went on in Victoria and in New Westminster, too in those far off, frontier days must have been quite exhausting, but our earlier day residents went through the routine and seemed to thrive on it.

LEFT DIARY

Capt Ball has left us a diary, in which he chronicled one social event after another.

He started his diary in 1864, with the entry "I commenced at Lytton to commemorate all trifling and important events occurring during the remainder of his life after having attained —the advanced age of 39 years and thinking that it is high time that some memoranda should remain of his ill-spent life. As with advancing age memory is fading so it is more necessary to have recourse to these pages to refresh the memory of past occurrences."

As we see from this, Capt Ball was a man of ups and downs: one minute he was depressed, the next bright and gay. That fearful age of 39 entirely depressed him! Life was finished for him! But not for long, as we shall see. Capt. Ball was to have his moments!

The gallant captain had an eye for pretty ladies, and he took note, too, of their costumes. He wrote this of a ball at Government House in New Westminster: "The ball, to which all the world from Victoria and New Westminster were invited. Enjoyed myself till 6 a.m. Governor Kennedy and family, Admiral Denman and Mrs Denman and several people from Victoria, Cary amongst others.

GREAT SUCCESS

"The ball was a great success —was the best affair given in either colony. The supper was excellent with an unlimited supply of champagne.

"Met Capt. Sullivan of the Sutlej, who says he met me 20 years ago in Sydney. Governor Kennedy told me he was 11 years in the 11th regiment, my old regiment, and he had seen many of our old fellows in the regiment.

"I find living in the country unfits one for conversational purposes in society and makes one, as Mrs. Denman's maid said, quite a barbarian.

"The ladies were well dressed and altogether it was a very creditable appearance, for a colony."

Every now and then Capt Ball mentioned his wife, in England. Such a notation as this is typical: "She is still the same improvident, petulant woman and is certainly a millstone around my neck."

JOLLY EVENING

But domestic unhappiness could soon be forgotten in the gay and giddy whirl of social life!

The night after the ball Capt Ball "dined with Governor Seymour and met the Kinds and Kennedys ... a good dinner and good wine and a rather jolly party."

And again, the night after that: "Houghton arrived from Victoria and we went to the Governor's in the evening ... very jolly evening, dancing the cotillion and kept up till 2."

A few days later the captain came to Victoria on a visit: "Dined with Cooper and Basilgette and went to the theatre and came home rather tired and bored."

In Victoria, on that occasion as always, Ball went to see his friend George Hunter Cary and he put this into his diary: "Heard sad news of poor Cary's difficulties and hope he may get through them all without any trouble but fear it's all up. Poor little woman ... what will she do, all her ambitions, ideas and lofty castles dashed to the ground. Those infernal mining speculations have been the ruin of the family as I predicted to him several years ago, poor fellow— I am really sorry for him."

DID ROUNDS

Capt. Ball did the rounds in Victoria, visiting here there and everywhere. Hospitable doors were opened wide to him. He wrote: "Went to see Lady Douglas —and then to Esquimalt to Foster's, found Foster gone to Sooke, stayed during the evening and slept there and nearly frightened the maid servant to death by opening the window of the bedroom. Spent very pleasant evening and one to be remembered. My godson (Foster's son) growing very much, and much like Foster. Opened out my heart to the only person who could sympathize with me."

And day after day the visiting went on: "Called upon Mrs O'Reilly, then went to Cary's — Mrs. Cary not well — dined there."

Back home in New Westminster after such a round Capt. Ball was tired out, bored and depressed. To his diary he committed his thoughts: "My trips to Victoria are all the enjoyments I look forward to from one year's end to the other. Ah, mine is a miserable life and I see no end to it as long as the mill stone is around my neck. I hope my two sons may escape the snares and wiles of such as Deborah's when they grow up. No one but myself knows the misery that woman has caused me and made me curse the day that I met her and more the day when I was induced to marry her."

A miserable life that Capt. Ball lived? The day after he wrote that he must have been in great spirits again, for there was a dinner at Government House in New Westminster: "Dined at the governor's — an official dinner — the governor very kindly offered to take me down with him in his boat to Victoria, the steam Leviathan — and offered me a seat in his box at the theatre to see the Keans. Intend to accept as it is well to be in favor at head quarters and I shall have an opportunity of renewing my acquaintance with Governor Seymour to whom I seem to have taken a particular fancy, as much privately as publicly."

TWO COLONIES

There were two British Crown colonies in those days—Vancouver Island, where Kennedy was governor, and British Columbia with Seymour as governor. There was great rivalry where social events were concerned between the two colonies. Capt. Ball managed to shuttle between both.

He wrote of the day he sailed from New Westminster to Victoria in the governor's ship: "Had our photographs taken in a group, after that came up to Government House to start for Victoria in the Leviathan. Steam pipe burst and returned to dinner at Government House ... after dinner endeavored to start, found tide had gone out, and left the boat high and dry. Governor in a rage. Went back to Government House and slept there that night."

Next day the party started once more for Victoria: "Started early, ice in river, not much; off Discovery Island came on to blow and the Leviathan kicked about, felt awfully sick but got over it towards the end of the journey. At the mouth of the harbor ran aground and was delayed a half hour. Got in about 9.30 p.m. and went to the St. George Hotel, dressed and went to the theatre, of course too late to see the Keans, and only in time to see a miserable farce."

"POOR CARY"

And now the happy round-delay was on again: "Called on Cary at his castle, and found Mrs. C. much better in health— but very much depressed in spirits about poor Cary's affairs; in the evening went to the theatre and saw the Keans in Hamlet but the want of scenery and the smallness of the theatre took away half the effect; however, I was very much pleased. The niece, Miss Chapman, acted very well, and is rather a pleasing actress, and person in society. I took rather a fancy to her, seeing her at the Kennedy's next day.

"Called on the Fosters at Esquimalt and found only Mrs Foster at home looking wretchedly ill and thin; took the children some toys for Christmas. I and Cornwall go there for the Christmas holidays, to sleep there. In the evening had Cooper and Basilgette to dine at the St George, bad dinner, played poker."

Then it was back to New Westminster for a few weeks' work, and now came Christmas and so again to Victoria: "Went down to Victoria in the Fidelater with Cornwall, went to the theatre and saw the comedian Coppins. Went out to Fosters to stay and found the house all in confusion, not expected until the next day. Mrs F. looking better and as jolly as ever and as proud of her beautiful boy as ever. Gave Foster and Mrs Foster two noggets for Christmas boxes."

PENETRATING COMMENT

Ball made some rather penetrating comments about people he met at Christmas parties. There was this: "Parson rather stewed, and wife also. Excusable at Christmas."

While in Victoria that time there was an auction at Cary Castle. Ball attended and "bought his cows and two calves for $30 each and the calves at $12.50 each to be sent out to the Mackenzies to ranch and I will send for them in the spring."

New Year's Eve Capt. Ball was back in New Westminster: "Dined at Government House— and had a jolly evening, several ladies present ... played blind man's bluff, charades and dancing."

Early in January came the annual ball of the executive council in New Westminster: "The day of the ball fearfully cold ... steamer Enterprise arrived with people from Victoria. Mrs. Foster on board, who stopped with the O'Reillys and who was as cross as blazes at the ball and looked fearfully ill on account of the cold room. The ballroom was well decorated, but the weather so intensely cold that nobody could enjoy themselves, and everybody went away disgusted and early. The supper would have been good, but it was all a mass of frozen chicken and jellies. Beer and soda water all froze, and burst the bottles."

DANCED TILL 5 A.M.

Next day: "Still intensely cold—F. recovered her temper and good looks and walked with me to Crease's—she dined at Government House in company with the O'Reillys."

The day after that there was another party: "Went to one of the best balls at Government House I had been at in the colony ... danced till 5 a.m. Mrs. F. dressed in black silk, with big blue sash and looked well."

Then all the Victorians went home and New Westminster settled down and once again Capt. Ball was plunged into gloom: "Snow—everybody dull and stupid after the excitement."

Every few nights, however, he went to Government House for a quiet dinner and some cards: "Dined at Government House— played poker ... won $51."

Capt. Ball was counting the days until his next visit to Victoria for Easter. Here are some notes from the Ball diary on that occasion: "Went riding to Tod's farm with Foster and wife, first time I ever went out with her ... looks well on horseback — had a very pleasant ride, but Foster got savage as Madam could not keep her foot in her stirrup. The only ride of the season and one I shall remember. In the evening Mrs Myles dined there, and we all played whist . . ."

"NICE LITTLE HOUSE"

"Easter Sunday ... went to church at Esquimalt with Mrs. F and Mrs M. and afterwards walked into Victoria to dine with the Carys. They live now in a nice little house en route to Beacon Hill, very [illegible] and jolly ... and feel more at home than in the big house.

"Dined at Woods the A.G., bad dinner and worse wine. Miss L. looked very pretty. In the evening went with the Woods, Elliotts and Walker to the private theatricals and afterwards had oyster supper with Lowey Cooper and finished up at the Fashion, where I met Lascelles and Pender, very drunk, and certain fair damsels."

Soon after this Ball was transferred to Yale and Lytton and so could not come so often to Victoria.

He was here next at Christmas, and again there was a constant round: "Went to the Fashion and was awfully disgusted with myself and everything

"Coast-Wise" Pilots Guide Deepsea Ships

By GEORGE NICHOLSON

AFTER weeks at sea one becomes so accustomed to the vibration caused by the churning propellers that when it ceases the stillness is uncanny and for a while you wonder what's wrong. When you experience this on the night boat to Vancouver you are at your destination, but on an ocean liner it invariably means that the ship has stopped to "pick up a pilot" and has several miles to go yet.

This view of Tahsis Inlet, on Vancouver Island's west coast, was taken by a pilot from the bridge of an inbound freighter. On the right ahead of the ship is a sandspit which, covered at high tide, would be a hazard for any ship lacking a pilot.

Sailors 1,000 years ago steered their ships over the ocean with the aid of the stars and the navigation officer of the world's largest battleship still takes a "fix" on some constellation in the sky when he wants to pinpoint his position on the chart. But these luminous bodies in the heavens wouldn't help a captain navigate his ship through Seimour Narrows or berth it safely at any one of B.C.'s 26 deepsea ports.

TOOK SOUNDINGS

In days of sail if the captain had any doubts about the entrance to a harbor or inlet, he dropped anchor and sent a ship's boat ahead to take soundings; then when tide and wind was favorable, proceeded cautiously under short sail. Later when tugs were available he broke out the letters YA, the international signal "I require a tug," and his ship was soon on the business end of a towline.

These days, regardless of radar charts and other modern navigational aids, few captains dare take their ships into unfamiliar waters without the assistance of some qualified man with local knowledge, or will the owners or underwriters let them.

Pilots are employed all the world over and in most countries it is compulsory. In Canada the law is not so strict and on the B.C. coast except on the Fraser River where it is mandatory, it is optional whether a ship takes a pilot or not. But as all deepsea vessels entering or leaving B.C. ports are required to pay the prescribed pilotage fees whether they employ one or not, few fail to take advantage of the service.

The B.C. Pilotage Authority employs 48 pilots, 29 at Vancouver, 17 at Victoria and two at Nanaimo. The superintendent of pilots is Captain F. N. Eddy whose office is in Vancouver. Victoria is a sub-office. Fraser River pilots come under a separate authority administered by the Fraser River Harbor Commission and are employed exclusively on the river. The change-over from the salt water pilot takes place at Sandheads Lightship.

BOARDING STATIONS

The pilots are picked up at places known as "boarding stations" and B.C. has two, at Race Rocks near Victoria and Triple Island about 25 miles from Prince Rupert. But by special arrangement and provided the vessel already has pratique, the pilot may be picked up at two other points; at Cape Beale when a ship coming in from sea wishes to proceed direct to Port Alberni, Ocean Falls or Kitimat, and at Pine Island when proceeding direct to Powell River or Vancouver via the north end of Vancouver Island and the inside passage. Also under the same arrangement, when a ship clears deepsea from Port Alberni the pilot may be dropped at Cape Beale, or off Nootka Light when outward bound from Tahsis.

The pilot first ascertains if the ship has pratique. This is a clearance as to health and is usually granted by radio if the vessel is coming from an American west coast port. If she hasn't, or is inbound from any other country, he takes her to William Head and after receiving clearance, uses his local knowledge to assist the captain to proceed to his destination and berth.

If for any reason a ship has to remain at anchor for several days, provided it is a recognized safe anchorage the pilot leaves her but must board her again before she moves. All ships that pick up a pilot at Victoria or Vancouver and are bound for any port north of the 50th parallel via the inside passage, require two pilots. And when a vessel moves from a B.C. port to one on Puget Sound or to Alaska, the change-over from a Canadian to an American pilot, or vice versa, takes place at the international boundary line.

FULL TIME DUTY

Three pilot boats are maintained at Victoria and there is a despatcher on duty day and night. Two of the boats are on call 24 hours daily. Each has a radio telephone and to facilitate locating ships in the straits in foggy weather one is equipped with radar. During a 24-hour period sometimes as many as 10 ships either pick up a pilot at Race Rocks or drop one off Brotchie Ledge when outward bound.

To become a pilot a man must possess either a coastwise master's certificate or a tugboat captain's ticket with at least five years' experience as a master on the B.C. coast. A rigid medical examination is also insisted on, for boarding a ship in rough weather, especially one riding high out of the water is both difficult and dangerous. With the pilot boat bobbing about like a cork and in danger of being smashed to pieces if it hits the ship's side, it requires both nerve and skill to grab the "jacob's ladder" dangling down from the railing. Then with his grip in hand, for he might be away for several days, the pilot has to climb sometimes as many as 40 rungs before he reaches the deck, then again up at least two companion ladders to the bridge.

The language question sometimes presents a problem, but there is usually one member of the crew who speaks English. Most pilots, however, find it sufficient to memorize a few navigational words in Greek, Italian or Spanish.

CAPT. A. J. GILBERT

CAPT. CHARLES I. HARRIS

CAPT E. H. SWEENEY

CAPT R. W. E. STRANGER

EXACTING WORK

Captain A. J. Gilbert, who retired last month after 23 years in the service, started his seafaring career as a deckhand on a tugboat out of the Maritimes and later commanded freighters in the trans-Atlantic and Pacific trade. Born at Fredericton, N.B., since coming to this coast in 1910 he has served on every Canadian National steamer plying out of Vancouver. Among the last vessels he piloted were the Orient liners Oronsay, Orcades, Orsova and Orion, the largest passenger ships ever to enter Vancouver harbor. He resides at 3831 Blenkinsop Road.

Dean of the fraternity is Captain Charles I. Harris, who was a pilot for 27 years, with a master's certificate for both steam and sail. He joined the service in 1910 when it was under the jurisdiction of the Victoria and Esquimalt Pilotage Commission. Born in Cape Breton he served his time before the mast out of Halifax and came to this coast via "The Horn." His first job in Victoria was skipper of the tug Hope. Then he went sealing and in turn took the schooners Mary Taylor, May Bell and E. B. Marvin to the Behring Sea and the coast of Japan.

VARIED EXPERIENCE

He was also master of two ships on the Mackenzie River, the Norah between Upper Bennett Lake and Whitehorse and the Lightning between Whitehorse and Dawson. Returning from the Yukon he was a passenger aboard the ill-fated Islander, which foundered in the Lynn Canal with great loss of life. As far as can be ascertained he is the last living survivor of that disaster.

The sea experiences of this veteran old "sea dog," whose last command prior to becoming a pilot was the salvage vessel Salvor, would fill a book. Still hale and hearty at 88 and reading without glasses, he lives in retirement at 1770 Lansdowne Road. Captain Harris likes to boast about two things: the 55 years that he has resided in Victoria and new potatoes, green peas and carrots out of his garden by mid-July.

Typical of the younger pilots is Captain R. W. E. "Red" Stange. As a lad he sold newspapers on the Vancouver waterfront and one of his customers when he was in port (and aboard which he admits he always got a square meal) was the fisheries patrol vessel Givenchy. The crew knew he wanted to be a sailor and by 1921, when he looked the necessary age though everyone knew he wasn't, the captain signed him on as messboy.

WORKED WAY UP

With his savings he bought books on navigation and under the tuition of the ship's officers he subsequently became an AB, then quartermaster and finally its second mate. After obtaining his master's coastwise ticket he skippered tugboats and small passenger and freight vessels, then army ships during the Second World War. He joined the pilot service three years ago.

Captain E. H. Sweeney, who is in charge of the Victoria office, was formerly a lieutenant commander in the RCNR, and during the last three years of the Second World War was DEM. at Vancouver. He was an infantryman in the First World War, serving overseas with the Royal Canadian Regiment.

The owners and underwriters can relax when they know that their ships and cargoes, worth millions of dollars, are in the hands of men of this type.

Star Has No Time For Temperament

NEW YORK—Arlene Francis was having her hair washed

Wearing a yellow bathrobe and the green and white polka dot shoes she had just worn on the NBC-TV "Home" show, she sat before a make-up table in her small, cluttered dressing room, while the hairdresser trimmed and shampooed.

"This is one of my indulgences," said Miss Francis, "having my hair done here instead of going out to a shop, one of the smaller compensations for working so hard."

It was shortly after noon. The "Home" show had just gone off the air and when she could conveniently do so, she took bites from a slimming tomato dish the chef had just prepared on "Home."

"My lunch," she said, "calories you know. Count them like change not one of the compensations."

Despite the inconvenience of watching one's weight, it has been said frequently that Arlene Francis has about everything a body could rightly expect. She is the first to agree with this, but the lady is not without further ambitions.

Happily married for nine years to the actor and producer, Martin Gabel, with an "adorable" eight-year-old son, Peter, Miss Francis says she has two more major goals in life.

AMBITIONS

The first is just to live awhile.

"I do hope to live to see my son Peter graduate from college," she said, staring into the brilliantly lit dressing table mirror, wiping some stray soap from her eyes. "I want to see him grow into a happy, intelligent, well-balanced man

"And I would like to do a great play on Broadway, and have my husband produce it."

Reasonable enough ambitions, it would seem, notwithstanding the achievements of the present.

The only television star appearing on all three major networks, Miss Francis' income shoots into a dizzy six figures, has been variously estimated at sums ranging from a quarter of a million to half a million dollars a year.

In addition to her daily "Home" show, she is a regular panelist on CBS-TV's "What's My Line?" and is the emcee of ABC-TV's "Soldier Parade."

A friendly, witty woman of warm good humor with a wonderfully hearty laugh, she appears to have inexhaustible gaiety and vitality. How much this costs her in effort and energy it is impossible to determine

Certainly, some part of her enormous success must be attributed to the fact that in the trade, she is most often described as "a regular gal," easy to work with, minus temperament and tantrums

LACKS TEMPERAMENT

"Perhaps in the theatre, temperament is all right," said Miss Francis. "In television nobody has time for it."

Common sense, the old-fashioned variety, is another quality Miss Francis has in abundance

Boston born, Arlene Francis Kazanjian lived there until she was seven, when her family moved to New York Always she wanted to be an actress and when she graduated from the fashionable Miss Finch's Finishing School for Young Ladies, she went into radio.

"For some reason my father thought radio was more respectable than the theatre," she said.

Her first acting jobs were in soap operas.

"Was I ever in soap operas?" she asked, wildly shaking her soapy head. "I was in every soap opera Name one, and I was in it mostly small parts—'Big Sister,' 'Widder Brown,' 'Portia Faces Life,' 'Betty and Bob.' But I had the starring part in that. I was Betty."

It was while doing a small part in a radio play produced by Orson Welles that she met her husband, Martin Gabel, who was a star in the play.

"I can remember how thrilled I was just to meet Martin," she said, "and by jove, he eventually married me"

It's no press agent's handout, he honestly always wears the diamond heart he gave her for their first anniversary She said she never takes it off, it's like a second wedding ring

COMMON INTERESTS

"My husband and I have only common interests," she said First is Peter, of course, then the theatre and our friends, and he's such a sports fan I have taken to baseball and the fights. Come April 15 in New York, you either have to be interested in baseball or bury yourself."

The "Home" lady also dearly loves her own home, a small gem of a Manhattan town house in the '70's, a narrow, four story white house, with bright orange awnings and a doorway, formal with black grille work.

The wide entrance foyer of the house leads directly to the dining room, which opens onto a small garden. A curving stairway, hung with crystal chandeliers, goes to the second floor where there is a living room and a library, one wall of which is hung with pictures of friends and plaques and awards which have been presented to Miss Francis.

On the third floor are Miss Francis bedroom done in blue and white and Mr. Gabel's room, a combination study and bedroom On the fourth floor is Peter's room, the walls painted with maps and scenes beguiling to an eight-year-old boy.

"All little girls have special dreams," said Miss Francis. "When I was a little girl I used to dream of growing up and living in a real town house."

With which tender confession, Arlene Francis, star of three television networks, went under the dryer, to doze away 30 dull minutes, even as you and I.

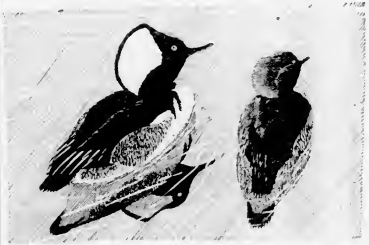
Tiny Hooded Merganser Beautiful, Not Tasty



—Illustrated by F. L. Beebe.

By C. J. GUIGUET

THE hooded merganser drake is one of our most beautiful waterfowl, easily recognized by its small size (18 inches), great white and black hood, and by its rich chestnut flanks. Two prominent black marks running down from the black back ahead of the wings are also identification features.

Add white underparts, shining black back, richly brown rump, a black spike-like serrated bill and yellowish colored feet, and you have a bird which should be confused with nothing else on the continent. Nevertheless, some do confuse or misidentify this little merganser with the buffle-head duck, but a quick reference to that species will point up the differences

The female is easily identified as well, she is small, has the serrated, spike-like bill and a crest not so prominent as that of the male She can be confused only with the females of the other mergansers, but is much darker and much smaller than either of them Care should be exercised also if you chance to be where both wood duck and the hooded merganser occur for very often these species are confused, although both are distinctive Green-winged teal too, are sometimes confused at first glance with females of this species.

FAVORS PONDS

The hooded merganser favors small quiet woodland ponds and slow moving streams to a greater extent than do the others. It feeds less upon fish and more upon aquatic insects, molluscs and crustaceans than do the larger mergansers and all in all is a beneficial and beautiful little bird

In British Columbia it occurs in the southwestern half of the province nesting throughout that area wherever favorable habitat occurs. In the winter months it migrates to winter along both Atlantic and Pacific seaboards wintering on the latter from southern Vancouver Island south to Mexico.

This little merganser nests in hollow trees, raising a family of from 10 to 12 young which hatch from snowy white eggs after an incubation period of 31 days. Young may be found in the nest from May through July, tumbling out in the late summer to forage as downy young with their mother.

POOR TABLE BIRDS

The hooded merganser is a swift flyer and the female is very often shot at by water-fowlers in mistake for green-winged teal. The swift flight, dull coloration and sudden appearance has wasted many a shot, for these birds though said to be more palatable than the American and red-breasted mergansers, are poor table birds

Very often a few pairs of hooded mergansers winter in Beacon Hill Park where they may be seen to advantage from the bridge over Goodacre Lake, but any quiet woodland lake or stream on Vancouver Island may harbor the hooded merganser at any time of the year.

YEAR-ROUND?

Birds wintering to the south of us move northwards in March, April and May returning south during late August, September and October It is possible that a sedentary population remains on southern Vancouver Island the year round.

The voice of the hooded merganser is rather nondescript, and has been expressed as a 'rough grunt resembling the syllables croo crook, crook.' The female with young, if alarmed, utters a guttural [illegible] cry.' (Kortright 1942.)

"I didn't say you were a blockhead. I said you'd better keep your hat on if you see a woodpecker."

This Week's Profile

By G. E. Mortimore

DURING Magistrate Henry C. Hall's 19 years on the Victoria police bench, the number of cases has increased fourfold

Seldom in that time has the white-haired magistrate lost his temper with anyone in the parade of drunks, criminals, psychopaths, sour children, mad drivers and confused citizens which passes before him six days a week.

But he often shows signs of controlled exasperation. Under great stress he shoves with both hands on the bench and propels his chair backward until it strikes hard against the wall Veteran court observers fear that he may bring down a shower of plaster one day.

Hearing out a rambling or obviously untruthful witness, he moves his head from side to side, opening his mouth as though to speak. Then at last he swings toward the man and delivers a patient weary reproach.

MAINTAINS DIGNITY

He seldom if ever smiles or makes jokes, but maintains dignity by his manner and by strict observance of the rules. He is a Queen's Counsel, and one of the few police magistrates who habitually wears a gown.

In the words of an observer, he "runs a tight court." Student lawyers are never allowed to appear before him except to speak to an adjournment That is supposed to be the rule everywhere, but many magistrates disregard it.

Cocky lawyers who disregard rules of procedure in Magistrate Hall's court are soon slapped down with a cold rebuke Some members of the profession feel that the magistrate is too severe at times

But he can be very patient with the fumbles of novices.

FRIENDLY WELCOME

A prominent Victoria lawyer remembers that the legal firm of Hall and O'Halloran was the only one in town that would accept him as a student. They gave him a friendly welcome, and paid him twice as much as any other law firm in town paid a student

Mr. Hall's former law partner is now Mr Justice C H O'Halloran of the B C Court of Appeal The magistrate studied law with Higgins Elliott, Bodwell and Lawson, was called to the bar in 1906, and practised law in Victoria and in Nelson He practised successively with W A Macdonald (later Mr Justice Macdonald), in the firm of Tait Brandon and Hall; with Mr. O'Halloran; and on his own

Strict though Mr. Hall is in court, he is affable outside He and prosecutor Alan Bigelow are the leading spirits in a "coffee club" which meets after court in the Cairo Coffee Shop Other lawyers and occasionally, newsmen join them there.

"We don't talk shop" says Mr Bigelow "A man is entitled to be tried in court, not outside"

ZEALOUS FAN

They do discuss world affairs and what the Cougars or Shamrocks are doing The magistrate is a zealous fan of all kinds of sport He took special interest in Western International League Baseball until it folded But his poor eyesight always prevented him from taking an active part in games

He was born on Nov 25, 1883 in Detroit, the son of Henry Hall of Blenheim Ontario, who died a few weeks afterwards Henry Hall junior was brought up by his grandparents in Detroit until he was 16 when he came to stay with an uncle Dr Frank Hall, in Victoria

He began his legal career in Victoria, and later branched out into politics In 1917 he was elected a member of the legislature for Victoria, along with John Hart and George Bell

A political observer recalls that the three were nominated early in the campaign, when Liberal hopes didn't look bright Later, when Liberal stock rose, some old-timers of the party tried to upset the nomination of the three younger men But the party stood by them and they were elected

Among other activities, he sat on the committee that investigated the Pacific Great Eastern Railway (which as a result of the committee's findings was taken over by the government); piloted several Victoria private bills through the Legislature; had a hand in creating Victoria College after McGill University withdrew its branch from Victoria; and went to Ottawa with a delegation that persuaded the Mackenzie King government to resume work on the Esquimalt drydock after it had been halted.

He also took an interest, with the late William Sloan in trying to secure an iron industry for British Columbia. A cash bonus of several dollars a ton was offered for many years to anyone who produced iron from B.C. ore

He was married in 1909 to Elena Maria Fernau, the Spanish-born daughter of the general manager of the Canada Zinc Co. They met in Nelson.

Son Frank, a barrister in Vancouver was killed while serving with the Seaforths in Sicily. Before he went overseas he published a book on automobile negligence cases This later went into three editions and became a standard reference work.

SON EXPERT ON BALLET

Son Fernau, who was one of the first radar technicians trained in Britain during the war, has been recognized as an expert on ballet dancing. His two books: "English Ballet Today" and "An Anatomy of Ballet," have been widely acclaimed.

There are two daughters: Mrs. R. M. Mather of Vancouver; and Mrs. Joan Williams, a barrister with Crease Davey.

Mrs Williams has never appeared, professionally or otherwise, in her father's court. "I'd be scared stiff to appear before him" she says "He says he's just waiting for the time I come up before him on a traffic charge" So far, however, this has not happened

Appointed to succeed the late Magistrate George Jay, he first sat on the bench on August 26, 1936 He is magistrate for Victoria, Oak Bay, Esquimalt and Saanich. He remains a judge of the juvenile court for Victoria as well as the surrounding municipalities, despite the fact that Mr J A. Byers was appointed a Victoria juvenile court judge after certain members of city council criticised Mr. Hall as "too lenient" with young offenders and their parents.

PRAISED HIGHLY

Opinion on this issue is sharply divided. The magistrate himself remains silent, but many policemen and social workers praise him highly for his thoroughgoing and sympathetic study of each young offender's case, and the way he follows up their later progress

He receives a number of Christmas cards from his former "patients" many of whom are now solid citizens During the war he corresponded with several lads who entered the army after appearing in his court.

He has also concerned himself in spare time with boys work with the YMCA and with Kiwanis, of which he is a charter member here

At various times he has been chairman of the Victoria branch of the Navy League, and of the Sea Cadets chairman of the Canadian Club in Victoria and chairman of the Institute of International Relations.

ENTERTAINING TALK

He entertained Victoria Bar Association at a recent meeting with a learned historical talk about great lawyers of history It came as a pleasant surprise to members who were prepared for a dry technical lecture

He does a little gardening likes a drink sometimes and can be seen evenings taking his dachshund "Mr Kim" for a stroll Mr Kim still a favored pet even though he once stole and chewed up a set of the magistrate's dentures is the latest in a succession of dogs which Mr Hall has owned

"I used to have a dog like that myself," he once commented when a dog-owner came before him in court He has been known to give dog-owners advice from the bench about care and treatment

In former times he would sometimes have what was called a "white gloves day"—meaning that no cases whatever were on the docket (The term came from the custom in another court of presenting a pair of white gloves to the judge on such occasions)

However, there has not been a "white gloves day" here for many years

The number of cases in the city court alone increased from 868 in 1936 to 4 170 in 1954. The other municipalities have shown a corresponding increase.

The police magistrate of any busy court is recognized as the workhorse of the judiciary. He sits every week-day through the year, and must render quick decisions upon a variety of cases, some of them very serious. He hears the same worn old alibis again and again — for instance, the familiar tale of "only two drinks." Why not one, or three drinks, he wonders And yet a worn alibi may happen to be true, and the accused must have the benefit of a doubt.

The magistrate deals with about 75 per cent of the crimes and misdemeanors in town. From the magistrate's behavior the ordinary man draws his ideas of justice.

This responsibility seems to weigh heavily upon Mr Hall at times He has not grown callous When he is thinking over a decision which might take away a man's liberty, or his good name the magistrate shows signs of carefully suppressed emotion

While he wags his head in that characteristic style, he seems to be saying to himself, as all good magistrates do: "There but for the grace of God go I."

MAGISTRATE HENRY C. HALL

The Stamp Packet

By B. M. ANGUS

THIS intriguing paragraph appears in The Philatelist, an English magazine current in 1866 when stamps were still in their infancy

"The other day a lady went to the post office at Konisberg, with a servant behind her who carried a letter Having bought a stamp, the lady desired her servant to stick out her tongue, over which she drew the stamp and having fixed it on the letter handed it to her servant to post The postal employee laughed heartily at the scene, but the lady conducted herself with the most irreproachable dignity."

* * *

The Philatelic Magazine (Great Britain) announces that a well-known radio announcer, Brian Johnston, recently had himself mailed as a parcel from Bristol to London. There is nothing to contravene British postal regulations in this. With a label round his neck he travelled from Bristol to London treated as a package being lifted in and out of baskets, trundled on trolleys and conveyors. The only thing he was spared was when mail was sent hurtling down a 60-foot chute! The only parallel we can think of was when an elderly man was shipped from Kelowna down the Okanagan Lake by express collect, to his family many years ago. The reason? He was too drunk to walk and was getting on Kelowna's nerves!

* * *

We have just run across a rather amusing statement in an Australian stamp monthly, Stamp News. It states that from 1853 until 1904, a period of [illegible] years, every stamp issued by Chile and there were 109 of them bore a portrait of Columbus. A very strange thing seeing that Columbus never visited nor even sighted that country in his life!

CANADIAN SCORES WITH NEW NOVEL

THE SIXTH OF JUNE by Lionel Shapiro (New York), Doubleday & Co.

LIONEL SHAPIRO

IN Lionel Shapiro's preface to "The Sixth of June" he writes that he likes to think of his book as an historical novel because "it was the last great war which will ever be fought in the conventional manner." Today a few hydrogen bombs dropped on the massive invasion of an enemy coast, involving thousands of ships, planes and a million men, would end in complete disaster.

Mr Shapiro is a Canadian by birth and one of the few reporters who participated in several major campaigns and on D-Day landed on the Normandy beaches. His two major subjects are Operation Overlord and the love of a young American for an English girl, so that his book can be called a romantic war novel as well as an historical novel.

WIVES KNEW

His hero is Lieutenant Brad Parker, the son-in-law of a wealthy Connecticut newspaper owner. He loved his handsome and intelligent wife Jane and their future lay bright before them if he chose a well-paid desk job at home. The war was three years old when he joined a Special Service Force in Montana and flew to England with two decorations and a parachute insignia.

He was one of the many whose wives knew that their husbands were eager to leave and that they would lose them, if not to death, then to another woman.

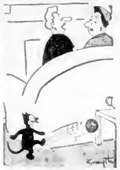
To Brad Parker wartime London with its bombing raids was an exciting adventure. His New England background, his training record, led him straight to a select commando company. During the months when Great Britain was trying to absorb tens of thousands of American soldiers he was enjoying life to the hilt, though the outlook for England was desperate.

In Sussex he met a brigadier general who had been wounded in the retreat from Dunkirk. He was a savage and disappointed old man most of whose life had been spent with the British army in India. His daughter, Valerie, had cared for him and was finally released to take up her duty in London. There was a quality in Valerie that appealed to the American: she was charming, well bred, lovely and passionate. He was deliriously happy with her under the shadow of the vast secret of which he was aware, Operation Overlord.

FATAL DAY

Then came D-Day, when the most fateful and massive invasion in history began. Brad's commando unit was given a dangerous assignment to take a fortified and alerted pass in the hills between the American and British forces. The leader was a young aristocrat, John Wynter, who was in love with Valerie and knew that Captain Brad Parker was her lover. The invasion and the battle for Normandy are the apex of Mr. Shapiro's novel. No other novelist has handled them as well.

"The Sixth of June" is not only a war novel and a romance but a story of divided loyalties. Valerie in her passion for Brad, surrendered her loyalty toward the man who deserved her love and, in another way, her devotion to her country. Brad forgot his wife and his duty to his own people. "The Sixth of June" was a fatal day for both of them.—The Saturday Review.



"Don't tell me you haven't ever seen a kitten playing with a ball of wool."

UNIMPORTANT

The following story is being told in London in connection with the recent appeal against war by Nobel Prize winners:

A journalist asked a nuclear scientist if he thought a hydrogen bomb could provoke a chain reaction that would destroy the globe.

The professor answered, with complete serenity:

"It's possible; but I don't see any reason for alarm. After all, the earth is one of the least important planets."

Variety in Wool Jersey Seen for Fall

WOOL jersey, the sensation of a few short seasons ago, establishes its place as a fashion fabric. It has all the ingredients to make it successful; interesting weaves almost infinite in variety, beautiful colors and finishes that keep it firm and sagproof. Wool jersey alone or combined with other fibers is seen throughout the fall and winter market.

The trim little suit of wool jersey has many useful roles early in the season. Smoothly fitted and lined jackets give the knitted fabric costume classic or lateday airs. They go under little topcoats and little furs with ease and good looks.

You'll find lightweight jersey beautifully draped in softer afternoon dresses and after-dark cocktail types. Some of the most interesting simulate hand knitted effects and lend themselves to the chic of a sheath silhouette.

There's a new "fantastic" jersey with fur added to wool, and even a Vicara and wool blend. Round-the-clock jersey styles include the coat for fall, too, handsome in trim fitted and straight slim models.

Interesting jersey costumes make excellent use of tone on tone as well as contrasting color combinations. You'll see ribbing in matching or contrasting colors at necklines, cuffs and used for collars as well.

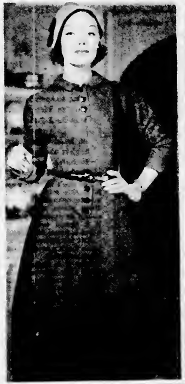
SAFETY FABRICS

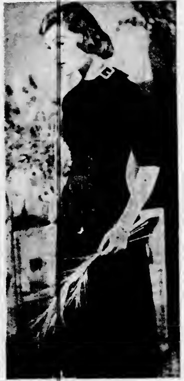
New on the market are fabrics with a built-in safety factor: knitted and woven cloth that will reflect light. In the daytime the fabrics have a normal appearance but on a dark road will glow when struck by a headlight's beam. They're designed to protect pedestrians.

For travel, back-to-school and just staying at home the jersey outfit is a comfortable one that requires a minimum of upkeep.

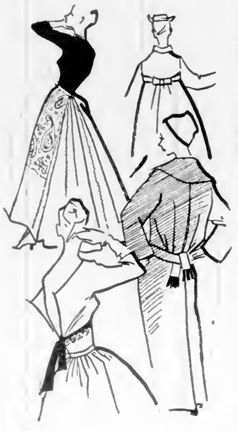
Wyner's Sag-No-Mor ribbed jersey is tailored into one of those wonderfully wearable daytime dresses which go through fall and winter with such ease. This Abe Schrader model, in left-hand picture, is in a new warm rust color and smartly detailed with a young little collar, button closing at the neckline and a button detail for the pointed hip inset. Sleeves are three-quarter length. The jersey is one of the new fall fabrics with special construction to give it practical, no-sag features.

Ellen Kaye of St. Louis designs a young date dress in a new shade of green called sea moss, far right. A Wyner Sag-No-Mor jersey that insures firm, no-sag construction, it has a flattering long-torso line and shirred, fitted bodice. The skirt is shirred for the wide fullness that looks so attractive on the dance floor. The stitched-down collar is accented with a jeweled buckle and the sleeve "buttoned" for an interesting detail. (Released by Fashion League.)





New Styles Stress Back Interest



Throughout top collections for fall and winter there's plenty of back interest. It may be the subtle shape of the silhouette itself or the artful use of trimmings. Shown here are typical touches that run from day into evening clothes.

At top left is Tina Leser's cocktail and leisure costume with a wool crepe kashmiri embroidered skirt; its beautiful back fullness emphasized by vertical rows of embroidery.

Top right, Charles James scores the back of a handsome wool coat with band and bow [illegible] highlighting the moment shoulder and arm area so characteristic of his coat silhouette.

Bottom right is a typical soft touch for the slim [illegible] coat silhouette in the Mona Sano and [illegible] fall collection. Here a low waisted line is emphasized by a [illegible] sash belt and balanced in front by [illegible] pocket-like flaps. It is in black and white tweed. (Released by Fashion League.)

If [illegible] fond of [illegible] and hate [illegible] back [illegible] closed shoe for fall [illegible]. Try the [illegible] with closed [illegible] and open [illegible]. Gives you sandal com[illegible] and an a[illegible] look.

The [illegible] handbag is a good-looking accessory. You can have [illegible] in pony, rabbit, raccoon or even leopard.

Lots of [illegible] cotton gloves in brilliant colors this fall. Spice for dark suits and dresses.

Consider This Fair Warning!

NEW YORK — It's time we faced up to it; men are gradually becoming the decorative sex. Now that they've accepted the idea of decking themselves out in pink or patterned shirts, and exposing their knees in Bermuda shorts, there's likely to be no holding them.

Oscar Schoeffler, fashion editor of Esquire and of the men's wear trade magazine Esquire Apparel Arts, is just back from a trip to Europe, North Africa, South and Central America. He's rounded up a group of men's clothing items, some native, some manufactured, which he feels may be a source of inspiration for our men's wear designers, and their possibilities are limitless.

Sports shirts comprise the most varied and uninhibited category; they are embossed, embroidered and appliqued with flower pots, and you may yet see your man walking around in a modern art version of the Truman shirt, complete with avant garde jewelry from Mexico.

Or consider these ideas from conservative England. A black velvet beanie with a yellow tassle worn by Oxford students while studying. This might do for an evening of TV. A heavy navy boat-necked sweater is tight through the midriff and has enormous elbow length batwing sleeves. It could kick off the full-chested look.

Portuguese fishermen wear an outfit of wildly mismatched plaids, a shirt, for instance, in a blue and yellow tartan, tight cuffed pants in orange and brown. This is topped by a black stocking cap, and might inspire an interesting outfit for chores around the house.

Ponchos and stoles for men are notions that could come out of some South American Indian items in heavy striped cotton. Or another South American idea — the two-piece hat. The original is a striped, knitted head warmer, topped with a sombrero-like brim in bright red. This is really practical for commuters in the wintertime.

Where it will all lead, it's hard to say. But it looks like the beginning of something big.

Tomorrow You'll Wear—

Orient inspired lounge wear. Silk satin pyjamas are shown with a mandarin collared fitted tunic topping skinny trousers that might be worn by an eastern potentate. Diagonal, decorative frog closings complete the effect.

* * *

a two-way hat to suit cropped or chignoned heads. It's a shell half hat of black velvet and chantilly lace, with a big red rose to one side. Worn pointed forward, it's a face-framing bonnet; posed to the back, it encircles a chignon with a cuff-like effect.

* * *

a tunic length trenchcoat. For the back-to-school crowd is a cotton and rayon coat, alpaca lined with the front closing and sleeve tabs of a trenchcoat, but ending at mid-thigh level. It has its own hood too.

"Vacation-From-Home" Easy, Pleasant With Daily Jaunts to West of City

By ERITH M. SMITH

UNTIL now, this series of articles has dealt mainly with vacation suggestions for the family planning to spend some time away from home—supposing they're Victorians, that is. One exception, perhaps, was the Saanich Peninsula.

This week we'll deal with another region close at hand—near enough for the family to spend their nights at home, and their days exploring. The region includes Colwood, Langford, the Malahat, Metchosin, Sooke and Jordan River.

You don't have to stay home to do this, mind. There's good accommodation in several of these places, either in lodges, courts or camping places. But if it should come on to rain, home is never far away.

Just for instance, let's plan a week that's a combination of at-home and away.

Here it is Sunday morning, then, and your holidays have begun. Naturally you sleep in, then there's time for a leisurely breakfast and for church too, before starting the first day's outing.

FIRST STOP

It's not far and the first stop is just beyond Colwood Corner—Canadian Services College at Royal Roads.

(By the way, did you realize that Colwood Corner is, geographically, almost due west of the Burnside-Douglas intersection?)

Visitors may enter the grounds at Royal Roads any day, between sunrise and sunset in a vehicle. Not on foot. On Saturdays and Sundays from 8 a.m. until sunset, they may enter the ground floor of the main building still known as "The Castle."

Familiar scene at Shawnigan Lake, family playground.

The name stems from earlier years of this century when this magnificent turreted structure was built as Hatley Park by the Dunsmuir family and became known as "Dunsmuir Castle." (This is sometimes confusing, for the same family built another, older home on Craigdarroch Road in Victoria, which was given and retains the same nickname.)

TRAINING BASE

During the last war the building and grounds were taken over by the navy for use as an officers' training school. More recently it was designated a tri-service college where young men are trained for commissioned service in the navy, army and air force.

If things aren't too busy in the Castle, you may be taken on a brief tour of some of the building's main rooms.

Back on the highway again, father turns the car out toward Langford and puts into effect a major plan of his own.

First he takes the rest of the family to a spot at the near end of Langford Lake, where a pleasant little beach is being developed. There he deposits mother and the children to sun and swim, while he swings smartly back a mile or so to the Royal Colwood Golf Club for a pleasant 18 holes.

DIFFERENT ROUTE

Then it's back to the lake to pick up the family, a pause on the way for a roadside snack or for [illegible] you like and [illegible] home, with the evening clear to do anything you like or nothing at all.

We're supposing you took the old route—Gorge Road, Island Highway—for Sunday's excursion, and that leaves the way clear for a change on Monday. Now we take the new highway, [illegible] Langford and running [illegible] to the Goldstream and the Malahat.

Going this way, you're on a route that's scenic all the way from [illegible] Inlet. Remember the last time you drove up this way? You were heading Up-Island in a hurry. Today you can relax and turn off for a few [illegible] at each of those [illegible] "view points." They're worth it.

Beyond the Malahat, turn left for the run up to Shawnigan Lake, where father, too, can get into his swim trunks and spend a relaxed day in and out of the water. Homeward bound you can drive down the shore of Shawnigan, or turn back and take the Mill Bay ferry.

EAST LUXTON

Tuesday is still sunny (we can all dream) so you pack the family and a picnic into the car and head toward Colwood again—but this time go on past to Luxton, and turn left onto the Happy Valley road.

Today you're making a leisurely exploration of the Metchosin district, one of the Island's oldest farming areas, with a short jaunt on a fine road out Rocky Point way. Sorry, you can't see the new installations there, but it's a fine drive.

The picnic lunch and the afternoon may be spent on the sand of Weir Beach or Witty Lagoon, and that's another day.

TAKE YOUR TIME

Wednesday you're going exploring [illegible] and you're going to take your time. Remember that today you see the country minus speed.

It's back to Langford this time, and right off the Island Highway onto Millstream Road. Up in the Highlands district you turn left on Finlayson Arm road, and back down to Goldstream Park and a brief whir on the Island Highway.

At Goldstream Road turn right, then right again onto Sooke Lake Road. As you've been warned, this is no speed highway, but it's a usable road with some fine natural-born scenery.

You turn left at Sooke Lake and go to Leechtown, scene of a gold strike most of a century ago. Explore a bit on foot here if you like, then back to Sooke Lake and north along the shores of that lake on your way to Shawnigan.

RESTRICTED AREA

All along Sooke Lake, by the way, is restricted country under the control of the Greater Victoria Water District. Please remember this: don't leave your car for longer than is necessary to take a snapshot and don't go more than five feet off the road's surface. Better yet stay in your car by the lake.

You can have that picnic at Shawnigan again, and visit friends there or have a swim, then return to Victoria by whichever route you did not use the day before.

Wednesday evening you'd better check over your camping gear, because Thursday and Friday you'll be making a two-day trip—out over the fine road to Sooke. In the morning you might like to nose about the Sooke district itself, then head up the side road at Milne's Landing to the potholes.

Here's the place for your overnight camp, and a pleasant spot it is. Of course if you'd rather, you can stay at an auto court.

TO JORDAN RIVER

Friday morning you're on your way again, this time to Jordan River, enjoying the drive along the shore of the strait.

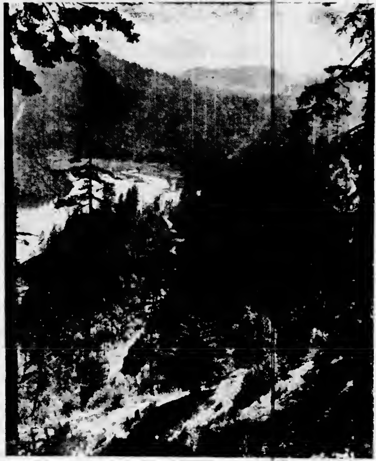
Jordan River itself is a place of contrasts, for here is the power plant of the B.C. Electric Company; here are extensive logging operations, yet here too is practically the end of the road and you get a feeling of isolation from the world.

Coming home, you can return on the Sooke-Luxton road or turn left through East Sooke and come back by Metchosin and Albert Head.

Saturday, you're on your own. A suggestion: ask the youngsters what they'd like to do. Chances are you'll enjoy it, too.

View of the harbor from East Sooke.

Sooke Harbor—Fine picture gives some idea of its extent.



Malahat Drive is world famous for its scenic views.

The potholes, up the Sooke River from Milne's Landing, offer cool, secluded swimming.

More Food Wanted For Needy

The surplus food stall will be open again next Saturday at the City Market building.

Co-ordinator Mrs. E. E. Harper said last night: "Donors on the Cordova Bay area may now leave their surplus foodstuffs at McMorran's Pavilion.

"Donations from Elk Lake can be left at Graham's grocery, and from the Colquitz and Wilkinson road area, at McNutt's store, 4140 Wilkinson.

"We are now helping 125 families and need all the supplies we can get. Anyone with a vegetable garden, however small, finds something left over. All donations, however small, are needed.

"Those who donate money may be assured it will be used to buy meat, powdered milk and other useful items."

Donors are asked to telephone Mrs. Harper at 3-9874.

Need More Rowboats For Labor Day Swim

At least 15 rowboats still are needed so that there will be a guide boat for each of the 50 teen-aged contenders who will take part Labor Day in the two-mile swim from Elk lake to Beaver lake.

Wilfred Sadler, sponsor of the swim, said yesterday the safety committee will "definitely have a rowboat for each swimmer if we have to go to Vancouver and bring them over."

Although the James Bay Athletic Association and Eagles' youth guidance committee have provided enough rowers, owners of rowboats can still man their own craft. They should get in touch with Mr. Sadler at 9-4131.

Swimmers are 16 years and under, and one of the contestants is Norma Hatting, 15-year-old waitress who covered the distance on a dare recently, prompting the Labor Day event.

Entries closed Monday and two swimmers not previously named are John Forshaw and James Matthews.

Mayor Claude Harrison has agreed to donate a trophy to be awarded to the first of the 10 girl swimmers to finish. If she also is the first swimmer to complete the two-mile distance she will win the Sadler trophy for the winner.

Victoria Meat Market has also donated a trophy for the winner in the lowest age group, which will go to one of two 12-year-old boys.

Victoria's Colorful Fishing Fleet Proves Big Tourist Attraction

BY CLARE MORIN

One of the popular tourist attractions of Victoria is the fishermen's wharf on Erie street where every week-end large numbers of seiners and trawlers tie up beside many small cruisers and yachts.

For no charge a person can see $100,000 purse-seiners, sail trawlers, or the sleek 58-foot schooner Black Dog.

But true to its name, the wharf is the fishermen's, and every week-end it is a hive of activity as supplies are loaded, nets repaired and fuel taken aboard for the next week's assault on the sockeye, pinks—hump-back, as fisherman call them, or chums—otherwise known as dog salmon due to their canine like teeth.

OPTIMISM HIGH

So far this year fishing has not been too profitable but optimism is high. Even though the high priced sockeye runs are almost over, substantial numbers of pinks have been taken and the outlook is bright.

"Last week there were more boats than fish," N. J. Nelson of the Combat said. But he's been fishing for 40 years and seen a good many seasons a lot worse.

It's all a gamble, Louis Szczurek said. "Last year we fished for seven weeks and didn't catch enough to pay for the grub. Then in seven days we made $2,300 apiece."

Some years, like the last few, fishing has been good with crew members making from $3,000 to $7,000 during the salmon run.

NEVER MADE LIVING

But it's not all it seems. One fisherman said he had been in the business since 1938 and has never made enough in five months to live for the rest of the year.

"If you own a boat maybe you can," he added.

"It costs you about $150 the day you get on board and that's just for clothes and blankets. When you get it there doesn't seem to be much either."

For anyone interested in buying a seine boat and going fishing, between $50,000 and $100,000 capital is needed.

Boats can also be bought on a pay-as-you fish plan, but one fisherman didn't advise it "because by the time the vessel is paid for it's worn out and you need a new one."

Generally the catch of a seine boat is split 11 ways—seven for the crew and four for the boat and gear.

Of the boat's shares one-and-a-half go for the net, and the other two-and-a-half for maintenance and repair.

However, if the boat goes to outside waters another crew member is taken aboard and the seven men pay the eighth's share. Out of each man's share is also taken the cost of food and fuel.

LIKE THE LIFE

Most fishermen like the life even though it entails working from the crack of dawn, or before, until after dark, getting soaked, risking their lives in rough weather, and never being sure whether they'll catch any fish.

When the hard work of a seiner becomes too great the men often go trawling. When one fisherman was asked what he'd do when he stopped fishing, laughed and said, "Die, I guess."

An example cited of how a fisherman hates to quit is a fellow at Minatrel Island who spent his life catching his living from the sea. When he got too old to work on a large vessel, he bought a trawler and spent his time catching cod.

When he suffered a heart attack, his doctor told him he'd have to quit.

But he carried on, with a rope tied from his belt to the wheel so that if he should have a seizure he wouldn't fall overboard.

According to reports he's still fishing.

Sable Fur-Piece Lost Near Hotel

Loss of a $400 sable fur-piece was reported to city police today by a Vancouver woman. Mrs. C. F. Hornsby, 541 Cornwall, said the cape containing five furs, was lost near the Empress Hotel.

Hospitals Still Hopeful

Martin Refuses Plea To Modify 'Freeze'

Health Minister Eric Martin has turned down the request of B.C. hospitals for modification of the wage freeze order of last May.

But the minister said the government would continue to consider the matter, and the two Victoria hospitals, facing "good-sized" deficits, expressed hopes that help will be forthcoming.

In a letter to Percy Ward, secretary of the 76-member B.C. Hospitals' Association, Mr. Martin said: "I am not in a position to state that there will be a modification as requested by your association."

He added: "The matter is under consideration by the government and will continue to be so."

'THERE'S A LIMIT'

Mr. Martin said the government appreciates the position that "some hospitals find themselves in at this time," but added that he felt there was a limit to the amount of money that should be spent for hospital care in relation to other services.

"People of the province have indicated they are most concerned over the increase in hospital costs," the minister said.

Mr. Ward, who estimated B.C. hospitals would be out nearly $1,000,000 if the government did not relent, said he did not consider the minister's letter a "direct answer." The association executive will meet in Vancouver next Saturday to discuss the situation.

"MORAL OBLIGATION"

Many hospitals have already "morally and legally committed themselves to pay increased wages before the freeze directive was ever issued," Mr. Ward said. The association asked the government to meet its "moral obligation" in the matter.

In Victoria, a spokesman for Royal Jubilee hospital said: "We have found in the past that when a reasonable case is presented to the government, it has endeavored to co-operate in meeting increases in expenses over which the hospital had no control."

An official of St. Joseph's hospital added: "The government will deal fairly with the hospitals. . . . It does sound hopeful."

Fire Loss $3,000

Fire caused $3,000 damage when it swept through the home of a vacationing Victoria couple early yesterday.

Prompt action by city firemen is credited with saving the premises of F. E. Spence, 2415 Fernwood, from total destruction.

The fire, believed started by firewood stacked against a chimney, was spotted by a neighbor about 5:21 a.m. The neighbor gave the alarm.

Firemen forced a front door to enter the house, and the blaze was under control in half an hour.

Floor, walls, ceiling and roof were damaged by flames, smoke and water. Floor joists and supports were badly burned and firemen had to chop a hole to get at the flames.

They will be among the 23 Victoria students who will hear talks and discuss "What has the United Nations to offer Asia?"

Still Below Last Year

Year's Polio Toll Up to 18 on Island

Admittance of a 22-year-old Victoria woman and a five-year-old girl from Nanaimo to Royal Jubilee hospital yesterday pushed to 13 the total number of Vancouver Island polio victims this year.

However, the health department disclosed at the same time that B.C. polio totals to mid-August were below those of similar periods during each of the last three years.

Condition of the two new patients was not believed to be critical.

Jubilee hospital officials said that of the 13 Island patients this year, nine are from Greater Victoria. An eight-year-old Victoria boy and a 12-year-old boy from Nanaimo were brought to the hospital about a week before the cases recorded yesterday.

Other patients still in the polio ward are two men and a young girl from Greater Victoria and a five-year-old Nanaimo girl. Two other suspects were discharged during the past week when their diseases were diagnosed as other than polio.

B.C. case totals to mid-August were 84, compared with 103 in the same period last year, 265 in 1953 and 144 in 1952. The health department said there was no record of any victims from among the 49,000 five and six year-olds treated with Salk vaccine.

HMCS Malahat To Hold Picnic

Struck by Uprooted Tree

Man in 'Fair' Shape After Sooke Injury

Ying Dong, 67, of 721 Discovery, was in "fair" condition in Jubilee hospital early this morning after being struck on the head by a tree at 10 a.m.

A falling tree struck and uprooted another which hit the elderly man while he was standing on a logging road across his property on Kangaroo road, East Sooke.

The tree was cut by Byron Siddall, Tollcross road, and Earl Bridall, 3293 Douglas.

Ying Dong lost an eye in a logging accident a few years ago.

Nanaimo Seeks Status as Port

NANAIMO (CP)—The chamber of commerce here will shortly seek national port status for the island city. The request will be made by the chamber to the royal commission on Canada's economic prospects when it sits in B.C.

Birthday Monday

Memory Undimmed

Woman of 97 Rates Godfrey Best in TV

BY IAN MACDONALD

Arthur Godfrey may be skidding down the popularity polls across the country, but the gravel-voiced ukulele-player still ranks tops with Mrs. Jessie Brethour, 1238 Palmer.

And when you are almost 97 years old and watching the flickering screen too long hurts your eyes, you have to pick your programs very carefully.

For the record, Mrs. Brethour also favors Bishop Fulton Sheen, "Our Miss Brooks" and "I Love Lucy."

Although pneumonia and rheumatism have slowed her down in the last year, Mrs. Brethour is full of life and remembers the old days, clear as a bell.

She recalls that when she came to Canada from her native Argyllshire, Scotland, in 1882, the Canadian Pacific Railway wasn't completed, and she travelled across the United States to San Francisco and then by boat to Victoria.

Her voice still retains the burr of her homeland, which she returned to about 50 years ago for a holiday.

Mrs. Brethour, who celebrates her 97th birthday Monday, first went to Salt Spring island. But she was not there long before she married Wesley Brethour, one of five sons of a Sidney pioneer family.

They farmed in the district for many years before coming to Victoria. Mr. Brethour died in 1917.

Mrs. Brethour says she doesn't do very much these days, but this is denied by her daughter, Mrs. F. Campbell, with whom she lives, who says her mother reads and knits without glasses, and watches television.

"But I eat a lot," says Mrs. Brethour.

Years ago she was well known to rural women's institutes when she travelled the district teaching handweaving on a loom brought from Scotland.

Three of Mrs. Brethour's four children live in Greater Victoria. The family of a late son is coming from Los Angeles for her birthday. She has nine grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren.

The birthday will be celebrated by a quiet family party.

Nothing could have pleased her more than the cards she received from nurses at Royal Jubilee and Gorge road hospitals, where she recently spent several months.

"It was very nice of them," said Mrs. Brethour. "I was treated very well in hospital, but it's so nice to be home."

Sharp Smack Replaces Horn For Car Drivers in Athens

Dee Lavoie, member of the Colonist editorial staff who is spending a holiday in Greece with a friend from Montreal writes today of things she has noticed about the Greek people

BY DEE LAVOIE

XYLOKASTRON, Greece — Greek people have a marvelous time driving cars or trucks or buses

They swoosh gaily down a road, leaning hard on the horn at every bend or twist and leaning on it harder still through towns to get the pedestrians (who walk on the road since the sidewalk is taken up with cafes) out of the way.

The tent which Martha and I are occupying seems to be located close to a really good bend in the main road, and several times during each night we are nearly blasted from our beds by a particularly vehement horn-honker.

In Athens, sounding of horns is forbidden, so the drivers sidle up beside a car which is annoying them, lean out and give it a sharp smack, which sounds quite thunderous to the occupants.

There is a peculiarly Greek gesture which one driver uses to indicate his opinion of another driver who has just nearly sideswiped him or forced him off the road.

This is done by putting the hand out the window and spreading out the five fingers, at the same time twisting the wrist slightly. It means approximately "Go to the devil," and if you are really het up, you can let go of the wheel entirely and do it with both hands.

The Greek country people are very poor and many are illiterate, though schooling to the age of twelve is now compulsory.

But we have found them most charming

They somehow manage to understand what we mean even with our incomprehensible English and atrocious French, and have been wonderfully helpful in showing us where to change money and buy band-aids and order lemonade. (asking for "orange" produces lemonade)

Groups of people on the sidewalk in the evenings chorus "Culespero" in unison as we pass, and we have learned to smile "Culespero" back.

I must apologize for my spelling of this phrase, which means "good evening." That is what it sounds like to me, but no one has been able to spell it in English for me.

Martha has been to a service in the Greek Orthodox church in Xylokastron, but I have only been in on a week day to admire the exquisite paintings which cover the walls and the high domed ceilings.

We both climbed up through the olive groves to the hilltop back of the camp early one morning to a service in a little village church, marking the beginning of a religious festival.

The service was in ancient Greek and the singing and chanting was led by a tenor with a wonderfully rich voice.

To Wed in Naden Chapel

Ganges Visitor Gives Recital

GANGES—While visiting Salt Spring Island last week Mrs. Walter Fearn of Berkeley, California, charmed nearly 100 persons with her glorious contralto voice, in the Ganges United Church Hall, where she kindly gave an informal recital. The program included many songs of varied types including "The Holy City," "Little Boy," "Swing Low Sweet Chariot," "Comin' Through the Rye," and an exceptionally fine rendering of "The Lord's Prayer."

Mrs. Fearn, also a pianist of high standard, played a duet, the "Zampa" Overture, with Mrs. A. J Ashlee, who acted as her accompanist throughout the evening. In addition, Mrs Fearn entertained her audience with a few amusing monologues, which were greatly appreciated and enjoyed.

Pair Exchanges Vows In St. John's Church

At a double-ring ceremony in St John's Anglican church on Saturday evening, Geraldine Margaret Eastwood exchanged nuptial vows with James Robertson, Jr., before Rev Canon George Biddle. The church was decorated with white gladiolus and the pews were marked with bouquets of white daisies Mr T R Myers played the traditional organ music and Miss Diane Johnson was soloist

The bride, the daughter of Mr and Mrs. Clifford Eastwood, Ontario street, was given in marriage by her father. She was a picture in her gown of white satin styled with boat neckline, fitted bodice, lily-point sleeves and pleated hoop skirt A cap of lace beaded with pearls held her three-quarter-length hand-embroidered nylon veil and she carried a cascade bouquet of red roses Her only jewelry was pearl earrings, a gift from the groom.

Mrs H A Bishop, matron of honor, and Miss Amy Koller, bridesmaid were dressed alike in sleeveless frocks of red and white dotted Swiss nylon featuring hoop skirts They had headdresses to match and carried semi-cascade bouquets of red and white carnations

The little flower girls Vicki Eastwood sister of the bride and Linda Robertson cousin of the groom, wore short dresses of red and white dotted Swiss nylon with full skirts and cap sleeves They carried miniature bouquets of red and white carnations.

The groom son of Mr. and Mrs James Robertson, Sidney, B.C., had Mr. Jock Doney as best man. Mr Clifford J Eastwood, the bride's brother, and Mr. Stan Jones showed the guests to the pews.

A reception followed in the Esquimalt Athletic Club which was decorated with red and white flowers. The bride's table, covered with a hand-crocheted cloth made by the grandmother of the groom was decorated with red roses, red carnations and white candles Mr Douglas Poulton proposed the toast.

Leaving for a honeymoon up-Island the new Mrs. Robertson travelled in pale green flecked with grey tweed boxed suit, beige and white accessories and corsage of yellow rosebuds The newlyweds will make their home at 151 Government street.

Mr. and Mrs. Mitchell To Live in Vancouver

One of the loveliest late summer weddings took place in St. John's Anglican Church yesterday afternoon, the principals being Barbara Joan Kensington, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Trevor W. Kensington, 1701 Christmas Avenue, and Mr. Peter James Mitchell, grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Vickers, 2411 Lincoln Road.

The bride entered the church with her father looking radiant in her imported wedding gown of filmy white nylon tulle over satin with redingote of floral embroidered net opening at the waist to show a front panel of the full skirted strapless gown The bodice had a tiny stand up collar and the sleeves were pointed over the wrists A juliet cap of organdy petals trimmed with seed pearls held her chapel length veil and she carried a crescent bouquet of gardenias and stephanotis.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Canon George Biddle in a setting of white gladiolus in tall baskets and white candles in silver candelabra, Mr. T. R. Myers played the organ music.

A trio of attendants stood with the bride. Miss Sue Mitchell as maid of honor and the Misses Sylvia Ditchburn and Shirli Marshall, bridesmaids. They were dressed alike in waltz length gowns of turquoise nylon chiffon styled on Grecian lines with shirred bodices and draped stoles. Brilliants studded their nylon chiffon tulle head dresses and their mitts and shoes were of matching tone. The Colonial bouquets they carried were of biscuit colored gladiolus.

Mr. Frank Lewis was best man and Mr Christie Smith and Mr. Vern Housez showed guests to the pews which were marked with bouquets of Shasta daisies and blue hydrangea tied with white satin ribbon.

Later a reception was held in the lounge of the Oak Bay Beach Hotel where the table was covered with a lace and embroidered linen cloth. Pink roses and candles in silver holders were beside the three-tiered cake. A large arrangement of pink gladiolus banked the fireplace

Mrs. Kensington wore a New York original of rose taupe pure silk taffeta with silver bugle beads and pearls ornamenting the bodice and the sheath skirt featuring back fullness Her tiny feather hat was beige and her corsage was of pink rapture roses. The groom's grandmother chose a French blue silk crepe dress with hat en tone and navy accessories Her corsage was of pale pink carnations.

A delft blue dressmaker suit with navy accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses was the choice of the bride for a honeymoon to be spent along the Oregon coast. Mr. and Mrs Mitchell will make their home at 4024 West 15th Avenue, Vancouver, B.C. The groom will enter the School of Medicine at the University of British Columbia in September.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Townshend On Honeymoon in Northwest

St. John's Anglican church was the setting for a wedding of wide interest Saturday afternoon when Elizabeth Marguerite, daughter of Cmdr and Mrs. P Fred Fairfull, HMC Dockyard, Esquimalt, became the bride of Mr. Peter Aurelian Townshend, son of Mrs. H. R. Townshend, Ardmore drive, Sidney and the late Mr Townshend.

Marguerites, pink and white gladiolus and blue hydrangeas formed a floral background for the ceremony performed by Rev. Canon S. J. Wickens.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the stately bride made an attractive picture in her classic gown of white satin brocade. The full skirt which swept into a regal train was complemented by the fitted bodice featuring a bateau neckline and long sleeves tapering in lily-points over the wrists. A Juliet cap of white organdy shells scattered with tiny seed pearls held her fingertip veil of white illusion net and she carried a bouquet of red rosebuds and white Esther Reed daisies

Miss Gail O'Meara, bridesmaid, was gowned in an ankle length dress of French blue silk taffeta styled on Princess lines with three-quarter-length sleeves. She wore a garland of peach gladiolus buds in her hair and carried a bouquet of bebe peach gladiolus.

Mr. Thomas Hatcher acted as groomsman and ushering were the bride's brother, Mr Jack Fairfull; Mr. Gordon Nickells and Mr. Jack Woodward.

Traditional wedding music was played throughout the ceremony and as the couple signed the register Bach's "Bist Du Bei Mir" and "Schafe Konnen Sicher Weiden" were heard.

Mrs. Fairfull in a silver blue two-piece silk dress with pink and blue accessories and a corsage of pink Rapture roses and Mrs. Townshend in a rose wood pink ensemble with brown accents and a corsage of Rapture roses assisted the young couple in receiving the guests at the reception at Royal Victoria Yacht Club.

A three-tier wedding cake imbedded in flower-scattered tulle centred the lace-covered bride's table lighted by white tapers. Mr Tom Taylor proposed the toast to the bride's happiness.

For the honeymoon which will be spent motoring and sailing in the Pacific Northwest, the new Mrs Townshend chose an imported black and white print afternoon dress topped with a Dior red bengaline coat, black patent shoes and purse

Upon their return, Mr. and Mrs Townshend will take up residence in their newly constructed home at 2701 Seaview road.

Among out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mr P. Jack Fairfull, Mr and Mrs. Lewis Hughes and Jennifer, Toronto; Mrs Helen Simmons, Vancouver, and Miss Margaret Fairfull, Edmonton.

Mona Waistell Becomes Bride Of J. Quinton

St. David's-by-the-Sea, Cordova Bay, was the scene of a pretty wedding Saturday evening, when Miss Mona Gertrude Waistell, elder daughter of Mr and Mrs. James A. Waistell, Cordova Bay, became the bride of Mr. John Frederick Quinton, only son of Mr and Mrs. George G. Quinton of Prospect Lake Rev. Canon R. Willis officiated at the double-ring ceremony. The church was decorated with tall baskets of gladiolus

Given in marriage by her father, the bride looked charming in a ballerina length dress of white lace over taffeta, topped by a matching short jacket fashioned with lily-point sleeves. Her fingertip veil of white net was held in place by a headdress of white satin outlined with tiny seed pearls and brilliants and she carried a cascade bouquet of white stephanotis and red roses

Miss Beryl Quinton, maid of honor and sister of the groom wore a ballerina length gown of pale blue taffeta with lace yoke and tiny cap sleeves and carried a bouquet of pale pink carnations Both bridesmaids wore floral headbands in shades to match their bouquets The bride's sister Miss Elaine Waistell, was a dainty flower girl in a long dress of pale blue taffeta, the skirt of which was sprinkled with tiny pink and blue flowers She carried a colonial bouquet.

Mr. John Wilson acted as best man and Mr Gary Willner and Mr Dick Sahlstrom were ushers

A reception followed at the Royal Oak Women's Institute hall, where the bride's uncle Mr Robert Dymond proposed the toast Following the reception the young couple left for a short motor trip through the interior of B.C. the bride travelling in a suit of charcoal grey wool with pink accessories and wearing a corsage of pink roses On their return Mr. and Mrs Quinton will reside at Cordova Bay.

Out-of-town guest was Mr W Quinton of Edmonton, Alberta.

Couples United at Late Summer Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. John Maurice Clark, whose marriage took place recently at St. Luke's Church, Cedar Hill. The bride is the former Margaret Isobel Bryson Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Taylor, Glendenning road, and her groom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. G. M. Clark of Kamloops, B.C.

Mr. and Mrs. James Roderick Harford are spending their honeymoon motoring in the United States following their recent marriage in St. John's Anglican Church, and on their return will reside on Quadra street. The bride is the former Ina Claire Bain, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Bain, Michigan street, and Mr. Harford is the son of Mr. and Mrs. B. Harford, Langford.

Bride and groom at a recent ceremony in Metropolitan United Church were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Hugh Emery. The bride is the former Elizabeth Claire Yardley, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Yardley, Colquitz avenue, and Mr. Emery is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Emery, Arrow road.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Raymond Thompson pictured after their recent marriage which took place in St. John's Anglican Church. Mrs. Thompson is the former Velda Wille, well-known Victoria dancing teacher and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. I. R. Wille, Quadra street. Mr. Thompson is the son of Mrs. Thompson of Saskatoon and the late Mr. W. D. Thompson.

Hat Department Only Male Haven

PETERBOROUGH, Ont. (CP)—Clerks in men's clothing stores here agree that while they love the ladies they would much rather sell to the menfolk. But they find perhaps 75 per cent of their customers are women, buying for men.

One store clerk said cautiously: "Women are much more particular buyers than men." Women apparently are more bargain-conscious than their menfolks, and they will shop around more before they are satisfied.

"Men, on the other hand, will find one store they like and patronize it almost exclusively," said a clothier.

Some women complain their husbands just aren't interested in shopping for clothes, so they must do it themselves. Clerks say it is not unusual for women to come in with long lists of measurements and buy suits for their husbands. But a more usual practice is for couples to come in together. "Believe me," said one salesman, "if the wife doesn't like a suit and the husband does, there's no sale." Single male shoppers are the clothing salesman's delight. The bachelor apparently buys better quality goods and is style-conscious. But for the others, clerks say the hat department is the only province still strictly a man's field.

A happy bride was the former Beverley Gertz of Winnipeg as she arrived at HMCS Naden chapel for her marriage to AB Rene Rougeau, RCN, also of Winnipeg. The young couple are making their home in Victoria.

No Perfect Figure

NEW YORK (UP) — The chief dress designer for Paramount Pictures said today she had never seen a perfect figure in the 17 years she has dressed some of Hollywood's most glamorous stars.

Edith Head, whose clothes have been worn by such famed figures as Clara Bow, Audrey Hepburn, Jane Russell and Grace Kelly, admitted in the current issue of Collier's magazine that even the most luscious stars have certain "architectural defects."

"One typical problem," the article states, "is the glamorous actress who is a little too well-equipped for sitting on uncushioned seats."

She solved her problem by putting her in full skirts to conceal the bulges, the designer revealed, until a director complained he was tired of the star looking "like an open parachute."

Then Miss Head devised a system of taffeta ribbons run down the sides of the dress in a darker shade to minimize the curves.

"Your dresses should be tight enough to show you're a woman and loose enough to show you're a lady," Miss Head advises actresses and average housewives alike.

Synthetic Furs Have Real Look

What is it? Sheared muskrat, clipped beaver or mouton? Take a second glance, my friend, for it's more than likely that you're looking at one of the new synthetic furs and the correct answer to the question is 100 per cent orlon.

Yes, with the latest imports in fur fabric coats it's just that difficult to distinguish the real from the synthetic. Styles and colors are up-to-the-minute and as for the price — well, that's the best part of the news. Depending on the style you choose you can be dressed in furs for between $59.95 and $89.95.

The fingertip length jacket with Peter Pan collar and turned-back cuff on a three-quarter sleeve is $59.95, while the full-length coat with tuxedo front and adjustable cuffed sleeves is $89.95.

In between there are the trotters in two styles at $69.95. One has a martingale belt and push-up sleeves while the other is designed with shawl collar and three-quarter-length cuffed sleeves.

All are fully lined in silk and have a milium interlining for added warmth. You'll notice a difference too in their weight when compared with real furs. They're many times lighter. And as for wearing qualities, they're unbeatable. Colors are a soft silver grey, beige and a bluish mole grey.

For the College Undergrad

Just as I knew when I saw the synthetic furs that they would be ideal for the college undergrad, so I felt that the corduroy jumpers on an adjoining rack were equally suitable. They can be worn morning, noon and night — with a blouse for lectures and casual dates or a sophisticated sheath for after-five party engagements.

Two styles are available, the popular long torso which gives an over-blouse effect and has self-covered buttons down the back from the scoop neckline to the lowered waist, and the princess sheath with empire waistline and self belt. Colors are scarlet, pink, coral, orange, turquoise, mauve, olive, chartreuse and forest green.

They're fully washable and the price is a practical $10.95.

Makes High Heels Comfortable

If you like to walk in high heels but feel you can't because they're too uncomfortable, I've welcome news for you. Now there's a miracle balance cushion that spreads the weight of your foot over the whole shoe and keeps your foot from wobbling. It's simply a piece of shaped composition that can be attached to the soles of both shoes for 75 cents yet it will relieve and prevent tired, aching feet and also enable those of you with flat feet to wear a high heel without fear.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

The velvety powdered complexion is one favored by many women. After all, it gives the smooth mat finish of a portrait if you choose it in a color that enhances your own coloring. It has a nice way of topping off a well groomed appearance, too.

Face powder, like other cosmetics, gets a scientific treatment today. You'll find it light as air and of a smooth texture that wasn't possible in grandma's time. The texture remains fine and light even when lanolin has been swirled through it.

Color, a major consideration in your choice of face powder, should be keyed to the basic tone of your skin. It should be slightly lighter too for a young look. Of course, if you choose a pale tone several shades lighter than your coloring, you'll achieve a mask like appearance that is far from natural or becoming. By the same process the choice of a too dark face powder will make you appear older. For this reason it is wise to change your face powder tones with the seasons for your skin does change slightly in hue. Of course, during the summer when you may tan several shades darker, you will ruin this healthy glow unless you complement it with a face powder that echoes its warm deeper tone.

Test your face powder for color harmony when you buy it at the cosmetic counter. A little sprinkled on your wrist tells you with accuracy whether or not it is right. A tester that includes a set of shaker top vials makes it easy for you to make your choice.

Remember one shade of powder isn't enough either. Have a lighter tone powder for evening wear.

Overeating Main Cause Of Obesity

TORONTO (CP) — Dieting is neither difficult nor unpleasant if the quantity of food eaten is reduced, without changing the variety or quality, according to an article in the current issue of "Health," official publication of Health League of Canada.

On the question of overweight, and how much reducing is advisable, a doctor's advice should be sought, the article says.

Most common causes of overweight are incorrect or poor food habits, usually characterized by plain over-eating. But a balanced diet requires normal daily amounts of the basic foods such as meat, fish or poultry, eggs, cheese, milk, whole grain or enriched white bread, butter or margarine, whole grain cereals, vegetables and fruit.

"If one must cut down on the basic foods, then cut down carefully on everything," says the article. "Although every common food contains some potential calories, no single food should be regarded as 'fattening' or high caloric. It's the amount of food you eat that determines how 'fattening' or caloric it becomes."

The average price of a farm-raised mink pelt today is about $25.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Stubbs On Trip Up-Island

Gladiolus and gypsophila were placed on the altar of Queen of Peace church on Saturday evening for the wedding of Joan Lillian, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Taylor, Old Esquimalt road, and Harold Herbert Stubbs, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Stubbs, Courtney street. Rev. Father [illegible] performed the ceremony and during the signing of the register Miss Anne Draper sang "Ave Maria."

The bride, who entered the church with her father, was lovely in her wedding gown of traditional white slipper satin styled with very full skirt falling into a train, Queen Anne collar and lily-point sleeves. Her veil of illusion bordered with lace fell from a net tiara trimmed with rhinestones and lily of the valley. Her jewelry was a pearly necklace and earrings and she carried a mother of pearl prayer book with deep red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Audrey Taylor was bridesmaid for her sister and Mrs. Morley Sutton was bridesmatron. They wore dresses of yellow and turquoise taffeta, respectively, styled with full skirts and had matching stoles. Their headdresses were trimmed with tiny white flowers and they carried Colonial bouquets of carnations in contrasting shades.

Mr. Robert Stubbs, cousin of the groom, was best man and Mr. Douglas Levitt and Mr. Lawrence Wallace showed guests to the pews.

A reception followed in McEwen's Tartan room, where Mrs. Taylor gowned in rosewood lace and taffeta with white accessories and corsage [illegible] ensemble with navy and white accessories and pink corsage assisted in receiving the guests.

A three-tiered silver and white cake topped with rosebuds flanked with white tapers in silver holders and bouquets of mixed flowers centred the bride's table. Mr. Arthur Smith proposed the toast.

Leaving for a wedding trip up-island, the bride wore a two-piece navy and white linen suit with white accessories and corsage of red roses.

Out-of-town guests at the wedding were Mrs. Harold Wilkie and John Wilkie, Halifax, N.S., aunt and cousin of the groom, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Stubbs, Chemainus, and Mr. Brian Hickman, Vancouver.

Once Rang for Churchill

Each private school on Vancouver Island prides itself on its traditions. Prized possession of Miss Kathleen Elvidge's Westerham school, 1075 Joan crescent, is the "Churchill bell," which calls the 65 young pupils to classes. The bell was used at prep school attended by Winston Churchill, whose country home is in Westerham, England, and who sent his daughters to school in the quiet Kentish village.

Private Schools Fine For Early Education

An important role is filled by many of the smaller private schools on Vancouver Island, where considerable emphasis is placed on pre-school education for both boys and girls.

Children may stay in later grades, but most of the pupils in these schools are very young and receive a blending of lessons in character building and in the usual subjects, supplemented by music, dancing and drama.

An example is Westerham school, tucked away on quiet Joan crescent. Miss Kathleen Elvidge opened the school in February, 1953, and it now has a maximum enrollment of 65 pupils.

Youngest pupils are four years of age. Boys continue to Grade 3, girls to Grade 7. The difference is because Miss Elvidge thinks "boys should go to a master at a certain stage."

She urges parents to start children at lessons early, because "children of that age are full of interest and keen to learn . . . and the younger ones should have at least 12 months preparing for their grade work."

Miss Elvidge had a Westerham school in Westerham, Kent, before she came here in 1948 to begin private classes. She brought with her a wealth of knowledge on teaching methods and school operation.

She conducts music classes. In England, a pupil of hers named Andrian Dence was chosen for the choir at the Coronation in 1953.

Like some other private schools, Westerham has an attraction for the mother with a job. The school has facilities to care for a child from 8.30 a.m. to 5 p.m., five days a week.

THE VOICE OF ONE

By FRANK S. MORLEY

Every Woman Can Be Beautiful

I always wince when someone calls my wife "pretty." The word originally came from the Anglo-Saxon "prae-[illegible] to mean "foppish." In the evolution of language it came to connote daintiness, a fragile bone structure and carefully preserved complexion or delicate appearance. Prettiness is superficial, dependent on external dress and facial make-up or hair arrangement.

A child under 16 may look "pretty." But to describe an adult as "pretty" is an insult. No woman over 25 has a right to look "pretty." If you describe her this way you are implying, "You haven't lived. There is no substance in you. You lack spiritual muscle."

James Montgomery Flagg, the artist, must have had such distinction between prettiness and beauty in mind when he said, "Having painted thousands of women, I do not underestimate physical beauty. But without certain qualities of spirit, such beauty is a crass, cheap thing. These qualities are in order named: serenity, kindness, courage, humor . . . Endowed with this vitality, women glow with an incandescence of spirit that can be felt, if not actually seen."

Have you noted how few women of achievement, even on the stage or perhaps especially in the movies or on the stage, could be called pretty? Incidentally it is worth noting that rarely does a handsome man amount to much.

Everyone Has Attributes

Percy Westmore, Hollywood beauty expert, advises women wisely, "Never dwell on what you consider your bad feature. Everyone isn't born with a pomegranate mouth and passion flower eyes, but every woman is born with attributes she can play up. Any woman can achieve a glamour of her own if she will have assurance that she is lovely."

There is a glow in the faces of children that warms the heart. It is chiefly a reflection of physical joie de vivre. It is shallow, without spiritual significance. But there is a beauty that comes from character, born of love and loss, born of the storms and the shrines, born of character and loving kindness and faith.

Abraham Lincoln was beautiful. An artist said that every time he looked on his features he got a new impression of the man's beauty. Yet Lincoln was ugly and ungainly, without any superficial graces. But who could deny that Lincoln had one of the world's most beautiful faces, a face filled with the glory of generosity, love of people, a devotion that endured to death, a spiritual dedication to liberty, justice, humanity, and his country's welfare?

Prettiness is skin deep. Beauty is soul deep. Beauty is an achievement. It comes from an inner radiance, from a personality that has found poise and peace. Beauty is a symposium of courage and sacrifice and love and joy and loss.

5 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to express our heartfelt appreciation to our kind friends and to all those who so generously assisted, and for the words of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings extended at the death of our dear [illegible] Forsyth, of Parksville, B.C. Our special thanks to Sands Mortuary for their kind helpfulness.—Helen and John Forsyth, and Betty Cumine.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all our friends who have helped us so much during the illness and loss of our dear "Pop" and Grandad, John W. Wilond; special thanks to Dr. Falk and Newly, nurses, orderlies and aids of 1st B at Royal Jubilee Hospital.—Mr. and Mrs. C. Prenemore, Gwen Newfield and Sylvia Brett.

The family of the late Alan Heath Pratt wish to express their very sincere thanks and deep appreciation for all the most beautiful tributes to the memory of our beloved Alan Madeley Crofton [illegible].

6 IN MEMORIAM

SATHER—In loving memory of Ole M. Sathre, who passed away August 22, 1954.

We do not forget you,
Nor do we intend;
We think of you often
And will to the end.

—Always remembered by his loving wife and family.

LLOYD—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother who passed away August 21, 1951.

As long as we live
We will treasure her name,
In memory we see her,
Ever the same.
Always in our hearts
She is with us yet,
For we loved her too dearly
To ever forget.

—Ever remembered by her loving husband Bob and family.

BUILDERS!

Here is what you have been looking for—Sash and Frames completely fitted. The hardware and sash have been fitted into the frame and all you need to do is install them in your building. The casing has been attached to the frame and everything is SANDED, ready for finishing. Get in touch with us—have our salesman call and pick up your plan and return it to you with our estimate.

We may add at this time that there are a number of hardwood Doors in stock which are selling for only $24.85

If you are looking for an odd door we have several to choose from which have been reduced in price as much as 50%. Call in and see these, there may be just the size and style you need.

Should you be painting the outside of your house, check with us first. We have an Outside White selling for $4.90 one gallon. You get real coverage with this paint!

Three sites are under consideration for the proposed Victoria television station.

Mount Douglas, where CKDA already has property, is seriously being considered by the Capital Broadcasting Company as an [illegible]

Both the Malahat, which was surveyed as a possible site last year and Salt Spring Island are being considered by radio station CJVI.

The Malahat is hardly likely to be seriously proposed as the location of Victoria's TV station because of the high surrounding terrain.

Salt Spring Island offers the advantage of excellent coverage from mountains about 2,400 feet high.

There are few other "ideal" sites in this area.

* * *

CO-CHANNEL INTERFERENCE—What will happen to channel 5 if Victoria has a TV station operating on channel 6?

It depends somewhat on the nearness of the local station.

In any case, cheaper-model sets will not be able to pick up KING-TV with the same ease, once a powerful local station is on the air.

Better sets—those having 20 tubes or more—may be able to separate the two stations more easily, however.

Viewers having high-gain directional aerials for Seattle stations will be the least affected by local signals.

DOLLARS & SENSE!

Why be misled by offers of so many hundred dollars more than your car is worth or free gas for thousands of miles? Just think, would you go into business to be philanthropic? Of course not. In other words you do not get something for nothing at any time. The customer always pays somewhere in the deal! We respect the public and the public intelligence and our policy is to offer good used cars at a fair price. You get a good car, we make a little money and everyone is happy!

HERE'S ONE FOR EXAMPLE

1954 MORRIS MINOR 2-DOOR One owner, low mileage. Absolutely as new and guaranteed. Only $1195

Of course we have many more to choose from at prices from as low as $385. Come in and talk dollars and sense with us.

Hoppy Homes?
First impressions are often lasting ones and so it is with houses; some are just four walls and a roof, a habitation, a place to hang your hat; still others give you that crowded feeling of warmth, of charm. I have been fortunate this week in acquiring four good homes that give an immediate sense of comfortable, enjoyable living. All are modern five-room homes with automatic heat, full basements, drive-in garages and nice gardens.

At PNE This Year

Services Plan Record Show

Exhibits already are being ferried by RCN auxiliary vessels from Esquimalt, army trucks from many B.C. points and RCAF aircraft from Eastern Canada to the record armed forces display at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver.

Chairman of the tri-service committee which planned the show is Cmdr. M. T. Beardmore, HMCS Naden. Members are Lieut.-Col. G. H. McManus and Wing Commander N. J. Thompson, both of Vancouver.

Leading the 550 Canadian and 150 U.S. service personnel in the opening parade at 10 a.m. Wednesday will be Commander C. R. Parker, assistant chief of staff Pacific Command. Parade marshal is Lieut. Keith Lewis, HMCS Naden.

COLOR ESCORT

Following Commander Parker at the head of the parade will be a color escort of two petty officers with rifles and two chief petty officers with ensign and cutlass.

Marchers, following in this order, will be 100 sailors with the 45-piece band of HMCS Naden; a U.S. Army group from Fort Lewis, Wash., with their band; 200 Canadian soldiers and the bands of the Royal Canadian Engineers, Chilliwack, Princess Pats, Calgary and 2nd Battalion Queen's Own Rifles, Victoria; 200 airmen and the RCAF band from Edmonton, and 60 members of the RCMP and band.

The band will present daily concerts at the fair, at which time service documentary films will be shown.

Sunset and retreat ceremonies will be performed Wednesday and Thursday by personnel of HMCS Naden and HMCS Discovery, Vancouver, and by the Queen's Own Rifles Friday and Saturday.

On Armed Forces Day at the fair, September 1, there will be a fly-past of jet and conventional aircraft of the RCAF from Comox and Sea Island between 5 and 5.30 p.m.

The naval exhibit will feature frogmen seen in action here on Navy Day, a mining tank, radar displays, a cut-away model of a destroyer and a naval quiz booth presided over by King Neptune.

The army will show off remote-controlled guns from 119 battery, Victoria, parachute packing by soldiers from Camp Shilo, Man., and tanks and anti-tank weapons.

The air force will show a Silver Star jet trainer aircraft from Calgary, a jet aircraft ejection seat and a cockpit from a C-45 Expeditor transport plane.

Vancouver Operators Defy Order

Bingo Operation Gets Approval

Bingo operations of the Victoria Whist Club have been approved by the provincial fire marshal, a spokesman for the club which operates bingo games in the basement of the Westholme hotel, said last night.

Several bingo operators in Vancouver Friday said they were deliberately not complying with an order from the fire marshal directing that bingo tables be eight feet apart.

Other operators, who were complying with the order, complained they were losing money.

QUARTERS FIREPROOF

The Victoria spokesman said the local club's quarters are fireproof and well provided with fire exits. It also has a tile floor.

In Vancouver there was no indication the operators—many of them branches of the Canadian Legion—will unite in contesting the order.

One club where the tables have been correctly spaced for the last two weeks reported a drop in the number of players from 370 to 200.

"We have had to turn people away and lose money, but what can we do," said an official.

Six Men, Boy Still Missing

Searches Continue On Upper B.C. Coast

VANCOUVER (BUP) — Two searches were still in progress on the upper coast of B.C. for five men.

Searching yesterday failed to locate either five men last reported flying a small plane from Kemano to Kitimat Aug. 3, or a man and boy from Bella Coola lost when their fishing boat sank last Tuesday.

RCAF rescue search reported four air force planes took part in a high-level search for the five men including Lieut.-Col. Macgregor Macintosh, formerly of Victoria, aboard the downed Pacific Western Airlines amphibian. A Canso aircraft from Sea Island RCAF station scoured the area where the fishboat Sultan sank in high seas, driving rain and fog.

SEARCH GOES ON

No reports of survivors were reported in either search.

A PWA official said the air search for the five men aboard the missing plane will continue until the plane is located or the situation becomes hopeless.

RCMP at Ocean Falls directed the search for the fishboat owned by Robert Nygaard, 35. Orval Rindero, 13, also of Bella Coola, was on the fishboat at the time it reportedly sank.

Wanted Suspect Taken at Airport

VANCOUVER (BUP) — An 18-year-old youth apprehended by RCMP as he stepped from an airliner at Vancouver airport is now in the city jail pending the arrival of an escort from Lethbridge, where he is wanted in connection with a $30,000 bank robbery.

William Charles Fazackerley was earlier traced to Mexico through the United States after the robbery on May 24.

Vancouver officers say Fazackerley's return to Canada to face charges was made possible because of the co-operation of Mexican officials, who "asked" him to board a non-stop airliner at Mexico City for Vancouver.

King of Junkmen Stages Comeback

PARIS (NANA) — Joseph Joanovici, who became France's king of the junkmen by collaborating with the Germans, and wound up penniless in jail, is making a comeback.

Beginning his career as a stateless rag-picker, Joanovici made an enormous fortune selling scrap metal in France during the war. Convicted of collaboration, he disappeared inside a jail cell with a five-year sentence, confiscation of his property and a $150,000 fine.

In August, 1951, Joanovici emerged from jail, penniless, an official bankrupt, with the fine yet to pay and obliged by court to live at Mende, in France's poorest region.

He seldom left his hotel room at Mende and used a telephone and a daily newspaper as his only equipment.

Recently it was announced he had paid off his entire fine, was entertaining lavishly and was reported to be the biggest operator in his line in Europe. Joanovici's new line: scrap metal.

Here's a $10 Week Menu Mostly Hardtack and Tea

For anyone interested on living for $10 a week for groceries J. B. White, former sailing ship mariner, 3481 Doncaster drive has a menu he lived on for 22 months at the turn of the century.

It all started in 1898 when he shipped out of Liverpool for Victoria on a full rigged schooner called Hutton Hall.

"We got three half-pound loaves of soft bread a week and the rest of the time had hard tack," he explained. "There was no breakfast except for coffee and for the main meal every second day we had salt beef and nothing else."

On the alternate days the sailors had salt pork and pea soup. "That's all, and not much of it either," he said.

For supper the men had to make a meal out of tea and hard tack. "Saturdays we had rice, and Sundays canned Australian mutton that was just like string," he explained.

"When I got back from that voyage I had grown three and a half inches and my parents could hardly believe me when I told them what we ate," he said.

"But it was a good life. I guess it was either kill or cure. Maybe the pure sea air had a lot to do with it."

Mr. White went to sea at the age of 16 and celebrated his 17th birthday in 1899 in Victoria "which wasn't much of a town then."

He said seamen generally welcomed the transition from sail to steam because the pay was better, and they could tell when they'd reach port.

"On a sailing ship no one knew," he said.

He explained how trips from Liverpool to San Francisco varied from 120 to 187 days.

"One time in 1904 on the ship Berbena it took us six weeks to get around Cape Horn."

It could be done in four days, he explained, such as the time the Hutton Hall raced the Mount Carmel from San Francisco to Liverpool.

"Our captain took us out on Christmas day and we led until we got to the Horn. We had only the topsails up but the Mount Carmel shot by with everything up they could get. She beat us by a few days."

Mr. White's last sailing ship was a four-mast barque called Craigerne.

"She was a nice ship and we had something to eat three times a day", he said, "even though she was owned by Scotsmen."

Eight Aspirants May Dare Strait

As many as eight swimmers may try during the two-week period starting next week-end to become the first to cross Juan de Fuca Strait, heading south.

Total went up yesterday when Pat Russell arrived from Vancouver and Doug Rivette reversed his previous statement that his first try, last Monday, would be his last.

Miss Russell, 18-year-old UBC student who reached the half-way mark in seven hours June 3 before being taken from the water semi-conscious, hopes that a specially-insulated swim suit will help her in a swim scheduled for any time after Thursday, when tides are favorable.

Pat hopes to make a daylight attempt and plans to swim south, but if tidal conditions are better, I will start from the American side."

Bill Muir plans an exhibition swim, leaving the breakwater at noon today, swimming along the Dallas road seafront to Clover point, then heading out to Trial Island. Like other candidates he plans a Strait bid in daylight hours next week-end.

Other challengers are Bob Bowden, Jose Cortinas, Johnny Flower, Cpl. Bigerstaff Martin and Janice White, of whom only Cortinas and Flower will be making first attempts.

Heart Radio In Use

WASHINGTON (NANA) — Radio broadcasts direct from the human heart in the specialist have been made possible by navy doctors.

At distances as great as a quarter mile, the "heartcasts" disclose what is happening to the blood pump while one is playing golf, working, running, strolling or in bed.

The device, credited to Capt. Normal L. Barr of the naval medical research centre at Bethesda, Md., is a broadcasting electrocardiograph.

Long the standard tool of all heart specialists, the electrocardiograph, through electrodes strapped on the patient, picks up and records heart beats which show much about coronary condition.

But there's been a major drawback in that the machine could be used only when the patient was at rest. Then too there was a nervous reaction affecting the readings when the patient saw all the mysterious gadgetry.

With the new medical "walkie-talkie," however, heart beat changes under almost any conditions can be determined. A patient becomes so accustomed to the electrodes he forgets about them.

The system devised by Capt. Barr and his assistants consists of the conventional electrocardiograph, plus a radio transmitter and batteries, all worn by the patient; and a receiver amplifier, speaker and recorder located in the laboratory.

The electrodes, about the size of a small button, are glued to the skin, generally on the chest and back. The wires are passed through the shirt collar to the cigaret pack size, battery powered amplifier which is carried on a harness worn over the clothing. The transmitter, also worn on the harness, is a vest pocket radio.

The receiving station is a precise, highly selective FM receiver with amplifier. The casts can be switched to a high fidelity speaker; an oscilloscope such as is used with the conventional electrocardiograph, or to a moving pen recorder.

Thus the heart beats can be heard, seen and recorded—or even all three together.

It should be emphasized, the navy doctors said, that the thuds heard on the speaker are electrical impulses transformed into sound. But the net result is a series of sounds very similar to those heard through a stethscope.

HOLD DANCE

Club Sirocco was decorated with firemen's equipment, streamers and balloons Friday night when 350 persons attended a dance sponsored by the dockyard branch of the navy fire department.

It is hoped to make the dance an annual event. A cold supper was served.

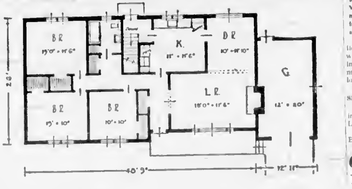
Best Use of Limited Space a Feature



Sure to be a favorite, this home offers everything desired by the average Canadian family — plus an attractive exterior and economical rectangular outline under a hip roof. Gleaming 10" white siding faces the exterior, with vertical siding round entrance natural finished knotty pine. Conventional planning has three bedrooms nicely placed for privacy, straight-through hall to kitchen. Careful attention has been placed on closet space—notice the towel closet in the bathroom, the broom closet in the kitchen. Facing west, wide overhang provides protection to sheltered entrance and living room picture window. Without garage this home contains about 1,225 square feet. (Inquiries about this plan may be addressed to Home Building in Canada, 2842 Bloor street west, Toronto 18, Ont., referring to Plan 65-62.)

City Invaded By Reptiles

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP)—Salamanders by the hundreds are invading Portage la Prairie. The movement of reptiles, some of which measure eight inches in length, apparently started from the city's Crescent lake earlier this week. Portage la Prairie is 60 miles west of Winnipeg.

One apartment block owner reported capturing more than 15 in his basement which they reached by way of a window. Car drivers said the salamanders were so thick along Crescent lake that it was impossible to use the road for fear of skidding.

Royal Oak Exhibition Top Winner

William Kempster of Royal Oak captured seven major awards recently in the Vancouver gladiolus show held in Kerrisdale.

His blooms, competing with close to 3,000 others, took the grand championship, reserve championship, best in the open, best amateur, best with two spikes, best in new introductions and best in the under three-inch class.

First place in the best seedling class was taken by Bob Pederson, Wilkinson road.

Increasing demand for berry pickers in the area has levelled off unemployment in the ranks of students seeking summer jobs, the National Employment Office reported this week, dropping the unemployment figure below the average for this time of year.

Demand for potroom workers at the Aluminum Company of Canada plant in Kitimat is removing many unskilled workers from the jobless lists. Skilled workers remain much in demand in many trades.

No change has been recorded in the women's section with a large number of domestic jobs available, and increased vacancies for stenographers, waitresses and sales persons in certain lines.

Horticultural Show Set Sept. 16, 17

Twelves classes of exhibits—flowers, fruits, vegetables and flower arrangements — will be featured in the 31st annual show of the Victoria Horticultural Society in the Crystal Garden Sept. 16 and 17.

Deadline for entries by the more than 400 members of the society is Sept. 14. Application forms and additional information can be obtained from the society secretary, F. D. Smithers, 4159 Wilkinson, or at 9-2754.

4-H Club Members Will Judge at PNE

DUNCAN—A baker's dozen of young 4-H Club members will attend the PNE as representatives of this district and will demonstrate their skill as judges of livestock at the big Mainland show. They are scheduled to leave Duncan Tuesday.

Under the leadership of Mrs. Pearl Standen, the members of the Cowichan Jersey Club attending the fair are Joan Standen, Susan Standen, Sylvia Anderson and Deborah Easton.

From Cobble Hill, Bert and Jeanine Hyerman and Dianne Maxwell will represent the Cobble Hill Jersey Club.

Cowichan Holstein Club 4-H members attending will be Anita Hawkins, David Fairclough, Martin Doney, Harold Barton and William Barton.

The members from Cowichan will try their hand at judging cattle, swine, sheep, poultry and carcasses.

Italy Buys Wheat From Argentina

BUENOS AIRES (CP) — The Argentine commerce ministry announced Saturday Italy has contracted to buy half a million tons of wheat for nearly $34,000,000. The ministry said the agreement, made under the 1952 Italian-Argentine trade treaty, assures farmers in the South American republic of a four-year outlet for grain.

On the Labor Front

Men Who Clean Mountains Organized Guild Long Ago

By BILL MAVOR

The federal publication, the Labor Gazette, reports the oddest and probably the oldest labor union in the world is nearing its 300th [illegible]

The Mountain Cleaners Guild, whose members do exactly what the name implies—clean mountains —was established in Salzburg, Austria in July, 1669.

The odd occupation was set up as a result of an avalanche which caused 220 deaths.

Town elders decided immediately after the avalanche to found a guild whose task, each spring, would be to clean the flanks of Mount Moenchberg as well as neighboring Mount Kapuzinerberg, to prevent any recurrence of the tragedy.

The mountain cleaners, by tradition, belong to the same families who supplied the first volunteers to inspect the steep slopes of the two mountains and carefully detach any loose boulders.

First sign of resolution activity for the Trades Union Congress convention Sept. 28 at Vancouver has come from Victoria Painters' Union (AFL-TLC) in regard to annual holiday pay.

The union has won Victoria District Trades and Labor Council support on the request that the provincial government order holiday pay to be received by employees at the termination of a job or when the annual holidays are taken.

The government could disregard these suggestions in favor of the stamp book system for holiday pay, the union adds. Such a system would be similar to that for unemployment insurance, with employers posting stamps in books that could be cashed during the year.

Organization's First Project

Expert To Preside At Pottery Workshop

Pottery enthusiasts in Victoria have been invited to take part in the first project of a newly-formed organization, British Columbia Potters.

Olea Davis of Vancouver, first president of the new group has announced that Carleton Ball, head of the ceramics department of the University of Southern Illinois, will preside at a workshop to be held at UBC Acadia camp in Vancouver tomorrow through Saturday.

Mr. Ball, who is on a Ford Foundation scholarship, will give demonstrations of throwing, decorating, formation of handles and glazing.

Information regarding the course and accommodation can be obtained from Mrs. Avery Huyghes at Alma 1621 L in Vancouver.

Do It Yourself

Cabinets Better with Soffits

By RALPH DALZELL

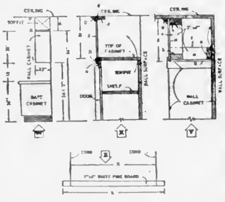
When modern wall-type kitchen cabinets are being installed and where existing cabinets do not extend to the ceiling, soffits should be constructed to improve the appearance of the room and to eliminate cleaning and dusting. The job is easy, and the homeowner can do it himself.

Picture W shows a base (floor) cabinet and a wall cabinet. Recommended heights and the distances between the cabinets are shown. The top of the wall cabinet is seven feet above the floor. Most kitchen ceilings are eight feet or more, so there is one or more feet (dimension A) between the top of the cabinet and the ceiling. Soffits should be constructed to fill the space so that plane RS is continued to point P in an unbroken line.

Picture X shows a cutaway view of the top of a wood wall cabinet and the soffit above it. The soffit is made as follows: Fasten a 1x3 inch strip of wood, F, to the ceiling so its edge "d" is directly above "e" of the cabinet frame. If the ceiling joists run at right angles to the strip, three-inch nails can be driven through the strip and into each joist. If they do not, molly or toggle bolts can be used to fasten the strip to the lath and plaster.

Cut quarter-inch plywood E to the depth G and nail it to strip F and the "e" frame of the cabinet. Use a small molding at B. Use a molding shown at D at the ceiling. Plywood and moldings can be enameled to match the cabinet finish.

Soffits are built before steel cabinets are installed, as illustrated in picture Y. The seven-foot dimension shown in picture W applies to steel as well as wood cabinets. Determine how deep (dimension J) the soffit must be and measure the thickness of the cabinet. Then nail a 2x1, C, to the ceiling so its edge is directly above and in line with the outer face of the cabinet. Nail 2x4 "g" to the wall, making sure nails penetrate the studs. Cut and notch horizontal pieces "m" as indicated, spaced about three feet apart. Nail "m" piece to "g" piece and then to piece "h." Finally, add enough "n" pieces so that quarter-inch plywood H can be nailed on to make the outer face of the soffit. Nail plywood to underside of the soffit. The top of the steel cabinet will fit against the soffit as shown.



Scratched auto doors are unnecessary in concrete block garages. Picture Z shows a piece of 1x4 white pine suspended along a masonry wall by heavy cords. Dimensions K and L can be planned to suit the auto door so it strikes the wood. Should the door jam against the wood bumper, the bumper moves so that no damage results.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q—Should I paint my kitchen all white?

A. All white is monotonous and fatiguing. Some color is good in light hues. Three colors, including white, could be used.

Q—I am putting new wood siding on my home. Would aluminum foil insulation between siding and sheathing be good?

A. Foil insulation is not effective unless it has air space on each side. It would not be effective unless furring strips were used.

High Class Periodicals

Reading Public Here Cut Above Average

The Victoria reading public is "high class."

Not only by choice of books in libraries, but by selection of books on newsstands, according to Lovick's News Agency, distributors of pocket books, magazines and newspapers throughout Vancouver Island.

Indicative of this is the new Lovick's line of Time, Life, Fortune and Sports Illustrated.

A Lovick's spokesman today said definitely Victoria newsstand readers chose better quality material than similar readers in other Canadian cities.

This was so, he said, because the B.C. capital has a high quota of retired persons, who had experience in life and had developed wide interests.

Of the 6,000,000 magazines and newspapers distributed by Lovick's on the Island, Victoria accounts for approximately one-half.

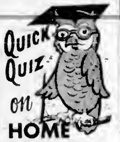
Since the war with its paper shortage, there has been an increase in all forms of news vendor merchandise, and the general public is becoming more aware of capsuled information available through such purchases, Lovick's believe.

Staff of the agency today numbers 23, average age of which is between 25 and 30 years.

The company, which within the past 15 years spread operations from Victoria to other Island points, is confident that further expansions will take place.

Light Out of Order Warning to Mariners

Mariners have been advised the Flora Island light in the Nanaimo district is showing a fixed white light, District Marine Agent Keith Dixon reported. It will be repaired as soon as possible.



QUICK QUIZ on HOME COMFORT

Q. How can I compare the effect of moisture on various ceiling insulations?

A. Submerge them in water. Westroc fibers made from rock cannot be affected by moisture.

Q. When comparing ceiling insulations, what should I look for?

A. Compare the costs of insulating your full attic - not the cost per bag. Also make a water submersion test. You'll be glad you chose Westroc Rock Wool.

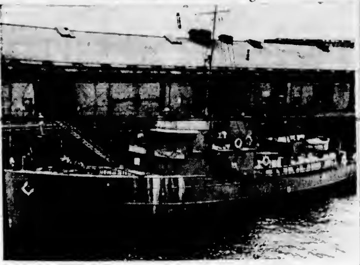
Her Radar Pierced Fog



Fisheries patrol cruiser Howay.

Skipper Fined, Catch Seized

U.S. Drum-Seiner Caught Fishing in Canadian Waters

An American drum-seiner was apprehended while fishing in fog-shrouded Canadian waters Wednesday by the fisheries patrol cruiser Howay.

Skipper Hans Mikelsen of South Colby, Wash., was fined $350 and his catch, valued at $1,000, confiscated.

His seiner Trade Wind was spotted on the radar screen of the Howay near Carmanah point. Its position, according to Capt. J. W. Isnor of the Howay, was 1.2 miles inside the three-mile limit.

Fishery officer J. W. Connor who was aboard the Howay, laid the charges in court at Port Renfrew before Magistrate H. J. Walters. He said the U.S. boat was just completing a set when hailed by the Howay, and that a substantial number of salmon were caught in the net.

Seizure was made in an area where the majority of the Canadian purse-seine fleet was operating at the time.

Fisherman Died From Heart Attack

CAMPBELL RIVER — Carl Dybhavn, 69, of Vancouver, was found dead in his fishboat at the head of Bute inlet Friday night by Ralph Tancock of Orford Bay.

An inquiry at Campbell River yesterday determined that death was due to heart failure.

Mr. Dybhavn is survived by his widow in Vancouver.

Mayor Went Too Fast, Fined $15

LADYSMITH — Explaining that he had just "drifted along" too fast, Nanaimo's Mayor George Muir was fined $15 when he pleaded guilty in police court Friday to exceeding the 50-mile-an-hour speed limit north of Ladysmith. The mayor said he was returning home from a business trip.

Spider Bite Proves Fatal

PARAGOULD, Ark. (AP) — A 71-year-old farmer died Thursday from a spider bite. Jesse Isaac Melton was en route home in an ambulance when he died five hours after he was bitten by a "grey spider." He had been treated at a clinic.

Park Created By People's Own Efforts

BY [illegible]

NANAIMO — Wartime restrictions, which once proved irksome to many, are credited with creation of Nanaimo's Bowen park, which is expected to become one of the finest of its kind in Canada. Its creation is a monument— to voluntary community effort.

Years ago Mr. Bowen, an official of Canadian Collieries, dedicated 89 acres of forest land to Nanaimo for use as a park.

Due partly to lack of funds and partly from lack of some one to start the ball rolling, this forest tract stayed in its wilderness state.

Ration years with the lack of gasoline for pleasure driving forced discovery of the park. A Nanaimo Rotarian and his wife took daily walks instead of car rides. Three years ago when the Rotary club was looking around for a project the idea of developing the long-dormant park was suggested by the member.

The idea caught on and the Bowen Park Development Association came into being. The association was formed primarily so that other organizations could join in knowing that all funds received would be used for the one purpose.

The B.C. Forest Service drew up plans for efficient development of the area. A systematic check of all the trees was made and those considered a potential menace were felled by the International Woodworkers of America. Associated Travellers have built a picnic shelter. Rest rooms have been built by voluntary labor and local plumbers have modernized them.

Hermac donated a large bunkhouse which has provided first grade lumber for many of the buildings. The Nanaimo Italian Association has undertaken to build outdoor fireplaces. The Truckers' Association put 28 trucks to work hauling fill for the roads, gas stations donating the fuel.

The city bought a bulldozer last year for the exclusive use of the association. The Nanaimo Bulldozing Company has cleared one end of the park which eventually will form a playing field.

Estimate of 10 years for the project appears due for a cut with the steady growth in public interest and support.

'Sunset' Weather Relents

PORT ALBERNI—Heavy rain stopped long enough for the sunset ceremony to take place Friday evening, with the sun blazing briefly through black clouds to make the event doubly impressive.

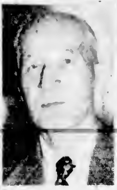
The 50-piece Winnipeg Sea Cadet Band with a 24-man guard staged a well-drilled display in front of the city hall before the lowering of the navy ensign.

The group had been stationed at Comox Sea Cadet training establishment.

Arrangements were made by Lieut. E. L. Hammer, commanding officer of the District Sea Cadet Corps.

Lieut. E. S. Riggs commanded the Winnipeg band.

'Crime Doesn't Pay'



HERBERT E. WILSON

'King of the Safecrackers'

Reformed Criminal To Lecture at PNE

Herbert Emerson Wilson of Courtenay will lecture on his former life of crime at the Pacific National Exhibition in Vancouver, starting Wednesday.

The mild mannered former minister, who reformed after 26 years as a master criminal, will explain to his audiences why crime does not pay.

"If I couldn't make a living out of crime no one could," he says.

Wilson, 70, has been earning his living by writing of his experiences. He reputedly masterminded the theft of $16,000,000 in a series of United States vault and mail robberies.

His PNE lectures will be given afternoons and evenings in a large tent containing narcotic, safe-cracking and other crime exhibits.

MANY THEMES

Themes of his lectures will be juvenile delinquency, the danger of revolvers, the futility of crime and many other subjects.

He will be surrounded by the tools of his former trade and two paintings denouncing crime entitled "The Octopus" and "Greed" painted by his attractive wife Amelia.

Some 100,000 people visited the crime tent at the PNE last year. This year, the Vancouver Lions Club, operating in conjunction with the Vancouver police department, hope the total will be doubled with Wilson as chief speaker.

During his 26 years of crime, after forsaking the ministry, Wilson spent 20 years behind bars. In the other six years he was considered the brains of a mob that stole an estimated $16,000,000.

Exhibition Plans Sunset Ceremony

DUNCAN — If tentative plans of exhibition directors mature, two squads of 30 men each and the 30-man bugle band of the Queen's Own Rifles will conduct a sunset ceremony each evening of the Cowichan exhibition, Sept. 8, 9 and 10. The squads will be under the command of Col. W. H. B. Matthews.

'Public, Private Schools in Canada Should Co-Exist'

DUNCAN — The role of the independent or residential school in the educational picture [illegible] made for close co-operation between public schools and private schools by Ned Larsen, senior master of Shawnigan Lake Boys' School, in an address to the Kiwanis here.

"If the prejudice which exists against the residential schools can be broken down, and they are given a fair chance, they can make an important contribution to the future of Canada," Mr. Larsen said.

"If all schools can co-operate in the name of education and be willing to learn from each other, a great deal can be accomplished for our young, and hence for Canada.

"Some of the resentments at private schools are that people believe that private schools mean private profit, whereas the boards of governors serve entirely without remuneration.

"There is also resentment at charging of fees, which pre-ing, but fees are necessary because some students attend cause the schools do not receive any support from the government."

Dealing with a charge that the standards of teaching were poor Mr. Larsen gave figures for a province-wide languages examination held by the government 14 months ago.

In the French examination the average in the public school was 60 per cent. In the [illegible] at Shawnigan 68.2. In Latin the public school average was 58.6, independent schools 61.6, and at Shawnigan the average was 72.4.

"There is also a charge that private schools create a type," he said. "It is not whether they create a type, because all society is constantly creating types, but whether they create a good type that matters.

"In 1922 an attempt was made in the state of Oregon to abolish private schools as being undemocratic and the laws sought to compel every child to attend public schools. The case was thrown out by the supreme court, which said, in part: 'The fundamental theory of liberty upon which all the governments of this union repose, excludes any general power of the state to standardize its children by forcing them to accept instruction from public school teachers only.'"

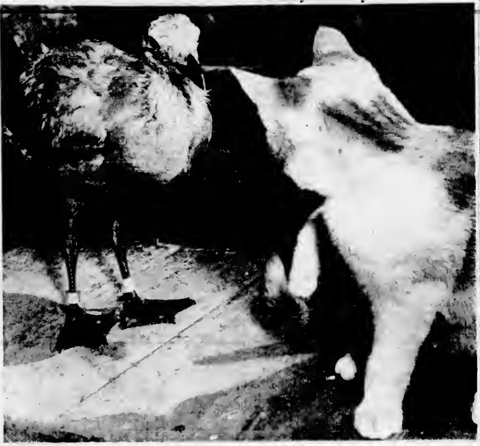
'You Can't Gull Me,' Says Pussy



"You take care of the mice, Bub, and I'll handle the fishing," Grey Gull, the new straw boss and mascot of the Grey Gull coffee shop, tells his feline friend Dinghy at the Oak Bay boathouse. Dake and Betty Scott of the coffee shop have adopted the two-month-old gull. Both its legs are banded in case it gives way to wanderlust.

Ninth Traffic Fatality

Car Kills Victoria Girl, 8, On Road in Front of Home

Driver Identified As U.S. Tourist

An eight-year-old girl was killed in front of her home at 646 Gorge road east shortly before 8 last night when she ran into the path of a car in an attempt to cross the busy street.

The victim, Annette Perry was the ninth traffic fatality of the year in Greater Victoria

The accident occurred near the intersection of David and Gorge

The girl was taken by police to Royal Jubilee hospital where she was pronounced dead on arrival

Police identified the driver of the car as James E. Carpenter of Van Nuys, Calif., who is staying at Craigflower motor court.

According to police and witnesses, the girl ran from the driveway of her home into the street and was nearly struck by a car driven east on Gorge road by Darrel Pringle, 610 Gorge road east, who was proceeding just ahead of Carpenter

One witness said that a driver of another car that had to swerve to miss the child yelled at her to "get off the street before you get hit." Seconds later she was thrown about 15 feet by the impact of the Carpenter car.

Members of the naval patrol, who were having a cup of coffee at a nearby restaurant were the first on the accident scene and summoned the city police.

Police took the child's parents to the hospital where they were informed of the death.

The body was transferred to Hayward's Funeral Home after police notified Coroner E. C. Hart

The accident car, damaged only slightly on the left front fender, is being held by police until the coroner's inquest, probably Monday or Tuesday, and then will be impounded.

The child is survived by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Perry, and two brothers, John, 7, and Jimmy, 9.

Koreans Stone Koreans

SEOUL (AP)—Koreans demonstrating against the continued presence of truce inspectors from Communist countries stoned their own countrymen Saturday while President Syngman Rhee was issuing a new warning against violence.

A crowd of 300 at the West Coast port of Kunsan hurled rocks at truckloads of Koreans employees leaving the American air base compound.

The shrieking mob, chanting threats against truce inspectors housed at the base, gave way quickly before a U. S. Army tear gas barrage

In Seoul, President Rhee issued a statement, urging demonstrators to try to meet quietly with the inspectors and "tell them to leave." He said U.S. authorities "certainly should be willing to co-operate in such a peaceful and orderly process and I trust they will do so."

Rhee again warned against violence which already has resulted in injury of more than two score U.S. soldiers and many more Koreans. He said he was investigating the possibility that "subversive elements," mingling with the demonstrators, may have caused some of the trouble.

Vancouver Man Slain

VANCOUVER (CP)—An unidentified man was savagely beaten to death here Saturday night, police reported.

The man was found in the Kitsilano area shortly before 10 p.m. with severe wounds to the head and body. He was reported dead on arrival at hospital.

Credits Stogies

SEATTLE (AP)—Charles S. Otis, 100 years old Saturday, said the reason he has lived so long is because he ate so many cigars.

"I've chewed them since I can remember. I think I started when I was two or three years old," he said.

Otis, who was born in Beloit, Wis. and has lived in Washington State more than 50 years, had a big birthday cake Saturday and gifts of more cigars.

Six States Declared Disaster Areas

Savage Floods Keep East in Turmoil; 130 Killed; Cost Counted in Billions

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Northeast, staggered by the most savage floods in the history of the region, counted the cost in billions Saturday and at least 130 persons were killed by the roaring fury that swirled across eight states.

Scores of communities still were in turmoil their communications virtually cut off, utility services dead, roads destroyed and undermined, drinking water polluted

President Eisenhower Saturday designated six states—Massachusetts, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Rhode Island and South Carolina—as major disaster areas. North Carolina was designated as such earlier in the week because of hurricane Diane's damage.

High waters still threatened in many places, especially downstream areas along major rivers. Generally though, the swollen streams began to recede Saturday.

Ironically a hot August sun made the gigantic clean-up task even more arduous.

The wasteland left behind by the dwindling waters was "as devastating as the human mind can imagine," said a Woonsocket, R.I. official.

The Red Cross set aside two-million dollars for preliminary flood relief in the area.

Pennsylvania had the most dead at least 71 and many more missing

One summer camp near Stroudsburg was literally swept off the face of the earth, taking 431 women and children to presumed death in the raging waters of a normally placid creek.

Gov. Abraham Ribicoff of Connecticut after a personal tour of the worst hit areas, said "It will take a superhuman effort to restore this state to the condition it was in before the torrential rains struck.

"It has been absolutely heartbreaking to see the devastation."

Evans Clinchy of The Hartford Times, the first newsman to reach tiny Winsted, Conn., said people were "wandering the streets, dazed."

Every store front along the main street was smashed in and the street itself, normally a hard blacktop road, is now nothing but a mass of twisted asphalt, concrete and broken pipe from the city's water system."

The flood cut off the manufacturing city of Waterbury, Conn., and killed 15 persons

At Putnam, in Northern Connecticut a burning magnesium plant added new fear to the horror of the raging Quinebaug and French rivers.

All night the plant burned fiercely and blazing barrels of magnesium were swept through the flooded streets, exploding continually like bombs

For each known victim of the flood there were more missing and unaccounted for. Most of the deaths were from drownings. A few were from storm-caused traffic accidents or electrocutions from downed power lines

Reds Once Removed

'Sins-of-Fathers' Cases Reviewed

WASHINGTON (UP)—The civil service commission said yesterday it will "re-examine" the guilt-by-kinship case of a Cleveland government research scientist who was discharged because his parents once bought insurance policies from an alleged communist front.

The commission acted under pressure from the senate civil right sub-committee, which pointed out that the commission's own board of appeals has credited the Cleveland scientist, Fred Karpoff, with "an entirely clear record" in his own right.

It was the third guilt-by-kinship case to come to light recently. Military commissions were denied to seamen Eugene W. Landy and Norton Pierre Gaston because of security questions raised about their mothers.

Lon Hocker, counsel for the senate constitutional rights sub-committee, said the only charge against Karpoff was that he had a "close relationship" to his mother and father.

Teen-Age Gang Arrested In Fracas with Police

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten teen-age youths Saturday were each required to post a $200 bond and were placed on six months probation following a disturbance outside a suburban Ville Lasalle police station.

Police arrested 21 teen-agers—including four girls—when they demanded that a motorcyclist friend be released from custody. The 19-year-old unidentified youth was arrested for driving without a headlight.

Drug Traffic Suspect

Love Laughs at Locksmiths

VANCOUVER (CP)—Love finds a way, and for Ed Scosky, it found the way to get him out of jail.

Scosky, 28, Vancouver upholsterer, was arrested Aug. 9 in the mass RCMP raid on drug traffickers, and placed on $15,000 bail.

But he wanted to get married and he couldn't raise the money. So his lawyer, Larry Hill, appealed to Magistrate Oscar Orr to reduce the bail to $10,000.

The magistrate and special prosecutor R. B. Harvey opposed counsel's request because of Scosky's record — of all traffickers charged, he had the most charges laid against him—eight single and four joint.

But iron bars couldn't hold back Scosky's love and Friday he walked out on bail en route to the altar—after getting the full bail of $15,000.

Arabs Inflamed

Riots Blaze Across Africa, Battles, Bombings Kill 430

PARIS (AP) — Nationalist rioting blazed across North Africa Saturday and resulted in the killing of more than 430 Arabs and Europeans. The violent deaths were in battles, bombings and various armed encounters in Algeria and Morocco.

Inflamed Arabs demanding an end to French rule took the second anniversary of the exile of Morocco's deposed Sultan Mohammed Ben Youssef to set off the worst wave of disorders since independence became an issue in North Africa

White-cloaked Berber tribesmen fought a bitter engagement with parachute troops in Morocco's Atlas Mountains, and other nationalists clashed with troops and tanks in the shanty towns surrounding Casablanca.

Later in the day, apparently in sympathy with the Moroccans, Algerian rebels went into action some 800 miles away in Constantine province of Eastern Algeria

Large groups of nationalists attacked police stations and barracks at Philippeville, and set off a series of bombs in Constantine, a city of 119,000. In quick succession reports came of attacks against police stations post office and railroad depots in towns all over the area.

The French news agency described the Algerian outbreak as "an attempted insurrection" but said the situation was in hand as the result of quick action by police and security forces

A report from the fighting in the Atlas Mountains of Morocco described it as "more like a civil war than a police operation."

Sudan Mutiny Spreads

KHARTOUM (AP) — The Sudan government said Saturday night the rebellion of army troops in the south is spreading on both sides of the Far Upper Nile.

Loyal troops from the north were being flown to the area throughout the day. It is in the Central African lands of the most primitive African tribes, 1,200 miles south of Khartoum

The exact reasons for the rebellion were unknown but there has been ill feeling on the part of the Southern Sudanese soldiers, who long have been commanded by British officers, for the new officers who are mainly Northern Sudanese

Government officials claim Egyptian agents have been agitating against them in the south.

'Yard' Holds IRA Suspect

LONDON (UP)—Police announced Saturday they have captured a fourth man suspected of participating in the Irish Republican Army raid on the British army barracks and arsenal

Flying Enterprise Epic Recalled by Marine Rescue

LONDON (AP) A daring sea captain and his first mate, alone on a battered ship, rode out a gale in the North Atlantic Saturday night, inching closer to victory in a life or death gamble to save their fire-ravaged craft.

The Swedish passenger liner Kungsholm took 29 other crew men off the 7,133-ton British freighter Argobeam during a fire Friday, but Capt. George Watson and Chief Officer Kenneth Seaman stayed aboard to fasten tow lines when salvage tugs arrived.

Saturday night the gale lessened and the British weather ship Weather Record, standing by 300 miles off the Scottish Hebrides, radioed:

"Captain and mate on board and quite cheerful. Two tugs should arrive Sunday afternoon. Argobeam has 20-degree list to port and standing up to conditions very well. There does not seem to be any immediate danger of the Argobeam collapsing.

"We have put a rubber dinghy aboard for the captain and the mate to use if the situation worsens."

London newspapers hailed the Argobeam skipper as "Carlsen No 2"

Britain has never forgotten the saga of Captain Kurt Carlsen, the Danish-American master who made his crew abandon ship and then struggled on alone for five days to save the U.S. freighter Flying Enterprise, which finally sank off Falmouth, England, Jan. 10, 1952.

Earlier reports from the weather ship said the drifting ship was being pounded by 14-foot waves whipped by 30-knot winds. But calmer weather was forecast for Sunday.
